Digs for Hoffa grave prove futile; info linked to mob

DETROIT (AP) — A man who said he helped bury the body of James R. Hoffa provided information that led to an unsuccessful weekend search of a nearby field for the missing ex-Teamsters boss, a Senate subcommittee investigator said.

Investigator William B. Gallianaro, who tipped local authorities that Hoffa's body might be found in the field, said his information came from an unidentified informant who was not involved in the labor leader's disappearance but who has underworld contacts.

Gallianaro said his informant believes the man who said he helped bury Hoffa is being held by "the mob" until he provides exact directions to the location of the body.

"Our informant is dealing with the mob. The mob is talking to someone who is involved in the disappearance of Jimmy Hoffa," said Keith Adkinson, another subcommittee investigator.

There is no evidence that Hoffa has been slain, but some associates have said they believe he was murdered because he was on the verge of being freed from parole restrictions which prohibited him from taking part in Teamsters activities.

Some investigators believe "the mob" may be providing information to take pressure off underworld figures being questioned in connection with Hoffa's disappearance.

A federal grand jury in Detroit has subpoenaed and taken testimony from several reputed mob figures but has produced no new information in the case, sources say.

Acting on information from Gallinaro, Michigan Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley organized a search of a 29-acre field in Waterford Township about 20 miles northwest of Detroit but found no trace of Hoffa.

Gallinaro said he is in touch with his informant and is not giving up. He said he believes Hoffa may be buried in the area that was searched Sunday morning.

"I put credence in the information because it fits what we know about the overall circumstances of the disappearance," said Vincent Piersante, head of the organized crime division of the attorney general's office.

He said he believes the informant is in contact with a person who "had a piece of the killing" and who was present for the burial.

"We don't know about the mental condition of the person who made the estimates (of directions to a burial site)," said Piersante. "If you have Hoffa's body in the back of your car, every 10 seconds seems like an hour and a half."

No word yet but gas dealers see penny hike

While official notification is lacking, it is anticipated the one cent a gallon increase in the price of gasoline, resulting from the 13-nation oil cartel price hike announced Saturday, will be reflected shortly at valley pumps.

"I haven't been notified yet," said Lewis Androus, owner of the ARCO station at 295 E. Mission Blvd., Pomona, "but it is very likely. I look for a raise between the third and sixth of the month. It will go up at least a cent."

Bob Theunisson, manager of Bob's Texaco Service at 306 W. Foothill Blvd., Claremont, said that while he had not yet been notified, he did expect "at least a one cent price increase" at the pump before too much longer.

"What we make on gas doesn't pay our light bill," said Neil Chamberlain, assistant manager of Norm & Son's Exxon Service at 350 S. Diamond Bar Blvd., Diamond Bar.

"When they increase their wholesale price we have to raise the pump price, but we've received no notification for a price increase for October."

Rudy Wroblewski, manager of Chino Chevron Service at 12110 Central Ave., Chino, said. "No, we haven't been notified as yet, but we look for it. When they tell you the wholesale price is up, you pay the new price, and if you don't raise your price at the pump, you lose money."

Chuck Payne, owner-manager of Pomona Valley Shell at 604 W. Holt Ave., Pomona, said Shell had sent through no notification of a new price increase, but he did anticipate one of at least one cent right away.

Patty deteriorating—lawyer

Wants her in hospital; report says she didn't want to escape SLA

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As a magazine article pictured Patricia Hearst as a willing revolutionary, her attorneys said today that her mental state is deteriorating swiftly in jail and called for her transfer to a hospital.

Miss Hearst's attorneys met with reporters hours after publication of a Rolling Stone story which said the newspaper heiress rode cross-country with sports activist Jack Scott four months after she was kidnaped and that she rejected his offer to take her home.

Attorney Terence Hallinan declined comment on specific points in the article. But when asked about a taped jailhouse conversation in which Miss Hearst described herself as a revolutionary feminist, Hallinan said:

"The Patty Hearst that is in jail in Redwood City right now is not the same person who made those tapes and is not even the same person that Jack Scott says in the Rolling Stone article he met or that participated in the Hibernia Bank robbery."

Among the charges facing her is an accusation that she took part in an April 1974 holdup of a San Francisco branch of Hibernia Bank.

Hallinan said psychological testing in jail was taking a heavy toll on his client and said he would ask the court to allow her transfer to a hospital in San Francisco.

"She's been more spaced out, it's harder to get her to talk," he said. "She is easily overcome by tears, and it's harder to get her mind to go into these areas she's closed off."

Miss Hearst was quoted in the Rolling Stone story as responding to Scott's offer to drive her anywhere she wanted, including home, by saying: "I want to go where my friends are going."

Associate Editor Howard Kohn and reporter David Weir said their account was based on information from unidentified sources who "talked to Patty Hearst; they were there; they helped her."

Scott was introduced to the Harrises after word was spread that he wanted to write a book on the organization. The Harrises invited Scott to a Berkeley apartment, where he met Patty Hearst for the first time and agreed to drive her to the East Coast, the article said.

Scott, who once told reporters "I never met anyone who told me she was Patty Hearst" could not be reached immediately for comment.

Miss Hearst announced after her kidnaping she had taken the name "Tania."

Miss Hearst was confined, apparently in a closet, for four weeks immediately after she was kidnaped from her Berkeley apartment on Feb. 4, 1974, by the SLA, the Rolling Stone reporters, who were interviewed this morning on NBC's "Today Show," said.

In an affidavit filed last week in federal court here, Miss Hearst said she was held in a closet for nine weeks.

The reporters said Miss Hearst asked to be permitted to join the SLA but most members of the group were opposed. It was SLA leader Donald DeFreeze, who called himself "Cinque," who convinced others to accept her.

When she was released from confinement, the article said, Miss Hearst was allowed to move freely among SLA members and sat in on the group's "daily political study sessions."

When six members of the SLA died in a shootout with Los Angeles Police, Miss Hearst and SLA members Bill and Emily Harris were a few blocks away listening to radio accounts of the confrontation, Rolling Stone said. The article said the Harrises quickly bought a used car and left Los Angeles, with Miss Hearst hiding in the back seat under a blanket, for San Francisco.

The Harrises "found other means" of leaving Berkeley for the Scotts' New York City apartment. Scott and Miss Hearst, "posing as man and wife," drove eastward, Rolling Stone said. Miss Hearst was "very uptight" and "felt extremely vulnerable to being recognized along the way," Weir said, but their was no problem. The group met fugitive Wendy Yoshimura in New York and then went to a Pennsylvania farmhouse rented by Scott's wife, Micki, the article said.

Rolling Stone said during the summer at the Pennsylvania farmhouse, Miss Hearst had a long discussion with Scott about her conversion to the SLA, which Kohn and Weir said "was as much emotional as political. She had felt isolated emotionally and she was dis-

STAYING CLOSE TO HOME

The Bratz family of Wormleysburg, Pa., didn't have far to go when a flooding river drove them from their home in background at left. They moved onto their houseboat. Here, Bratz stands in a rowboat chatting with his wife, Jeanette. A neighbor, Larry Shank, drove up in his houseboat, offering it to the Bratz family for even larger living space. Floodwaters continue to recede throughout the Northeast today. See story on page 3.

House, President continuing tug-o-war over secret info

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a compromise proposal from President Ford, the House intelligence committee appeared clearly headed today for a decision to take its demand for secret information to the House.

All six Democrats at a committee meeting declared their support for putting to the House a resolution saying defiance of subpoenas for the information is "a grave matter requiring appropriate enforcement."

All three Republicans at the meeting urged the committee instead to continue negotiations with the White House on a compromise for obtaining the information and thus avoid a constitutional confrontation.

As Ford's advisers began supplying the committee with non-secret documents, Chairman Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., demanded secret information including the names of intelligence agents.

Pike said demands for full access to secrets should be taken to the House. He declared that Ford's limits could be used "to withhold from this committee almost anything they (White House aides) want to."

Excluded from material that Ford's counsel proposed to provide the committee were the names of intelligence agents. Pike said the names were necessary for the committee to determine why reports from agents are sometimes ignored.

Contending Ford has compromised only to the committee's right to publicly disclose secrets, Pike said: "They are willing to be very reasonable on the subject of what we release to the public, if they don't give us very much to release."

But the committee's ranking Republican, Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, said volumes of material the White House has promised to turn over would give the committee staff more than it could handle for now.

"The President is personally willing to put his credibility on the line as far as providing this material is concerned," McClory said.

But Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., said he is not convinced that even Ford's pledge to make the final decision personally on whether information should be kept secret would prevent intelligence agencies from hiding material from the committee.

"I don't trust them, to be frank and honest," Giaimo said. "They are moving heaven and earth and are even bringing the President into it to try to deny us information."

Pike repeated to the committee his statement Sunday that he would endorse an agreement under which the committee would not publicly disclose anything Ford wanted to be kept secret without getting a court order.

But Pike contended the real issue was adequate release of documents to the committee itself for it to do its work. He said White House conditions for such release were too limited.

Bettors place record sum in fair racing

The 48th Los Angeles County Fair ended its 17-day run smoothly Sunday night, but attracted only 78,077 visitors through its gates on the final day.

Sunday's figures gave the 1975 exposition a total of 1,135,852, the lowest since the 1970 fair when 1,091,242 visited the huge Southland attraction.

The bright note for the 17 days was a record handle of $16,266,470 for the horse racing meet which ended Saturday. That figure eclipsed the previous record of $15,069,194 set in 1974.

Attendance for the meet was up 5.6 per cent over 1974 and totaled 168,337 for daily average of 12,025.

The busiest day was Saturday, Sept. 20, when 24,835 jammed into the Grandstand and clubhouse facilities for 11 races.

The fair welcomed its one millionth visitor Saturday at 2:42 p.m. when Fair Queen Beth Redinius greeted Mrs. Sandra Cook of Long Beach and presented to her a silver serving tray.

Fair officials said that financially it was a good year for concessionaires, despite the low attendance brought about, in part, by a four-day heat wave in the 100's the last week of the exposition.

Young Chinoan identified as one killed in store shooting

Miguel Angel Vargas, 18, of 4681 Gettysburg St., Chino, has been identified by the San Bernardino Coroner's office as being shot and killed by a Chino market owner late Friday night.

Vargas was pronounced dead at the Chino General Hospital Friday night after William H. Coleman, owner of the Foodland Market, 13157 Sixth St., Chino, told police that he was forced to fire at burglars found inside of his store. Coleman told officers he interrupted several burglars in his store about 11:39 p.m. He said that he told the men to freeze, but they challenged him and he was forced to fire.

One of the bullets hit Vargas in the chest and lung and another hit a second burglar, as yet unidentified by police. The second burglar wounded in the incident, remains in serious condition this morning at San Bernardino County Hospital.

Valley man dies, 3 others hurt in crash

A Montclair man was killed and three valley residents injured Saturday night when the car in which they were riding went out of control on Foothill Boulevard east of Ontario, struck a detour sign, crashed through the divider fence and fell to the bottom of a seven-foot irrigation canal.

The driver, Allen L. Worley, 22, 10856 Central Ave., was pronounced dead at 9:04 p.m. at the San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

His front-seat passenger, Diane Michell Taylor, 19, Ontario, was admitted to that hospital for treatment of internal injuries and facial lacerations. Hospital authorities this morning said she had a fair day Sunday and a good night last night.

The two back-seat passengers, Robert William Warner, 23, Pomona, and Jodie Alice Rodgers, 19, Alta Loma, also were taken to the hospital.

Warner was given emergency treatment than transferred by ambulance to San Bernardino County General Hospital. Miss Rodgers was given emergency treatment and released.

The accident occurred at 7:40 p.m. in a freeway construction area east of Rochester Avenue. San Bernardino highway patrolmen said Worley was eastbound.

Reagan sees support grow; still can't decide

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan says he sees signs that support is snowballing for his unannounced campaign for the Republican nomination for President.

But, the 64-year-old former California governor added, he is still undecided about whether to run against President Ford in Republican primaries in 1976.

Reagan made the comments in a weekend interview following a seven state speaking tour last week.

Asked whether the response to his latest tour encouraged him to run for President, Reagan's reply was a carefully qualified yes:

"I have to admit that there has been no lessening of what I have been aware of in previous trips. If anything, there seems to be a kind of snowballing.

"What I can't evaluate is, is that necessarily support for me personally, or is it for what I have been saying?" he said.

"As to the audiences, in almost every instance there was great enthusiasm and support for the views I was expressing."

Reagan says he will announce in November, after completion of his current series of nationwide speaking tours, whether he will run against Ford.

The tour last week took Reagan to Midwest and Southern states. He brought out large friendly crowds, but few Reagan-for-President banners or other public pleas for him to become a candidate.

Reagan said many conservatives who enthusiastically applaud him "may very well agree with what I say and then think that the present policies (of the Ford administration) might achieve the same things."

Asked if he agreed with those who believe Ford could accomplish the goals Reagan outlined of reducing the size and cost of the federal government, Reagan said:

"I don't think that's a question I can answer."

On a more philosophical note, Reagan said he does feel a hunger to be President, but not the kind of hunger that he says he sees in other politicians.

He described his own presidential ambitions as a hunger to accomplish certain things — chiefly to reverse the concentration of power in Washington.

"If you mean (do I hunger) in the sense of some ambitious politicians...who hunger for it — no. I don't even understand them.

"There is the other kind of hunger, of the man who...sees things that need doing if we are to survive, and has views on what should be done, and says, 'Could I, or could I not, accomplish these things.'

"That too is a hunger, a thing in which you could say, 'Oh yes, the challenge, the thought that I could maybe bring this to pass.' That is a very real hunger too. But I think it is far different than just having an ambition to live in the White House."

Seniors get benefit of bank battle

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A battle among banks in California for low-cost consumer deposits is providing cash benefits for millions of customers, with senior citizens becoming the newest beneficiaries, banking experts say.

So far the battle has resulted in the annual interest on passbook savings accounts being raised from 4½ to 5 per cent and a variety of free services for elderly depositors.

Last April, Crocker National Bank offered depositors who are 62 and older free checking accounts, free travelers checks and other free services.

Since then, other top California banks such as Security Pacific National Bank and Bank of America have followed Crocker's lead.

"I can't give you any definite figures, but we're definitely seeing an improvement in our market share," said Peter Vajta, vice president of marketing at Crocker, describing the results of its efforts to woo elderly depositors.

Steven P. White, a bank stock analyst with Sutro & Co. of San Francisco, explained that "a heating up of the competitive pressures in California banking" is the reason for the rush of free services for older depositors.

"You can anticipate the major banks matching each other move for move for some time to come," he predicted.

"Compared to certificates of deposits, bankers acceptances and other sources of bank funds, consumer deposits are a low-cost way of getting money. These banks have to make sure they don't lose even a small percentage of their market share of these deposits," White said.

State job training scheduled for women

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A $200,000 state job training program for widows and divorcees will be established in Alameda County next year under legislation signed by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

But the location for the two-year pilot program will be left up to the state secretary of health and welfare, Mario Obledo, and his assistants, Press Secretary Bill Stall said Sunday.

The legislation by Sen. Jerry Smith, D-Saratoga, was supported by about a dozen women's groups around the state, including three in Alameda County. But it does not specify that any of the Alameda County groups will get the funds.

The money could be given to one of the sponsoring groups, to some other private group, or it could be used to set up a new agency, Stall said.

The program is intended to provide job counseling and training for women over age 35 who are without support or marketable job skills.

It specifies that the program is to include women who were homemakers and had been supported by another family member and mothers who were supported by welfare grants but are no longer on welfare.

Supporters of the measure in Alameda County include the Alliance for Displaced Homemakers, Jobs for Older Women Action Project and Tish Sommers, chief of the National Organization for Women national task force for older women, all of Oakland.

Several San Francisco and Santa Clara County groups also supported the measure, which was signed into law by Brown Friday.

Tied-up kidnaping victim escapes fire dramatically

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kidnap victim Earl Miller escaped from a classic scene: tied up inside a building set afire in two places.

Police report Miller, 55, Northridge, freed himself Sunday after an abductor left him shackled inside the flaming RCA Building in Hollywood.

Miller, who suffered no injuries, told officers a man accosted him after church services Sunday and forced him at gunpoint to drive to the RCA Building. Manager of the trust fund that owns the building, Miller said he was bound and gagged on the seventh floor.

Miller telephoned authorities after getting loose. Firemen put outfires on the seventh and fourth floors. Flames inflicted $25,000 damage on the building at Sunset Boulevard and Ivar Street.

Police said Miller told them the kidnaper termed the abduction as retaliation for royalities owed the man for records.

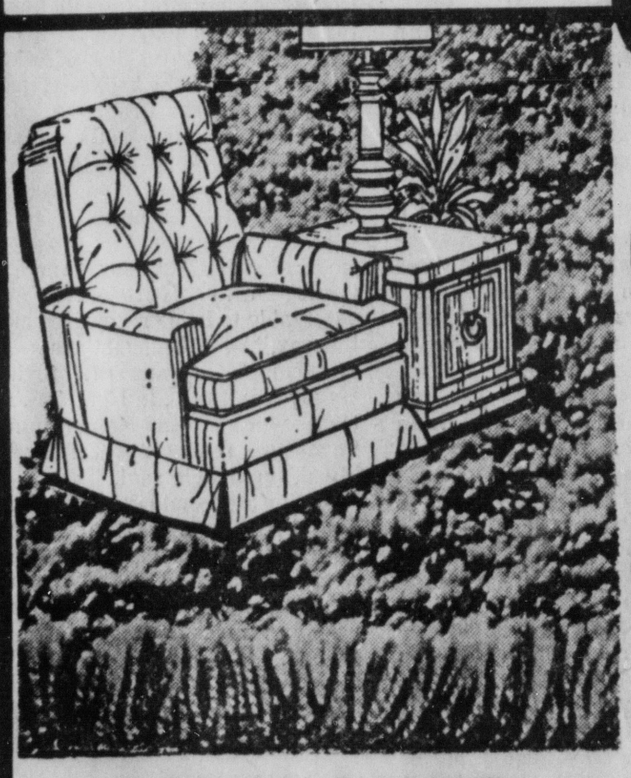

The identity of the man and the background of his royalties complaint remained unknown. Officers were searching for the man.

Hirohito begins his visit in U.S. Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japan's Emperor Hirohito makes a tradition-breaking visit to the United States this week, fulfilling a wish he has nourished for more than half a century.

The decision of the 74-year-old monarch to undertake the trip reflects both the less reclusive nature of his reign as well as the relatively trouble-free state of Japanese-American relations.

The emperor, who will be accompanied by his wife, Empress Nagako, when he arrives Tuesday, is the 124th in an imperial line that dates back more than 13 centuries.

None of his predecessors has ever visited the United States and just four years ago Hirohito became the first Japanese emperor ever to leave the country when he went to Europe.

Technically, he set foot on American soil when he stopped briefly in Anchorage, Alaska, and met with President Richard Nixon.

President Ford met the emperor in Tokyo last November and extended the invitation for a U.S. visit. A studied effort is being made to keep the trip as non-political as possible, but officials of both countries say there is a direct link between the decision to make the visit and the steady improvement in political relations between the two countries.

The imperial couple, whose dynasty is the oldest reigning family in the world, is scheduled to visit six major American cities: Washington, New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Honolulu. A stop in Pearl Harbor was considered, but Japanese officials decided against it.

The emperor's chief personal interest has always been marine life, so he also will visit two marine biology stations, one at Woods Hole, Mass., and the other near San Diego, Calif.

Extraordinary security precautions will be in effect for the trip, particularly in light of the recent attempts on Ford's life.

The couple will arrive Tuesday in Williamsburg, Va., and will travel two days later to Washington, where an elaborate White House arrival ceremony for them is planned.

Ford will give a dinner for the visitors that evening. On the following night, the Smithsonian Institution will be the scene of a dinner offered by the imperial couple.

The emperor is a baseball fan and home run king Henry Aaron has been invited to both dinners.

Another highlight for the monarch will be a visit to the Pocantico Hills, N.Y., estate of Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller. The vast domain, 12 times the size of the emperor's Tokyo estate, includes an authentic Japanese dwelling which is filled with Rockefeller's collection of oriental art and furnishings, and is surrounded by a Japanese water garden.

The emperor's visit is only one symbol of the improved climate between Tokyo and Washington. Ford's visit to Tokyo last fall was the first ever made there by an incumbent American president.

Just missed

NEW YORK (AP) — The bullet allegedly fired by Sara Jane Moore missed President Ford by about five feet and did not hit the pavement until after it had passed him, Time magazine said Sunday.

Time also quotes a San Francisco policeman as saying there is no doubt that ex-Marine Oliver Sipple's reflex grab at Miss Moore's arm deflected the bullet.

Time said the bullet fired at Ford outside the St. Francis Hotel last Monday "whizzed harmlessly between a TV crew and agents, striking the wall of the hotel 5½ feet above the sidewalk."

Civil war resumes

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesian government troops have fought two clashes with one of the three armed factions involved in the civil war in Portuguese Timor, an Indonesian spokesman said today.

Brig. Gen. Sumrahadi, Defense Department spokesman, said the leftist Revolutionary Front for Independence of East Timor — FRETILIN — clashed with Indonesian troops Sunday as they patroled the border area in Fatulen village on the Indonesian side of the island, where more than 34,000 refugees from Portuguese Timor now live.

Emergency action

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portugal's premier today ordered troops to take over Lisbon's leftist-controlled radio and television stations, but reliable sources said that at one station soldiers refused to obey orders and fraternized with the leftist staffers instead.

Premier Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo ordered the takeover saying the country was in a "real emergency." He said in a broadcast he acted to prevent the stations from "manipulating" information "to undermine the bases of discipline and order" and to "avoid declaration of a state of emergency."

AIP prepared

RENO, Nev. (AP) -Still confident that George Wallace will be its presidential candidate in 1976, the American Independent Party says it is in better shape than ever.

National Chairman William Shearer said Sunday the party is well prepared as it heads into its third presidential campaign and is ahead of previous efforts.

Juan Macias becomes saint

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI has elevated Juan Macias, a Spanish-born friar, to sainthood in the Roman Catholic Church and used the occasion to criticize the Spanish government's execution of five young terrorists.

The papal mass and canonization ceremonies in St. Peter's Square were boycotted by the Spanish government, which called its Vatican ambassador home for consultation.

The pontiff, who had made three separate pleas for clemency, said "Joy would have been fuller had the events everybody knows not taken place."

Mexico puts up protest

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican government is breaking all connections between Mexico and Spain in protest against the execution of five terrorists by the Franco regime, the Interior Ministry announced.

All flights between Mexico and Spain by Iberia, the Spanish airline, and Aeromexico, the Mexican airline, have been cancelled, according to Sunday night's announcement.

Three holding seven hostages

Gunman may be unstable

By JAMES R. PEIPERT
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — One of three gunmen holding seven hostages in a sweltering 10-by 12-foot basement storeroom of a restaurant appears unstable and there is a risk he might use his gun if police attack, a psychiatrist listening in on their conversations said today.

The psychiatrist, who was called in by police as the siege entered its 36th hour, listened for some time at an air duct which carries conversation from the storeroom. Police, some armed and wearing bullet-proof vests, ringed the restaurant but made no move to attack. The gunmen have a shotgun and two pistols.

The gunmen invaded the restaurant, named the Spaghetti House, in the fashionable Knightsbridge section at 1:45 a.m. Sunday as nine employes were closing up. The gunmen's target was 11,000 pounds — $23,100 — the night's proceeds for the restaurant and others affiliated with it.

One of the employes shoved a bank satchel containing the money under a table, escaped and called the police. When officers surrounded the area and the gunmen realized they could not escape, they herded the other eight employes into the storeroom. Late Sunday they released one of the hostages as a sign of good faith.

All three gunmen originally were believed to be West Indians but police said today they thought two of them were West Indians and the other was a Nigerian, presumably because of their accents. All the hostages were Italians.

Italian Ambassador Roberto Ducci and Consul-General Mario Manca went to the restaurant today when the hostages asked to speak to someone in their own language. Ducci said as he left, "the hostages are in fairly good condition."

appointed in her parents and in Steven Weed, her fiance, and their response to the SLA demands."

At the end of the summer when the farmhouse lease expired, arrangements for returning Miss Hearst and the Harrises to hiding in California were made by a "new team" that included Kathleen Soliah, now herself a fugitive, and her brother Steve. Scott again drove Miss Hearst, this time westward, Rolling Stone said.

The story leaves off with Scott and Miss Hearst parting at a motel in Las Vegas last September, with plans for her to continue westward to California.

Miss Hearst, the Harrises, Miss Yoshimura and Soliah were all arrested in San Francisco last week.

All are being held — Miss Hearst without bail and the others in lieu of bail — and a hearing is scheduled in San Francisco on Tuesday for a report by court-appointed psychiatrists examining Miss Hearst.

Her mental state comes under increasing scrutiny today as results are studied of tests that her lawyer says are subjecting her to mental anguish.

Attorney Terence Hallinan said he will try again Tuesday to convince U.S. District Court Judge Oliver Carter to move Miss Hearst from her jail cell to a hospital for the rest of the psychological testing.

Hallinan said he would respond at a news conference today to "many questions which have come up and introduce the newest member of the defense team" — noted criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey.

Meanwhile, the Chicago Tribune said in today's editions that more than 30 prominent Californians have been warned by police to take security precautions because their names appeared on a list found in the Harrises apartment in San Francisco.

The Tribune said a detailed report on Charles de Brettville, chairman of the Bank of California and a director of PG&E, was also found in the Harrises' apartment. The newspaper said the report included maps of de Brettville's Woodside, Calif., home, and notes on his daily routine.

In Hartford, Conn., on Sunday, Bailey called a news conference to fire a round in what may become a duel between Browning and the defense team.

Bailey said he suspected that Browning, a former politician with roots in San Mateo County where Miss Hearst is being held, may have used his influence to get jail authorities to tape a conversation between Miss Hearst and a friend, Patricia Tobin.

Excerpts of the conversation were made public by Judge Carter. Miss Hearst was quoted as saying she did not want bail if she was going to be a prisoner in her parents' home and she described herself as a "revolutionary feminist."

Bailey said Miss Hearst "wasn't warned that any taping was going on. The fact that the U.S. attorney in the case is from the same district where the jail is located is rather suspect."

Clean-up begins in the Northeast following floods

By The Associated Press

Floodwaters continued to recede throughout the Northeast today as thousands of families returned home to clean up in the wake of rains dumped by Tropical Storm Eloise. At least 10 persons were dead.

Pennsylvania, hardest-hit of a dozen states from Virginia to New England, reported six persons dead, 6,000 still homeless, and damages totaling more than $100 million. The state capital, Harrisburg, was for a time patrolled by National Guardsmen although it had been spared major damage. The Guardsmen were being deactivated today.

The flooding also left pollution problems that were only beginning to be felt today. Officials said water supplies may have been contaminated in some Pennsylvania communities, and Delaware officials feared damage to shellfishing in Chesapeake Bay could last for years.

An 11-mile section of the New York State Thruway was reopened Sunday after having been closed by floodwaters. In Connecticut, a 14-year-old boy was missing after being swept from a raft in the Steele Brooke in Watertown.

When the Susquehanna River began overflowing its banks in Pennsylvania's agricultural and industrial heartland late last week, President Ford declared all or parts of 21 counties eligible for federal disaster relief.

The river crested Saturday night, earlier than expected, and one local Civil Defense official, P. Franklin Hartzel of Milton, declared: "This one turned out to be not as bad as expected."

Nevertheless, the flood was rated the third worst in the state's history. It was the second major flood in three years in the Susquehanna basin. Only Tropical Storm Agnes in 1972 and other flooding in 1936 caused more damage. State officials estimated damage to roads and agriculture alone at more than $100 million.

Municipal reservoirs and sewer systems were flooded and state health officials advised residents in Lycoming, Clinton, Centre, Dauphin, York, Perry, and Cumberland counties to boil water before drinking.

Water filtration plants in 18 communities and sewage treatment plants in 10 others were knocked out, pouring raw sewage into the Susquehanna at Harrisburg and Wilkes-Barre.

In Maryland, Chesapeake Bay officials said the biggest problem for shellfishing now would be sewage overflows and bacteria. But they also said it was the second time such damage had taken place in three years, and the oyster population had only just begun to increase again. The long-range effects could last for years, they said.

Meanwhile, the National Hurricane Center in Miami reported Hurricanes Faye and Gladys moving through widely separated portions of the Atlantic today, neither posing an immediate threat to land.

Faye, which touched land briefly on Bermuda last week, was rushing eastward in open waters of the North Atlantic at 45 m.p.h, its 75 mile-an-hour winds centered at 6 a.m. near latitude 43.0 north and 36.0 west. But it was rapidly diminishing in force and forecasters said no more advisories would be issued.

Gladys, with winds also estimated at 75 m.p.h., but not diminishing as quickly, was near latitude 22.0 north and longitude 62.2 west or 350 miles northeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico. It was moving west-northwest at 12 m.p.h.

Ontario man reports beating

After being treated for head injuries Sunday, a 56-year-old Ontario man reported to police that he was beaten and robbed by three men Sunday night as he was walking in the area of Campus Avenue and Park St.

Jose Z. Rodriquez of 307 E. Park St. told officers nearly 10 hours after the incident took place that the three men in a older black car stopped and attacked him on the street, taking his wallet containing a small amount of cash. Rodriquez was unable to give officers a better description of his assailants.

Police were called to the Rodriquez home after the Ontario Fire Department rescue squad responded to a report that a man was injured. Rodriquez gave no explanation as to why he did not report the incident sooner.

Cut taxes: Reagan

CHICAGO (AP) — Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan proposed on Friday a $25 billion federal income tax cut next year and a $90 billion cut in federal spending.

Reagan said his proposal would "cut the federal personal income tax burden of every American by an average of 23 per cent."

Reagan said his plan would wipe out current deficit spending and still leave enough extra money in the federal treasury to reduce the national debt by $5 billion dollars.

He said his proposed budget cuts could be achieved by transferring authority "in whole or part" from Washington back to local government for administration of welfare, education, housing, food stamps, medical care and community development.

"An immediate tax cut, some of which might have to be balanced by tax rises in the states, would be only the beginning of the savings that could be achieved." Reagan told 1,600 business executives at a luncheon.

Latest fires contained

By The Associated Press

Fire fighters hope they have beaten back the latest thrust of California's annual fall fire season after tough blazes broke out over the weekend near Santa Maria and San Bernardino.

A forest service spokesman said fire fighters had encircled both weekend blazes that were fanned by gusty winds and blazing temperatures.

The fire near San Bernardino had threatened the mountain resort area of Rim Forest, but fire fighters were able to keep the blaze away from the area.

Four hundred acres, most old burn area from the Big Bear fire of 1970, were blackened by the blaze, the spokesman aid.

There were no injuries, nor any damage to structures reported in either of the weekend fires.

The blaze in a remoate area 28 miles east of Santa Maria blackened 1,550 acres before fire fighters were able to stop it Sunday.

Fanned by Santa Ana winds gusting to 40 miles per hour last week, brush fires in Southern California blackened an estimated 63,000 acres.

The biggest fire of the year in California, in the badlands area near Riverside, burned 20,250 acres before it was contained.

Assassinating Anderson wasn't in plans—Hunt

NEW YORK (AP) — Time magazine says Watergate figure E. Howard Hunt maintains he was never ordered to assassinate columnist Jack Anderson — only to drug him.

Time said its correspondent, David Beckwith, interviewed Hunt at the federal prison at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida about reports that the Richard M. Nixon administration had put out a murder contract on Anderson.

The Washington Post said last week Hunt had told associates he was once ordered to assassinate Anderson, but that the order was canceled at the last minute.

Anderson said at the time of the newspaper report he did not believe anyone in the Nixon administration would seriously suggest murder.

Beckwith said Hunt denied the assassination plot but said then-White House counsel Charles Colson proposed drugging the writer in order to discredit him. The White House was allegedly angered by Anderson's reporting of inside information about the administration.

The idea, said Time, was to administer a drug to Anderson before one of his live radio appearances and "cause him to ramble incoherently."

Contacted by Time, Colson denied ever hearing of such a plan.

Hunt said he and another Watergate conspirator, G. Gordon Liddy, set up a luncheon meeting with a former Central Intelligence Agency physician and discussed various way of drugging Anderson.

The plans were eventually abandoned and Time quoted Hunt as saying, "It was just another wild idea that never got beyond the proposal stage."

Throwover

The President and Vice President of the United States are the only elective federal offices not elected by direct vote of the people. They are elected by the members of the Electoral College, an institution that has survived since the founding of the nation despite repeated attempts in Congress to alter or abolish it. In three previous presidential elections, the presidential candidate receiving the greatest popular vote failed to win a majority of the electoral votes.

He may be better than Reagan, but . . .

By STEVE LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has not turned out to be the knight in shining armor that some consumer activists hoped he'd be.

But after nine months in office he gets better ratings from consumer groups than former Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"There has been an improvement over Reagan," said Roy Alper, director of California Citizen Action Group. "But it was not as much as we'd hoped for.

"We find that we are at least able to get our views presented and he keeps an open mind until the last minute. Under the previous administration most of the doors were simply closed."

Brown, a Democrat, draws praise from consumer advocates for doubling funding for the Department of Consumer Affair's Divison of Consumer Services and for supporting several consumer oriented bills.

But they fault him for giving only lukewarm support for other measures and for knocking the wind out of attempts to eliminate milk price controls.

"I just don't think that Brown articulated a leadership role as well as he should have," said Ruth Yannatta, chairwoman of Fight Inflation Together, the organization that launched the 1973 meat boycott.

"I think the administration had very narrow goals this year and it clearly wasn't interested in consumer interest bills."

David Jensen, Brown's associate press secretary, defended Brown's record on consumer matters, pointing to his support for several consumer bills and his appointments to consumer agency posts.

Those appointments included Richard Spohn, a former aide to consumer advocate Ralph Nader, as head of the Divison of Consumer Services, Jensen said.

Ray Bonner, West Coast director of the Consumers Union, said Brown didn't push hard enough for a legislation giving laymen a majority on state licensing boards.

After running into strong opposition, Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, was forced to cut the number of public members provided by his two-bill package to just short of a majority.

Both measures are awaiting action in the Senate.

And Bonner contends that stronger leadership from the governor could have avoided amendments weaking two consumer bills approved by the legislature.

One of the measures would require grocers to list prices on each item sold. The other would allow pharmacists to substitute a lower priced, chemically equivalent drug for the brand-name product listed on a prescription.

In its final form the grocery pricing bill is a one-year measure that does not apply to sale items, Bonner said.

He also says Brown could have prevented an amendment to the prescription bill allowing doctors to check a box on the prescription form if they do not want a substitution made.

"What's going to happen is that the drug company is going to prepare prescription blanks with the box already checked," Bonner said.

Brian Paddock of the Western Center on Law and Proverty criticizes Brown for vetoing a bill that would allow the courts to decide how to compensate customers who had been short-changed by a merchant.

Dowsers: they're health-minded

DANVILLE, Vt. (AP) — The practitioners of the art of finding water with a forked stick say their talents extend to healing and protecting a person's health from rays given off by the underground veins of water.

The application of dowsing to health was only one of several topics explored when dowsers from three continents met over the weekend in this northeastern Vermont town for their annual convention.

Classes also were held on building dowsing confidence, diverting water veins and dowsing to grow and heal plants.

"As you can see, dowsing has come a long way from the days of the farmer walking around his land with a Y-shaped apple stick and waiting for it to point to the ground — indicating a vein was underneath," said dowser Ted Kaufmann of New York City.

"All underground water veins give off radiation which are bad for you," Gordon MacLean told a seminar on the relationship of noxious rays to health.

"But a good dowser can fix the problem in 10 minutes," said the 86-year-old MacLean, of South Portland, Maine.

The rays can be deflected by placing a metal rod on the ground directly over the vein or putting a wire around an affected house, he said.

It's a combination of the rays and mind concentration that makes divining possible, said many of the 300 persons attending the 15th annual convention of the American Society of Dowsers, Inc.

And the dowsers said their divining rods respond only to the object of their concentration.

"If I'm looking for a pipe, I can walk over all the water veins I want and get no reaction," MacLean said. "That's what I call selectivity, and it proves that a lot of it's in your mind, even if we don't know how it works."

Divining was used by early man, says the society, citing an 8,000-year-old drawing depicting a dowser found in caves in the Atlas Mountains of the Sahara desert.

It was a well accepted practice in Europe about the time America was discovered, and the colonists quickly transferred the art to the new world, said society spokesman Kaufmann.

"Dowsers were well respected members of the community, and colonists who dug wells without their advice were thought to be fools," he said.

Jack Livingston of Newcastle, Calif., is a modern-day example of a professional dowser who's developed his talent beyond simple location of water.

"I can tell how deep it is, how large the vein is, the temperature of the water and whether it's polluted," said the cigar-puffing Livingston. "When I saw the astronauts on the moon on television, I could tell where water was," he claimed. "Time and distance don't mean a thing."

In addition to a council meeting, members will have an opportunity to attend craft sessions relating to barbershop harmony as well as administrative aspects of the organization.

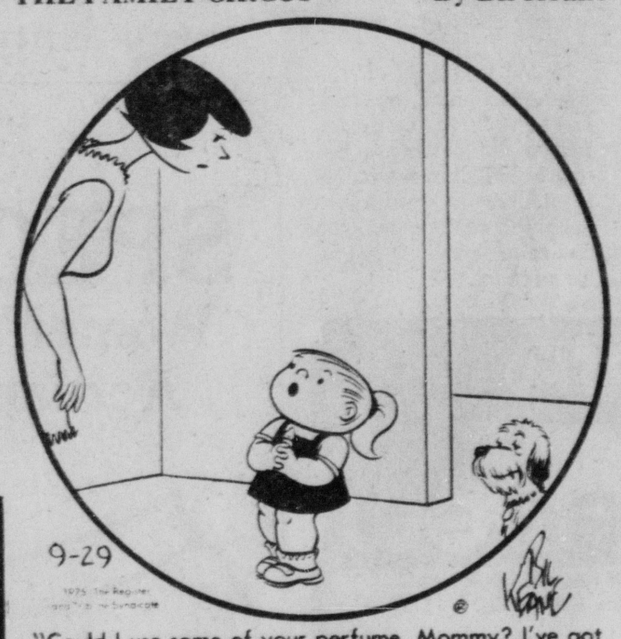

"Harmony Round-up" has been chosen as the theme for the meeting. Golden West Region 21 includes chapters from Southern California, Arizona, New Mexico and a portion of Texas.

Members attending from the Pomona Valley Chapter will be Mrs. Betty Pierce, Mrs. Sheila Schoonmaker, Mrs. Lois Whitney, Mrs. Chris Puerifoy and Mrs. Dorothea DeRoehn.

Small bottles

Few women like to carry fullsize bottles of shampoo and hair conditioner with them for short trips or overnight stays. Solving this packing problem are mini-size bottles of a hair care line that includes lemon, balsam, herb and wild strawberry shampoos, rainwater rinse, hair conditioner and body conditioner. Take along what you need.

TRANSPORTATION — Ever since humans invented the wheel they've shown a remarkable preference for rolling rather than plodding. That usually makes it easier to get around. But Carrie Mason, 7, and her sister Lisa, 10, who travel tandem-style on a skateboard near their home in Eugene, Ore., may change that trend. The way they do it makes even crawling on hands and knees look like an easier bet.

Oryx no longer rare in the Phoenix zoo

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The white oryx, hunted nearly to extinction in its native Saudi Arabia, is reproducing at the Phoenix zoo at a rate that makes local jackrabbits take notice.

"We started in 1963 with nine animals," said Wayne Homan, curator of animals. "We're up to 43 here and we sent six to San Diego which have bred four or five more, and Los Angeles has about 17. They started with three from here in 1965."

If left to multiply at that rate, calculator clickers say some 2 million oryx would overrun the Southwest in 50 years.

"But the whole idea of the herd in Phoenix is to get these animals back into Saudi Arabia," said Homan. "It may be five or 10 years before they can offer the protection they need, though."

The oryx, about the size of a cow with two rapier-like black horns, was believed to have inspired ancient legends of unicorns.

"Their flight-distance is quite large," Homan said. "So early man never got too close, and he would have seen the oryx as having one horn, from the side."

Homan plans to ship two more females to the San Diego Wild Animal Park soon, and is considering proposals from other Southwestern zoos to divide up the herd as insurance against disease wiping out the species.

The animals were flown to Phoenix in Air National Guard planes in 1963 when it became evident that Arab hunters, using four-wheel-drive vehicles and high-powered rifles, could kill the last of them.

The last survivors in the wild Rub Al Khali Desert across south central Saudi Arabia may have been killed now, Homan said, but five are kept on a preserve in the capital city of Ryadh for breeding.

In Phoenix, one of the oryx's major problems is that he tends to be too healthy.

"They're so efficient, they can get fat practically on the air they breathe," said Homan. "We have to watch their calories, or they will not develop a strong bone and nervous structure."

A special "oryx mix" of nutrients is scattered in pellets on the ground in their pen, along with a ration of bermuda grass, Homan said.

Attendants don't go into the pen unless they have an escape route, Homan added, because breeding males and nursing cows can become aggressive. And that pair of 28-inch horns poses a real-life threat far more formidable than the single horn of folklore.

Besides holding a place in mythology, the oryx may become involved in world politics.

The animals came from Saudi Arabia and will be returned there as soon as a strong world herd is established and the Saudis are able to preserve them, a zoo official explained. Meanwhile, Israel has asked for several oryx for a new game preserve.

"It's an international conservation effort," Homan noted, declining to comment further.

This monkey goes hog wild

SPRINGTOWN, Tex. (AP) — Farmer Odell Chadwell's hired hand is making a pig of himself.

It's a case of life-style, not greed, since the hired hand works for peanuts. Perhaps he merely grew tired of monkeying around.

"That thing believes it owns these hogs," Chadwell chuckled as he eyed the 40-pound monkey resting cowboy-style atop the fence rail surrounding his hog pen.

"We tried to keep it at the house at first," explained Chadwell's son Ken. "But the monkey didn't like it. It came down here to live with these hogs and it's been here ever since."

But nobody's complaining.

The monkey, named "Candy," has turned out to be an amazing pig keeper, the Chadwells say.

The small, red-faced monkey wanders around the hog pen, performing chores and supervising the activities of about 50 crossbred hogs on the Chadwell farm northwest of Fort Worth.

Acquired last year when Ken Chadwell took it in trade for a butane gas purchase, Candy gives special attention to sows and their litters.

WHAT A WONDERFUL WAY TO LOSE FAT!
THE "MODEL-ETTS" WAY HELPS CURB YOUR APPETITE
HELPS YOU LOSE THAT EXTRA WEIGHT
■ NO CALORIE COUNTING! ■ NO EXERCISES!
■ NO SPECIAL DIETS!
Thanks to a group of New York doctors, you can now lose pounds of ugly fat without going on any special diet, without cutting out any special foods.
HELPS REDUCE HUNGRY MOMENTS
These New York doctors discovered a food adjuvant called "MODEL-ETTS."
"Model-etts" does remarkable things. It helps you cut down your caloric intake by a natural automatic curbing of the appetite and of the desire for foods, resulting automatically in a reduced intake of food.
Before "Model-etts" was offered to you, it was tested clinically by the doctors on a large group of non-glandular overweight men and women.
The doctors carefully checked results, and here is what they found:
1. Weight losses of 6 to 20 pounds without any ill effects whatsoever.
2. 96% of the men and women who used "Model-etts" lost weight.
"Model-etts" is absolutely safe. It is a food adjuvant - not a drug.
So, start today to shed those unwanted pounds and inches. If your condition is glandular or organic, see your doctor. "Model-etts" may help you stay on the diet your doctor recommends. Ask him about it.
You can get a full month's supply of "Model-etts" for $3.00 on money back guarantee. In clinical tests, "Model-etts" was 96% successful. "Model-etts" may not be 100% successful in all cases, but you take no risk in trying "Model-etts" on our Money Back Guarantee.
Come to General Nutrition to get "MODEL-ETTS." The sooner you start, the sooner you may have the loss of weight you yearn for.
Sounds too good to be true, but it is true!
How Model-etts Curbs Your Appetite
In the opinion of the supervising physician, based on the average of weight losses in the clinical tests, his calculations showed that 1 Model-etts Wafer has the hunger satisfying capacity of 1 pound boiled potatoes or 4 eggs or 5 slices of white bread, yet it contains only 6 calories.

Taste it . . . and enjoy the most delicious and complete Vitamin C nutrition that ever melted in your mouth!
Why Nutrition Square Chewable Vitamin C Tablets are made with Natural Acerola Berries.
The tropical acerola berry is one of nature's wonders. It is amazingly rich in natural Vitamin C — up to 80 times as rich as an equal amount of orange juice. This concentrated C goodness adds a lot of taste pleasure, as well as nutritional value. And the tastiest way to get its benefits is in Nutrition Square chewable Vitamin C with Acerola tablets.
Nutritional science knows that you need Vitamin C every day. It affects every single cell in your body. Yet your body can't store it. But, without a sufficient supply of Vitamin C, your body can't manufacture a special cement called "collagen" — the cement that holds every single cell in the body together. So you can see how important it is to be sure of getting enough Vitamin C.
That's where Nutrition Square Natural Vitamin C with Acerola comes in. These new chewable Vitamin C tablets have such a wonderfully tangy true-fruit taste, people love to chew them like candy. Even kids who can't swallow pills will gladly chew their daily Nutrition Square Vitamin C with Acerola. They'll look forward to its melt-in-your-mouth goodness so much, they'll remind you to give it to them. (In fact, they'll probably ask for more — but how many you give them is between you and your doctor.)

'New England travel movie scheduled at Citrus College

"Robert Frost's New England" will open the "Tour America" film series of the Citrus College Community Service in the Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 23.

Narrated by Dewitt Jones, the film uses the poetry of Frost as a basis for exploring New England and meeting its people. Drawing on Frost's own experiences in New England, including his life as a farmer in New Hampshire, Jones illustrates in color film sequences the poet's strong belief in "education by presence."

"Robert Frost's New England" is the second film in a trilogy on North America. The first, the highly acclaimed "John Muir's High Sierra," was nominated for two Academy Awards, and won the Cine Golden Eagle Award as the best environmental film of the year.

A skilled film-maker before he was 30, Jones has produced films under the auspices of the National Geographic Society, for David Wolper Productions and for a number of national advertisers. His brilliant still photography has been seen in the National Geographic Magazine and other publications.

Jones is a graduate cum laude of Dartmouth College, and holds a master's degree from UCLA.

MERRY MAESTRO — Comedian Danny Kaye lets out a two-fingered whistle blast to catch the attention of members of the London Symphony Orchestra during a practice session in the Henry Wood Rehearsal Hall in London. He conducted the orchestra in "An Evening with Danny Kaye" Saturday.

Jazz concert

The Preservation Hall Jazz Band will present a concert in Gymnasium 3 at Mt. San Antonio College at 8 p.m. Saturday. Tickets at $4 general, $2 for students, are on sale at the MSAC Community Services Office and all ticket agencies.

The world-famous band, on tour from its home in New Orleans, is made up of the people who actually created the music — the men who were there when marches, quadrilles, blues, spirituals and ragtime all were merged into "jass," as it was called.

Members of the band who will be playing at the two-hour concert include Sing Miller, piano; Percy G. Humphrey, trumpet; Big Jim Robinson, trombone; Cie Frazier, drums; Allan Jaffe, tuba, and Willie J. Humphrey, clarinet.

The "youngster" in the Preservation Hall Jazz Band was born in 1910. All of the members of the band are over 60.

Jim Croce's records enjoying new revival

By Stephen Ford

NEW YORK (NEA) — A few years back, Jim Garner and Dick Van Dyke made a movie about an artist in Paris whose paintings never sell until he's believed dead. Then his work transforms into masterpieces and everyone scrambles for them.

With all due respect, one begins to wonder if the 1973 death of Jim Croce has set a herd of leprechauns to work repackaging his most ancient material wtih hopes of spinning gold from vinyl.

It seems more of Croce's work has appeared after his death than before and there's still another LP by him coming; this one a two-record set. Entitled "The Faces I've Been", it is an anthology culled from his pre-1971 material and is largely remakes of hits from the '50s. Croce's ability as an artist were growing with each album. He was tragically silenced just as he was polishing off his rougher spots. Sometimes, people expose a lot of new ones by rummaging out embryonic tapes the singer had never meant to be released or was glad had been forgotten.

Angels hitless in grand finale

OAKLAND (AP) — "Nothing was going to change our plans," explained Oakland A's Manager Alvin Dark, who wasn't planning on a no-hitter.

The A's made a little bit of baseball history Sunday as Vida Blue, Glenn Abbott, Paul Lindblad and Rollie Fingers combined to no-hit the California Angels in a 5-0 victory on the final day of the regular season.

The four-man effort sends the A's, seeking their fourth consecutive world championship, into the American League playoffs against Boston with a 98-64 record.

The A's relief star, Fingers, nailed down the major league's first four-man no-hitter with two innings of work which sent his earned run average under 3.00. Blue worked the first five innings to gain his 22nd victory and Abbott and Lindblad worked one inning each.

Blue was scheduled to go just five innings, in his final tuneup for a start in the second playoff game, and the no-hit bid wasn't going to change Dark's mind.

The left-handed starter said later, "I just wanted to come into the clubhouse and watch the football games."

The hot finish by the pitching staff and Reggie Jackson's 35th and 36th homers, tying him with Milwaukee's George Scott for the AL title, brightened up the clubhouse after the game, but there was concern over an injury Joe Rudi suffered in the third inning.

"The doctors tell me it's not as bad as last time," said Dark, "so I'm not going to say anything else until we find out exactly what's wrong."

First baseman Rudi left the game after hurting his left thumb swinging the bat. He tore ligaments in the same thumb in August and missed five weeks of play.

Jackson said early last week, after clubbing his 33rd and 34th homers in the pennant-clinching game against Chicago, that he'd like to tie rather than beat his old friend Scott in the home run race.

"To be realistic, I didn't have a very good chance to catch 'The Boomer,' but I was swinging for the fence every time. I'm happy that's the way it turned out," Jackson said.

The regular season turned out very well for A's owner Charles O. Finley, too, as a Fan Appreciation Day crowd of 22,000 made total attendance 1,077,000, by far an Oakland record and an increase of 240,000 over last season.

But neither Finley nor his players are satisfied.

There's that "Keep It Alive in '75" cry to live up to.

GRAND PRIX Formula 5000 cars race through downtown Long Beach Sunday. It was the first time in 23 years a major auto race had been held on city streets. Over 65,000 saw Brian Redman win.

65,000 watch L.B. Grand Prix

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The sounds of big league auto racing have echoed through city streets in the United States for the first time in 23 years, creating a happening that seemingly overshadowed the race.

There were people clinging to steep high-rise rooftops by their fingertips Sunday watching Brian Redman, of England win the inaugural Long Beach Grand Prix, a $100,000 race for powerful Formula 5000 cars.

Others packed apartment balconies, sat on the front porches of old folks' retirement hotels and watched from the ledges of fire escapes and threater marquees.

"I couldn't believe the crowd and the enthusiasm," said Redman, who won his second consecutive Formula 5000 series championship with the victory.

"If the crowds would like this in other street races, we'll I'd like to see all the other races street races."

Redman inherited the lead on the 35th lap of the 50-lap dash on the 2-mile course when Mario Andretti and aggressive Tony Brise, a newcomer from England, brokedown after leading the race and a spectacular duel.

Redman, a 16-year racing veteran, admitted he was driving conservatively after mechanical troubles in practice and eased his way home by a half-minute to win the $30,000 first prize. Vern Schuppan of Australia was second and won $16,000.

The crowd was estimated at 65,000 for the first major street race in this country since the Watkins Glen Grand Prix in New York in 1952.

Promoter Chris Pook said, "We've got a lot of edges to polish but I really expected more problems than we had."

One problem was a delay, caused partly by the crowd moving around, that forced the end of the race into dusk and put the setting sun into drivers' eyes on the swifest part of the course.

Another problem, Pook conceded, was attendance. He said a paid crowd of 52,000 was needed to break even for the event but the paid gate was announced at 46,500.

If attendance was less than expected, the total effect was more than hoped for. Pook said of the race that organizers hoped would brighten the conservatives image of this city of 380,000.

The organizers offered free weekend trips out of town to any of the many older retired people living along parts of the race course, but officials said only 100 or so individuals accepted and many heads were seen peering out of windows of the retirement homes.

The cars hit speeds of around 150 miles an hour past movie theaters and pizza parlors on the main street and 170 or more along the shoreline where ailboats cruised in the afternoon sun and the Queen Mary sat across an inlet.

"The course is a bit too tight," Redman said of the difficult, narrow track lined by four-ton concrete barriers and special crash cushions. Tight turns on the 12-turn course and wrenching hairpins kept Redman's winning average speed to 86.325 m.p.h. Pook said. "Quite frankly we wanted to keep the speed down on city streets for safety."

The race was safe — no injuries during the race itself after one crackup during practice that officials blamed on excessive speed on an access road.

Rams still own 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers' 10th straight loss to the Los Angeles Rams hurt just a little bit more than the first nine.

"I thought our defense played better than theirs did," said linebacker Frank Nunley after Sunday's 23-14 defeat on the second weekend of the National Football League season.

"We penalized ourselves right out of the game," said Coach Dick Nolan, painfully looking back at the holding call which took a 30-yard gain away from fullback Larry Schreiber, who had caught a Norm Snead pass, midway in the third period.

The 49ers led 14-6 at that point and had thoroughly dominated the game, yielding only 118 yards to Los Angeles' struggling offense. The officials carried the ball from the Rams' 35-yard line to the 49ers' 25, and three plays later Los Angeles scored on a blocked punt.

"The blocked punt gave us the momentum," said Coach Chuck Knox. "The special teams played a tremendous game."

Bill Simpson blocked Tom Wittum's punt attempt and Monte Jackson scooped up the loose ball and went six yards for the touchdown which cut San Francisco's lead to 14-13.

Tom Dempsey kicked his third field goal, a 51-yarder which tied the Rams' distance record, to give Los Angeles the lead early in the final quarter and James Harris clinched the victory with his first touchdown pass of the season, 22 yards to Lawrence McCutcheon with 2:47 left.

The victory moved the Rams into first place in the National Conference West with a 1-1 record, with San Francisco, Atlanta and New Orleans all 0-2.

"We were down and had to come back after last week," said Harris, who completed just one of 10 passes in the opening game loss to Dallas but finished with 15 completions for 193 yards Sunday.

Snead completed 13 of 22 attempts for 135 yards, with one pass traveling 30 yards to Gene Washington for a second period touchdown. He has not allowed an interception through two games.

"But we keep making crucial mistakes and getting crucial penalties. We have to be more consistent on offense," he said.

Wilbur Jackson, the 49ers' leading rusher last season, fumbled away the ball on the first play of the game to set up Dempsey's first field goal. Del Williams and Schreiber did most of the running after that, with Williams speeding 38-yard for a second quarter touchdown.

The 49ers lost their opener to Minnesota, conquerors of the Rams in last year's NFC title game, in another game settled in the final period. The schedule looks a lot easier from here on, starting with winless Kansas City next week.

"We should have beaten the Rams. Breakdowns hurt us again. However, we know we're capable of playing with anybody," said Gene Washington.

THAR SHE GOES! Tom Dempsey (10), Rams field goal kicker, raises his arms in victory gesture after 51-yard field goal against 49ers in San Francisco Sunday. Quarterback Ron Jaworski (16) and a host of unbelieving 49ers watch. Rams won, 23-14.

Cincy, A's favorites

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Harrah's Reno and Tahoe Racebook named the Oakland Athletics and the Cincinnati Reds favorites on Sunday to win their respective playoff contests for major league baseball pennants.

Oakland was made a 7-5 favorite to defeat the Boston Red Sox for the American League crown, and Cincinnati was picked as a 3-2 favorite over the Pittsburgh Pirates for the National League title, the club announced.

O.J. tops 200 again

By Associated Press

O.J. Simpson tied one of Jim Brown's myriad National Football League records—and the Buffalo Bills tied the Pittsburgh Steelers up in knots.

Simpson, who made a habit two years ago of piling up 200-plus-yard games en route to his 2,003-yard monster that shattered Jim Brown's single-season record of 1,863 yards, got his act together Sunday for the second straight week.

He turned the Steel Curtain defense into scrap iron, rambling for a mind-boggling 227 yards—88 of them on a touchdown jaunt—for his fourth 200-yard game, matching a mark set by the phenomenal Brown.

And it gave him an even 400 yards in two games, a performance which—even this early in the 14-game season—has people buzzing about his possibly shattering the 2,000-yard mark again.

Simpson's stampeding through the Steelers' supposedly invincible line and Joe Ferguson's touchdown passes of seven yards to Reuben Gant and 28 yards to Bob Chandler led the Bills to a 30-21 victory over the defending Super Bowl champions.

In the rest of the NFL it was Dallas 37, St. Louis 31 in overtime; Los Angeles 23, San Francisco 14; Oakland 31, Baltimore 20; New York Jets 30, Kansas City 24; Washington 49, New York Giants 13; Miami 22, New England 14; Minnesota 42, Cleveland 10; Houston 33, San Diego 17; Cincinnati 21, New Orleans 0; Chicago 15, Philadelphia 13, and Detroit 17, Atlanta 14. Green Bay is at Denver tonight.

Whenever O.J. does his thing, he always makes sure to spread the praise to his offensive line. Tackle Joe Greene, the anchor of the Pittsburgh defensive line, doesn't buy it.

"Forget that," he said. "The truth is there ain't nobody else got O.J.

"If you want me to tell you they got a good offensive line, I'm not going to say that," observed Greene, the mainstay of the Pittsburgh defense. "Juice is the one, though he'll never say that."

Simpson's big third-quarter run broke open the game, giving the Bills a 23-0 lead. They were bogged down on their own 12-yard line when he took a handoff on a third-and-one, swung to the outside and flitted down the right sideline. "When I turned the corner and saw daylight, I thought about running the 100-yard dash down in the Superstars," he said, referring to the celebrity competition he dominated last winter in Florida.

"A few times last year it looked like I didn't go all the way when I could have and some of the guys here were kidding me about not having any speed. But I shut them up when I ran a 9.6 in tennis shoes at the Superstars and I showed them today, too."

Franco Harris bulled in twice from one yard out for two of the Steelers belated touchdowns.

Dodgers' loss typifies season

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — The Dodgers' final game of 1975 typified a frustrating season.

In losing a 4-2 decision to the Houston Astros Sunday at Dodger Stadium, the Angelenos saw an early lead go down the drain; outhit the opposition, 8-6, but produced fewer runs because they left 10 runners on base.

Lack of the big punch stranded three runners in the third when the Dodgers scored one run. It also left two men on base in both the eighth and ninth innings after the Astros had scored four times in the top of the eighth.

The starting pitching was good, but Charlie Hough had an off day.

Hough (3-7) tried to field an easy tap by pinch-hitter Greg Gross with his chest to open the eighth. Wilbur Howard sacrificed and Gross scored on Art Gardner's hit.

Hough hit Jose Cruz and Cliff Johnson followed with his 20th home run and that was the game.

Prior to Hough's appearance, Rick Rhoden had pitched seven innings of shutout ball before tiring.

The Dodgers' puny attack against Jim York (4-3) netted a fourth-inning run on a walk, Tommy Helms' error, a hit batter and a sacrifice fly. They scored in the ninth on three singles.

A turnout of 36,507 brought the season attendance to 2,539,349. That's a decrease of 93,125 from last year. But it's a tribute to Dodger fans who continued to come out in large numbers even though the team actually was never in the pennant race after late May.

The defending National League champions finished second with an 88-74 record (as compared to 102-60 last year), 20 games behind Cincinnati.

However, a late season spurt (12 wins in 19 games AFTER the Reds clinched the pennant) has persuaded the Dodger brass that no serious problems exist.

The collapse this year (42 wins and 44 losses in June, July and August when there was a pennant to be won) is being charged to injuries and a batting slump that engulfed the whole team.

"Our pitching is pretty good," summarized manager Walter Alston. "Our defense is better. We lacked in run production. If everybody comes back healthy, it might take a little care of that problem . . . I'd like to see a healthy (Bill) Buckner, (Bill) Russell and (Joe) Ferguson. But I think I'd like a little more power to go with it."

As a team, Alston's crew made 157 fewer hits and scored 150 fewer runs than last year. There were 21 fewer home runs and 14 fewer doubles.

The Angelenos also wound up dead last in executing doubleplays for the second year in a row. But Alston doesn't think that's any problem.

"I think that speaks well of our pitching staff," he theorized. If the pitching staff doesn't let runners get on, you're not going to make as many doubleplays."

It sounds good. But if it's true, why the talk of shifting Dave Lopes to short and Russell back to center (or trading him)?

DODGER DATA — Steve Garvey had one hit and finished with 210 (same as Pete Rose) three less than Philadelphia's Dave Cash. Garvey hit .310.

Lee Lacy went 1-for-5 and finished with a .314 mark. Lopes did not play and wound up with 77 steals, a .262 average and 108 runs scored.

Players claim action is illegal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Football League Players Association accused the club owners today of acting illegally in their efforts to seek acceptance of a new collective bargaining agreement.

"We believe that the owners have engaged in illegal conduct throughout the past year but most particularly in the past week in their efforts to go around the union in order to force acceptance of a contract offer," Ed Garvey, union executive director, told a House labor subcommittee.

Citing events of the two past weeks in the contract negotiations that have dragged on for the past 20 months, Garvey said management refused to bargain on a contract offer made last Monday, so each team voted on the proposal.

"In many of the meetings the owner of the team or the general manager came to the meeting to argue for acceptance," he said. "In at least one case the players were told that if they vote to reject the offer, they are voting to strike.

"In other instances the players were told that if they did not accept this offer that the next offer will contain less and in practically every case they were told that the pension plan, which includes the widow's benefit as well as disability benefits, would be terminated unless this agreement is accepted."

Garvey said the players rejected the offer by a nearly 8 to 1 vote, despite the pressure from management.

The union executive director said the association could file illegal conduct charges with the National Labor Relations Board but by the time the complaints were issued, a hearing held and a final determination, 60 to 80 per cent of the players would be out of football.

Stanford impressed

By The Associated Press

The Stanford Cardinals might take heart that when San Jose State last beat them in 1971, they went on to defeat Michigan in the Rose Bowl.

However, that fact did not seem to impress anyone in the Cardinal's dressing room following the 18-ranked Pacific-8 team's unexpected 36-34 loss to the Spartans Saturday.

"I definitely feel San Jose State should be in the rankings someplace," said Stanford coach Jack Christainsen, whose team fell to a 0-2-1 record.

"I don't think the final score was indicative of the game," he added. "San Jose dominated it most of the time."

Undefeated in three outings, the Spartans held a 30-7 halftime lead and held on for the win despite Stanford's late rally.

"We tried not to be too conservative," said Spartan coach Darryl Rogers, adding that the final score was a little too close for comfort.

White not suffering a loss, third-ranked Southern California also experienced a little more trouble than expected Saturday in fending off Purdue in Los Angeles.

The Big 10's Boilermakers dominated the scoreless first half before Southern California's Danny Reece scored on punt returns of 47 and 68 yards sparking the Trojans' regroup for a 19-6 win.

Trojan quarterback Vince Evans marshalled a 72-yard drive in the third quarter and capped it with a one yard run. Then came Reece's two long punt returns which put the game out of the reach of the Boilermakers, who took their third straight loss before a crowd of 56,170.

More surprising perhaps was UCLA's 20-20 tie with Air Force at the Falcon's Colorado base. Air Force rallied for 17 points in the third quarter for the draw with the 10th ranked Bruins.

"I can't remember when we had a more emotional output against such a super team," said obviously happy Air Force Coach Ben Martin.

"We thought our only chance in the game was to open up the offense, and we did that with good protection and with the receivers really looking out for the ball. We used mostly sprintouts going away from the pressure."

UCLA Coach Dick Vermeil said he felt the key to the game "was our four turnovers, and them eating our defense alive throwing the ball."

In Pullman, Wash., California overcame a third quarter deficit and defeated Washington State 33-21 in a Pac-8 Conference game.

"We always entertain the fans," said Bears Coach Mike White of games between the two colleges. "Today's game was just like always."

Down 21-20, California put together a 95-yard scoring drive that ended early in the fourth quarter with a touchdown by quarterback Joe Roth. But the two-point conversion try failed.

Freshman Paul Jones completed a 60-yard drive late in the quarter for the final touchdown. Jones also scored the game's first points on a two-yard first-quarter dash.

Oregon State visited Lawrence, Kan. only to be trounced 20-0 by Kansas. Kansas never permitted the Beavers to wander beyond their hosts' 26. The loss gives the Beavers an 0-3 mark.

The Oregon Ducks, meanwhile, stretched their losing skein to 11 games as Minnesota's Brian Kocourek kicked a 37-yard field goal with 32 seconds to play, inching the Gophers to a 10-7 win in Minneapolis.

Oregon scored its first touchdown in over 10 quarters of play when little Greg Bauer dashed unnoticed into the corner of the end zone to take a 15-yard scoring pass from Jack Henderson late in the final quarter.

In Los Angeles, wide receiver Ed August caught two long-scoring bombs from teammate Dave August as San Francisco State triumphed 21-14 over Cal State Los Angeles in a non-conference game. San Francisco is 1-1-1 with the victory, while the Diablos are 0-2.

UC-Davis quarterback Adam Williams intercepted a Northridge State pass and dashed 84 yards as the Davis team dumped its visitors 20-3.

Northridge's only score came on a 40-yard field goal by Dan Peverini in the second period.

Cal Poly-Pomona downed Northern Arizona 3-0 in a defensive battle in Pomona. Al Crumlish kicked a 27-yard field goal with only a second remaining in the first half for the game's only score.

Tailback Gary Davis of Pomona's Garey High, bettered 100 yards for the fifth consecutive game in leading Cal Poly San Luis Obispo to a 23-10 victory over Fullerton State in San Luis Obispo. Davis averaged 4.7 yards a carry and totalled 150 of Poly's 222 rushingyards.

Poor night for Czonka

By The Associated Press

It wasn't one of Larry Csonka's better performances.

The former Miami Dolphin star, who abandoned the National Football League in favor of a lucrative contract with the World Football League, was supposed to tear up WFL defenses this season.

Sunday night, however, Csonka was less than overpowering, gaining only six yards on seven carries as his Memphis team met San Antonio. Ex-Dolphin teammates Jim Kiick, 37 yards on eight carries, and Paul Warfield, three catches for 58 yards, didn't help much either as the Grizzlies were beaten 25-17 by the Wings.

San Antonio, the Western Divison leader, built a 25-3 halftime lead and hung on for its seventh victory in 10 outings. Memphis, leader in the East, dropped to 6-2.

Shreveport beat the Hawaiians 32-25 in Sunday's other WFL game. Saturday Southern California got by Charlotte 24-17 and Jacksonville dumped Birmingham 26-18.

Defensive back Larry Crowe set up a first-period touchdown for San Antonio with a 35-yard punt return and then ran back a kickoff 57 yards to set up a second-period TD. Billie Sadler got both scores with short runs.

Johnnie Walton's 15-yard pass to Dave Yaege accounted for the other Wings' TD. Memphis made it close in the second half when running back John Harvey threw a 49-yard touchdown pass to Ed Marshall and then ran eight yards for another score.

The announced attendance at San Antonio was 16,283.

Edd Hargett was the big gun for Shreveport, 4-5, throwing for touchdowns of 69 yards to Ricky Scales, 16 yards to Jim Nance and 11 yards to John Odom. Nance also rushed for 113 yards and one touchdown.

The Steamer built an 18-0 lead before the Hawaiians, 3-5, rallied behind reserve quarterback Rick Cassata who completed a 21-yard TD pass to Steve Haggerty to pull within seven points with 6½ minutes left. But a last-ditch Hawaiians' threat ended when Darryl Johnson intercepted a pass on the goal line in the final minute of play.

Attendance was listed at 21,349.

Anthony Davis ran for 101 yards on 22 carries and caught seven passes for another 109 yards for Southern California, 5-4. The Sun defense limited Charlotte, 4-4, to 63 yards on the ground and picked off five Hornet passes.

George Mira completed 14 of 25 passes for 223 yards and a pair of touchdowns for Jacksonville, 5-3. Mira put the Express ahead for good with a 40-yard scoring aerial to Steve Barrios in the fourth quarter. Birmingham is now 6-3.

Hill is the non-loser

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Dave Hill, the gritty beneficiary of a lot of other people's mistakes, was attempting to explain his victory in the Sahara Invitational Golf Tournament.

"I've said it before and I'll say it again. More golf tournaments are lost than won. And this one definitely was lost," he said.

"After this, I'm going back to believing in miracles."

The sometimes-stormy Hill, whose 17-year career has been marked by countless fines, suspensions, controversies, legal actions and now 12 victories, claimed the title and the $27,000 first prize Sunday when Rik Massengale's bold gamble for the green ended in the water on the first sudden death playoff hole and skinny ol' Davy won it with a safe, cautious, routine par.

"I was just fortunate to get in the playoff," said Hill, who had made double-bogey six after leaving it in a fairway bunker on the ninth hole at the 6,800-yard Sahara-Nevada Country Club course.

"I figured the game was over," Hill said. "The way I played the first nine holes my handicap should be about eight. From then on I was just trying to find a golf swing."

But his game suddenly came right. He played the back nine in 32 while the other contenders—six different players either led or shared the lead at one time on the hot, sunny day—fired and fell back.

Bruce Crampton hit it out of bounds on the 15th hole. George Cadle lost his share of the lead when he found the water on the same hole. Bob Wynn drifted back. Bobby Mitchell never really got it going.

"After I birdied the 15th," Hill said, "my caddy told me I was tied for the lead. The only thing I could think was: 'four or five of them other guys must have suddenly withdrew.'"

They hadn't. They'd just fallen back in the brilliant sunshine that sent the desert temperatures soaring to the 100-degree mark.

Hill also birdied the 17th from short range just about the time Massengale, playing in front of him, birdied the 18th. It gave each of them a last round 69 and a 270 total for 72 holes, 14 under par on the beautifully conditioned little layout that provided some of the lowest scoring and one of the tightest races of the year.

The playoff was over when Massengale tried to reach the green on the par-five first hole in two.

"I felt a lot better about things when I saw him reach in the bag and pull out a wood," Hill said.

Massengale put it in the water.

It was all over. Massengale, so upset his hands were visably shaking, played out to a bogey and Hill had it.

Joe Inman had a shot at the playoff but, on the final hole, missed a three-foot putt. He finished with a 67 and a tie at 271, one shot back, with Mitchell. Mitchell had a closing 70.

Cadle and Crampton, playing on his 40th birthday, each had the lead alone at one time, but finished in a tie at 272 with Charles Coody and Don January. January had a fiveunder-par 66. Coody shot 68 and Cadle and Crampton matched 70.

Vesco tops 300; record not official

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (AP)—The governing board of the Federation Internationale Motocycliste is to consider at a meeting next month in Belgium whether to regard as official a speed record set here over the weekend by motorcycle speedster Don Vesco of El Cajon, Calif.

Vesco, after trying for more than a month to top the 300 m.p.h. mark on the salt flats, flashed to a 302.9 m.p.h. average on two runs. FIM rules say a record must be the average of two runs over the measured mile, and within one hour.

The 36-year-old Californian's mark was made in his streamlined Silver Bird-1 Yamaha, which was powered by two 750 cc engines.

The run topped the record 299.5 m.p.h he did on Saturday.

The runs were clocked by American Motorcycle Association timers, and a publicist for Vesco said they were fast enough for recognition by the AMA and the FIM, the international sanctioning body.

Vesco also set a new AMA mark of 303.8 m.p.h. on two runs nearly two hours apart. That's the U.S. association's time limit between runs.

Vesco was stymied by wind and what he called poor salt conditions during the annual Bonneville Salt Flats Speed Week in August. He made 12 major runs during his four days at the flats this month.

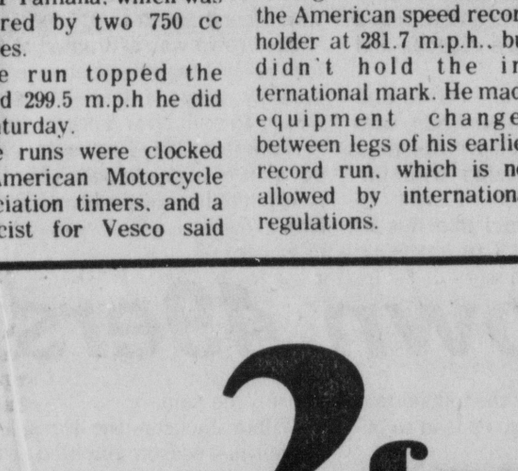

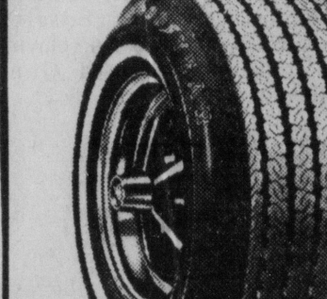

Vesco said the salt flats, which motorcyclists and auto speed drivers have said are deteriorating, were "bumpy as a motocross course" on the south end.

Before this record-setting week, Vesco was the American speed record holder at 281.7 m.p.h., but didn't hold the international mark. He made equipment changes between legs of his earlier record run, which is not allowed by international regulations.

Managers biting dust

By Associated Press

Major league baseball managers may have more job security than South American politicians, but not much more.

The ax fell on two necks Sunday with the promise of more to come as the 1975 regular season came to a close. Del Crandall was fired by the Milwaukee Brewers and Frank Quilici was dismissed by the Minnesota Twins. That brought the number of managers fired during the season to eight.

Two of them—Billy Martin, who went from Texas to the New York Yankees, and Bill Virdon, from the Yanks to Houston—found immediate employment. The others—Crandall, Quilici, Jack McKeon of Kansas City, Yogi Berra of the Mets, Preston Gomez of Houston and Clyde King of Atlanta— are still looking.

The firings of Crandall and Quilj did not come as great surprises. Both presided over losing teams—the Brewers finished 68-94, the Twins 76-83— whose managements had better things in mind.

Crandall, who spent 3½ years as Brewer manager, was dismissed before his club's final game. He saw it coming.

"I think the way the situation was, I had a little time to prepare myself for the inevitable," the former Milwaukee Braves catcher said. "Things seemed to be going in that direction."

Among the possible successors is Hank Aaron, the 41year-old all-time home run king in the twilight of a brilliant career. Brewer officials admitted Aaron is a candidate. Aaron played it cagy.

Cowboys win in sudden death

Cowboys 37, Cardinals 31

"It was the most exciting game I've ever been in," said Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach, whose three-yard scoring pass to Billy Joe Dupree with 7:53 gone in sudden-death overtime beat the Cards.

"I thought we had it put away but the Cardinals just kept coming back," Staubach said. "But Lee Roy Jordan (middle linebacker) gave us the game with that interception. He saved it for us." Jordan intercepted St. Louis quarterback Jim Hart and returned it 38 yards to the Cardinal 37-yard line to set up the winning touchdown.

Hart pitched four touchdown passes for St. Louis, the last a 37-yarder to Mel Gray with 46 seconds to go to send the game into a fifth period.

Raiders 31, Colts 20

Cornerback Neal Colzie returned four Baltimore punts for 104 yards, three of them setting up scores, and ran 38 yards with a fourth-quarter interception that helped Oakland overhaul and stave off the upstart Colts.

Jets 30, Chiefs 24

John Riggins ran for 145 yards and two touchdowns and Carl Garrett tacked on 135 yards and a score in the Jets' victory over Kansas City.

Redskins 49, Giants 13

A defensive line that sacked New York quarterbacks eight times and two touchdown strikes apiece by Billy Kilmer and Randy Johnson highlighted Washington's walloping of the Giants.

Dolphins 22, Patriots 14

Don Nottingham, promoted to the starting lineup after Larry Csonka defected to the World Football League, broke loose for 120 yards—all but 15 of them in the second half, to wake up the Dolphins, who spotted New England a 14-0 lead on a pair of Neil Graff touchdown passes.

Vikings 42, Browns 10

Fran Tarkenton passed for two touchdowns—29 yards to John Gilliam and 13 yards to Chuck Foreman—and ran two yards for another score in Minnesota's mauling of the Browns.

Oilers 33, Chargers 17

Defensive lineman Curley Culp scored his first pro touchdown in eight years, running 38 yards with a Jesse Freitas fumble on the opening play of the fourth quarter to lock up the Oilers' victory over San Diego. Running backs Ronnie Coleman and Don Hardeman each rushed for more than 100 yards and scored a touchdown for Houston.

Bengals 21, Saints 0

Ken Anderson passed for three touchdowns—52 and five yards to Isaac Curtis and 14 yards to Charley Joiner—in the Bengals' silencing of Cincinnati. Anderson played three quarters and completed 17 of 22 passes for 203 yards.

Bears 15, Eagles 13

Rookie running back Walter Payton seemed to have killed a Chicago threat when he was nailed with a clipping penalty and then a personal foul against the Eagles. But he shrugged it off, caught three passes for 27 yards and rushed for 23 to set up Bob Thomas' game-winning 26-yard field goal with eight seconds left.

"I didn't feel any pressure because they were calling penalties against me," said Payton. "I just felt pressure because the clock was running out and we were trying to get in field goal position."

Lions 17, Falcons 14

Detroit converted fourth-down gambles on two touchdown drives and tripped the Falcons on Altie Taylor's one-yard plunge with barely a minute to play.

"I just had that feeling," Lions' Coach Rick Forzano said of his fourth-down gambling. "I'm just built that way—to take chances.

Broncos host Packers on TV

DENVER (AP) — Their reaction wasn't recorded, but Denver's Otis Armstrong and Green Bay's John Brockington must have at least sighed when they learned of O.J. Simpson's rushing feat Sunday.

The Juice galloped for 227 yards, giving him an even 400 for the season in just two games and a whopping lead over his competition...if there is any.

Armstrong and Brockington had been considered prime contenders for the National Football League rushing title, which was won by Armstrong last year with 1,407 yards. But both have a long way to go now. Armstrong ran for 82 yards in the season opener last week, and Brockington got 55.

They'll be looking for improvement tonight when the Denver Broncos and the Green Bay Packers meet in a nationally televised game.

Armstrong admits that going against a runner of Brockington's stature gives him an added incentive. He may have even

Ali continues as 2-1 choice

MANILA (AP) — Gamblers' odds still favor Muhammad Ali, but local sentiment has taken a sharp shift to challenger Joe Frazier two days before their battle for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world.

This was evident both at Saturday's official weigh-in and at brief workouts Sunday where unofficial noise meters showed the usual "Ali, Ali, Ali" chants drowned out by "Go, Go, Smokin' Joe."

Unquestionably, Ali's marital problems last week cut heavily into his popularity in this highly religious, family-oriented little country as well as perhaps in other parts of the world.

Ali continues a 2-1 choice with Los Vegas bookmakers but promoter Don King reported he has been informed these odds were almost certain to tighten before the 10:45 a.m. starting bell Wednesday (7:45 p.m., PDT, Tuesday).

Promoters expect the indoor coliseum to be a 25,567 sellout, with a gross of $1.8 million. Headquarters reports are of quickening interest in the 68 countries where closed circuit TV is being sold."

"Tragedy money is hard to take delight in," said King, admitting that Ali's problems with his wife, Belinda, conceivably could bolster the television gate, estimated at a likely $22 million.

Nerves A Cause of 'Pins, Needles'

By DR. W.P. HELZER, D.C.

An important "good health-keeping" point was illustrated recently with the question: "What is the cause of pins and needles in the hands and arms up to the elbows?"

The point: The diagnosis of a problem and the patient's understanding of it is often as important as the Doctor's treatment.

Dr. Wes Helzer, D.C.

"This particular person, a man in his fifties, complained of the 'pins and needles' problem. He said he had the condition for about two months."

While there was a fairly definite idea of the cause of the tingling sensation, he was told that exact diagnosis of his problem was necessary.

You realize we can't be just "popping off" when a patient asks a question. We must be able to look him square in the eye and give a firm answer.

In this case, he was thoroughly examined and found to have a nerve and cirulatory problem, with pressure on a nerve the cause. The pressure wasn't where the sensation occurred, but was in the neck. Of course, you realize that the nerve trunks extend out and down the spinal column in the neck.

Furthermore, in this individual's case, arthritic changes in the bones were exerting the pressure. Needless to say, the man is being treated for the problem right now, and in his words, "successfully."

And now to the second point: "patient understanding." When a person has, as in this case, the tingling sensation in the arm, it helps if he understands some of the contributing factors to his problem. Pressure of this nature often develops if he remains in a certain position for a long time. Of course, this would mean the manner in which he lies down to sleep. In other words, diet, habit, activity, so many things, can help or hinder a patient's progress or affect the acuteness of a disease. You, therefore, must have a Doctor's accurate diagnosis and the patient's full understanding of the problem.

ROP offering 50 programs in its third year

The Baldy View Regional Occupational Program which serves five local school districts started its third year of operation this fall by offering 50 training programs for high school students at numerous community locations.

Career center specialists who recruit students at each of the high schools to participate in the program were recently guided through the Del Mar Campus of Baldy View ROP in Montclair.

During the summer, this campus underwent modernization and was provided with new modern equipment to assist in the specialized training offered.

Programs in operation at Del Mar campus are auto body and fender repair, brake and transmission servicing, autotronics, motorcycle repair and greenhouse-nursery operations.

The equipment added this summer includes a spray paint booth capable of completely spraying a vehicle under dust-proof conditions, a distributing machine used to detect engine trouble and an Engine Analysis Scope capable of being used on motorcycles.

The ROP center already has a state-approved smog license and is applying for a state brake and headlight adjusting license.

Created in 1972 to serve the job training needs of high school students, Baldy View RPO is sponsored by Bonita, Chaffey, Chino, Claremont and Pomona school districts.

Its governing commission consists of a member of the board of education from each of the cooperating school districts.

ROP is financed entirely from local and state funds. More than 60 ROP programs encompass 95 per cent of California's school districts.

The program operates in cooperation with high schools, community colleges, adult schools, hospitals and private businesses to develop vocational training opportunities. The students take their basic classes on the home campus and the special courses at various training centers.

Youths are selected for the program by the high school career center specialists, based on requests, aptitudes and other academic criteria.

Among the 50 different occupational programs offered are training in airline occupations, pilot training, automotive skills, construction, cosmetology, retail sales, nursing and hospital occupations, restaurant occupations, modeling, welding and electronics.

While some occupational classes meet on high school campuses, most are held in stores, hospitals or airports.

High school students wishing additional information should contact the career center specialist on their campus or call 626-3538.

Community Center opening Sunday

A grand opening for the long-awaited Neighborhood Community Center at Fifth and D streets in Chino tentatively is set for Sunday, Oct. 5.

Recreation officials and local youths are putting the final touches on the center, which will be located in the old GI Cafe in the Chino barrio.

James Stager has been appointed full-time director of the center, which is being supported by funds from the city, school district, and Recreation Commission. About $26,000 has been set aside for the program.

The project was proposed by the Chino Community Action Council, a Mexican-American parents group which has been trying to halt gang violence in the barrio.

Instead of resorting to gangs as their only activity, it is hoped that youths will make use of the recreation center.

Various activities, including arts and crafts, movies and sports will be available at the center. Mothers, children and senior citizens will use it mornings, and in the evenings, youths will utilize it after school.

Although closed on Friday nights, the center will be open from 1 to 7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Stager has said that two part-time employes will be hired to help staff the building, and volunteers will be used.

3 persons suffer minor injuries

Three persons suffered minor injuries in valley traffic accidents Saturday, Sunday and early this morning.

Mrs. Bonnie R. W. Collins, 30, of Clarksville, Tenn., was hurt when the front axle of her car broke as she was driving along the San Bernardino Freeway near Kellogg Drive, Pomona area, at 1 a.m. today.

The highway patrol said her car swerved and struck another driven by John W. Poteet Jr., 25, of San Pedro, driving it into a bridge abutment. Poteet was not hurt. Mrs. Collins was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital. She was treated and released.

An 11-year-old boy on a bicycle escaped with minor injuries when he ran into a slowly moving car driven by an 81-year-old man on Wagon Horse Road east of Summit Road, La Verne area, Saturday morning.

Ralph G. Morris, of 2578 Sierra Way, La Verne, the driver, told patrolmen the boy came down a driveway and did not see the oncoming car because of a parked van that blocked his view. The bicyclist, Steven A. Mineer, 11, of 314 W. Rough Rider Road, La Verne, was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Antonia V. Artz, 53, of Inglewood, was hurt slightly Sunday night when her car went out of control and struck a guard rail on the Pomona Freeway west of Euclid Avenue, Ontario area. She did not require medical aid.

AT SYMPOSIUM

Community hospital medical staff donates $100,000

The medical staff of Pomona Valley Community Hospital has donated $100,000 to the hospital for educational programs and equipment in the medical library, 10 classrooms and the new Russell K. Pitzer Auditorium, announced Dr. Fritz H. Moser, president of the medical staff.

The presentation was announced at a recent two-day medical Symposium to dedicate the auditorium. Two hundred physicians from Southern California participated in seminars which focused on diagnosis and treatment of trauma in the emergency room, the management of acute and chronic pulmonary problems and an update of cancer management.

Physicians were greeted at the symposium by Robert W. Burwell, administrator of the hospital. His opening remarks were carried over the public address system which had been installed just the day before.

The auditorium, library and classrooms are located in the new wing of the hospital at 1798 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, which was dedicated in July, although not all equipment was installed at that time.

Chairmen for the three major seminars were Dr. Robert Dukes, emergency room; Dr. Shirley Martin, pulmonary; and Dr. Morton Kolber, cancer management.

The medical symposium held this weekend is the first in a series of medical programs scheduled for both professionals in medical fields and the general public within the next few months.

Programs already scheduled in the auditorium will center on such subjects as cancer education, child abuse, nutritional and public health information.

Claremont will scan city through special census

Census takers will begin visiting Claremont homes Oct. 22 to gain information for a special census.

The city's last official census, 23,464, was taken in 1970, but the state, using data sent by city officials, has estimated that as of Jan. 1, 1975, Claremont had 24,950 residents.

The special census will allow city officials "to get a better handle on the community's demographic situation, including average income, labor market, number and type of housing units," reported Bill Wojtkowski, city planning associate.

Wojtkowski said that the census might provide economic benefits in the form of more gasoline taxes and Department of Motor Vehicles fees, which the state collects and pays to cities on the basis on per capita population.

The enumerator who calls at residences will wear an identification badge signed by a city official.

"We expect the first visits to cover the entire city in about a week," Wojtkowski explained. "Callbacks for persons not contacted on the first visit will be completed in the first week in November."

Wojtkowski said that the enumerator will ask such questions as "How far do you drive to work?" "How many children do you have?"

Wojtkowski explained that the latter two questions will be of aid to the Claremont school district.

If no will, there's no way

It has proven easier to banish smallpox from the earth than what has been called "mankind's last scourge" — illiteracy.

There are more than 800 million illiterate people in the world and their number is increasing, says UNESCO, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. And one major reason why years of effort and expenditure have not had greater impact on the problem is lack of will.

This conclusion is based on an analysis of literacy projects in UNESCO's Experimental World Literacy Program. Thirteen countries in three continents took part in the program — Algeria, Ethiopia, Guinea, Madagascar, Mali, Sudan, Tanzania, India, Iran, Syria and Ecuador. The degree of success of the projects varied as widely as the countries themselves.

At the beginning of the experiment, says the program's report, "most countries knew how to approach (and in some cases achieve) much more massive literacy as a part of broader socio-economic change, if they wanted to."

But most apparently did not want to. Only Tanzania was stimulated to launch a mass campaign. An eventual worldwide campaign for the eradication of illiteracy, hoped for when the program was launched, is not yet in sight.

"Neither literacy nor development can be willed into existence by international agencies," says UNESCO. "At best they can perhaps prick the conscience of national governments."

A breakthrough

Ethnic mix fails to make friends

You can lead kids of different racial or ethnic backgrounds to the same school but you can't make them drink of the cup of fellowship.

That of course, is not the purpose of presently strenuous — and controversial — busing efforts. But if anyone hopes that a greater respect of students for each other, if not friendship, will result from integration, recent research does not support that hope.

According to Dr. Robert J. Wuthnow, assistant professor of sociology at the University of Arizona, a study of 4,500 high school students in three eastern communities suggests that prejudiced attitudes are actually more prevalent in schools with a greater ethnic mix than in those with virtually no minority group members.

The results of the study have been published in a new book, "Adolescent Prejudice," co-authored by Wuthnow and three other researchers.

"Instead of backing up the current belief that prejudice is lessened if there are minorities present in a school to get to know, we found that just the opposite was the case," says Wuthnow.

Because it was funded by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, the study focused primarily on anti-Semitism, but its findings would seem to be universally applicable.

The proportion of Jewish students was 50 per cent in one school, 25 per cent in the second and none in the third, while about 15 per cent of each school's enrollment were black children.

Gentile students in the school with the highest Jewish enrollment were most inclined to demonstrate jealousy about Jews' academic successfulness and to hold stereotyped ideas about Jews.

Evidence was found that throughout the high school years, both majority and minority parents put increasing pressure on their children to date within their own groups. Similarly, the students' listings of their closest friends showed few cross-cultural associations.

In each of the schools, however, it was the better students — "those more intellectually advanced" — who expressed a better understanding of the roots of prejudice.

"If we are to overcome prejudice," says Wuthnow, "our pitch to the schools should be more than physical integration, because the kids just don't seem to get along very well."

The key, he says, seems to be in explaining why there are cultural differences. We can't deny that there are differences, so schools should teach the social and historical reasons for the differences.

The public forum

Opinion is not a ruling

Dear Editor:

In Chino, Citizens for Improved Education realize with one member of the board as editor of the local newspaper, we do not always get impartial coverage. But it is with great shock to have the Progress Bulletin, which is normally impartial, bias our cause.

In the September 24th issue of the Progress Bulletin, the headlines read, "County Counsel Rules Chino Waiting Lists Legal". The person preparing the title was either biased or uninformed. The public should know the facts.

A county counsel is merely an attorney representing the district. He merely gives an opinion, which does not weigh any more legally than the opinion given by the private attorney to CIE. A county counsel cannot rule on a law, he merely gives an opinion. The interpretation of the law when two attorney's opinions differ can be taken to the courts to be ruled on as to legality.

Currently, therefore, as to the matter of the waiting lists, the legality has still not been ruled on.

Who okayed assassinations?

WASHINGTON — The Senate report on CIA assassination attempts has been held up while the senators make a final, probably futile effort to find out who authorized the plots against foreign rulers.

Still unresolved is whether past Presidents were aware of the murder plots. Did men like Dwight Eisenhower, John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon sometimes behave in a manner more befitting a Mafia godfather than President of the United States?

There are two possibilities, both profoundly disturbing. Either the killings had presidential approval, or the CIA arranged them without authorization.

The evidence before the Senate Intelligence Committee is inconclusive. CIA officials, testifying in secret, denied getting any assassination orders from the White House. They admitted under cross examination, however, that they would lie to protect the President.

The same witnesses also denied that the CIA had plotted to kill anyone without authorization. Yet they could never seem to identify who had granted the authorization.

This point is equally vague in the documents that the CIA delivered to the committee. Invariably, the secret memos dealing with assassination plots are unsigned. Some have a name typed at the bottom; others bear no name at all.

There is some evidence that Presidents may have authorized the CIA's participation in an occasional coup or kidnaping. For example, President Kennedy apparently approved an August 23, 1963 cable directing the U.S. embassy in Saigon to arrange the overthrow of South Vietnam's President Ngo Dinh Diem.

There was also secret testimony that President Nixon personally gave CIA chief Richard Helms the green light to go ahead with the 1970 kidnaping of Chile's Gen. Rene Schneider. Nixon allegedly told Helms that Henry Kissinger would be his White House contact on the scheme.

But it was emphatically denied that the Diem and Schneider killings were ever part of the original plans. The Diem coup got out of control, and Schneider put up unexpected resistance, it was explained.

Hints were dropped that the White House wasn't kept entirely in the dark about the assassination plots. As one witness put it, the late CIA chief Allen Dulles informed Presidents of the dirty work by "circumlocution."

Most committee members reportedly believe that past Presidents approved, or at least condoned, the assassination plots but that no record was kept. This gave the Presidents what a draft report calls "plausible deniability."

The draft report runs about 200 pages and is bound in a looseleaf folder. But pages are still being taken out to be rewritten. Key witnesses have also been called back for additional questioning. The assassination report may not be ready, therefore, until the end of the month.

However, here are the committee's preliminary findings:

—In 1960, the CIA plotted to do away with the troublesome Congolese leader, Patrice Lumumba. One method that was explored was poisoning. An official announcement claimed he was slain on Feb. 12, 1961 by Congolese tribesmen after his escape from prison. But according to one bizarre, unconfirmed account, he was given only whiskey to drink and died of alcoholic poisoning. In any event, CIA witnesses denied that the agency had anything to do with his final demise.

—In late 1960, the CIA recruited two Mafia mobsters to knock off Cuba's Premier Fidel Castro. The attempts on Castro's life continued until the spring of 1963. Castro not only was aware of the attempts to kill him, the draft report notes, but also threatened to retaliate against U.S. leaders. The report offers no evidence, however, that Castro had anything to do with the subsequent assassination of President Kennedy a few weeks later.

The chicken roost

The Massachusetts State Legislature is our nation's oldest.

Recently the chambers of that historic lawmaking body were invaded by Americans.

Half-a-hundred ruffians intruded on the house chamber while it was in session, scuffled with guards until several persons were injured, some arrested.

The rude intruders were demanding more welfare!

The liberals who were so convinced that all we had to do was feed and shelter everybody and we'd have a happy, orderly society have to be having some second thoughts about that. They are.

Through the New Deal, the Fair Deal, the New Frontier and the Great Society — so-called "liberal" Americans remained convinced that we could purchase peace, abroad and at home.

That all we had to do was to feed everybody and everybody would be content. So they continued blithely to tax and spend, and suddenly today there are 71.6 million Americans working in our nation's private sector — outside government.

But there are 80.6 million Americans being supported by tax dollars. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz complains that he is running "a welfare agency." He says two-thirds of his entire USDA budget goes for welfare food programs.

We're even giving food stamps to students and workers on strike. Secretary Butz says, "Our country was not made great by people sitting on their fannies and expecting to get paid for it." And similar sentiments are beginning to be echoed by traditional liberals.

Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.) says, "Over the past few years many of us have come to see that one of the greatest dangers to our government is its own bureaucracy."

Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.) says, "Liberals must re-evaluate their posture. Each program looks good, but you put a hundred of them together and the results are more negative than positive."

Sen. Ed Muskie (D-Me.) says, "I don't think you can successfully defend the discredited side of what we tried to do in some programs."

And traditionally liberal states have elected governors — Massachusetts, New York and California — who are cutting back, paring down, reducing government budgets to the extent the citizenry will allow. It was a welfare cutback which triggered the rude invasion of the Massachusetts Legislature.

Excesses ultimately are their own undoing. The entire combined welfare program is being re-evaluated.

Liberal freshman Sen. Gary Hart (D-Colo.) says, "We must start saying to voters, 'Don't look to government for a solution to all your problems.'"

That is hardly traditional liberal rhetoric — but it indicates an encouraging new awareness.

Thoughts

"Every religious sect, from the worshippers of Apollo to the followers of Zoroaster, has its belief or theory. It is beyond the comprehension of this court how the legislature . . . expected that all such theories could be included in any textbook of reasonable size."
— U.S. District Judge Frank Gray, Jr., in a decision striking down a Tennessee law requiring biology textbooks to provide equal space to Biblical and scientific theories.

Just in jest

Boy were we poor when I was a kid! Oh sure, we had a roof over our heads and three square meals a day. But can you imagine having to face the vicissitudes of life without a garbage disposal, a trash compactor, or a self-cleaning oven?

Just to show you how poor we really were, we didn't even have an automatic dishwasher, central air conditioning, forced air heating, or wall to wall shag carpeting. Our home sweet home had no wet bar, walk-through wardrobe, swimming pool with a Jacuzzi, or two bathrooms and a sauna — not even a garage with an automatic door opener.

There was no microwave oven, no built-in washer and dryer, no refrigerator with automatic ice maker, and furthermore it didn't have ceramic tile counter tops or a smoke detector. Most frustrating of all, it didn't overlook a golf course, had no burglar alarm system, no private security guard, and the nearest recreation clubhouse was Tivoli Pete's corner saloon. Sometimes I get to wondering how underprivileged families like ours ever managed to survive. In fact, the more I think about it the more convinced I become that I should find me a lawyer willing to take my case on a contingency basis and sue the government for retroactive poverty level supplemental income, plus food stamps, which I would surely have collected if I hadn't, through no fault of my own, been born 76 years too soon.

Looking back on history

Public figures acquire "images" which may accurately reflect what they say and do or may instead reflect the reaction to them by the news media. As tastes and issues change, some images may change, but others may stubbornly stay the same, even though they should change.

Take the images of two U.S. presidents, for example: Calvin Coolidge and Dwight Eisenhower. Coolidge, the dry, unexciting New Englander, is more often than not remembered as a lackluster, almost laughable figure who just happened to occupy the White House for awhile.

Eisenhower, though remembered with affection and respect for his great military accomplishments, has the image, as president, of a genial golf player who didn't stir things up much and who — in the main — presided over a country that rode at anchor for eight years. The late John Kennedy, who followed him, actually campaigned on the slogan, "Get the country moving again."

Are these images true or false? Consider this: H. L. Mencken said Cal Coolidge has been "weaned on a pickle." Was Coolidge a do-nothing president in one of those lulls in our nation's history? If so, we should have such lulls today.

There was better-than-full employment. Jobs were competing for workers. The cost of living went DOWN 2.3 per cent.

The federal budget was actually reduced and some of the national debt accumulated in World War I was paid off.

During "Silent Cal's" presidency the number of automobiles owned by Americans tripled and a great new industry — radio — went from $60 million in annual sales to $842 million. They laughed when Calvin Coolidge said, "The business of America is business," but we had true peace and prosperity — those things we are promised so often, but given so seldom.

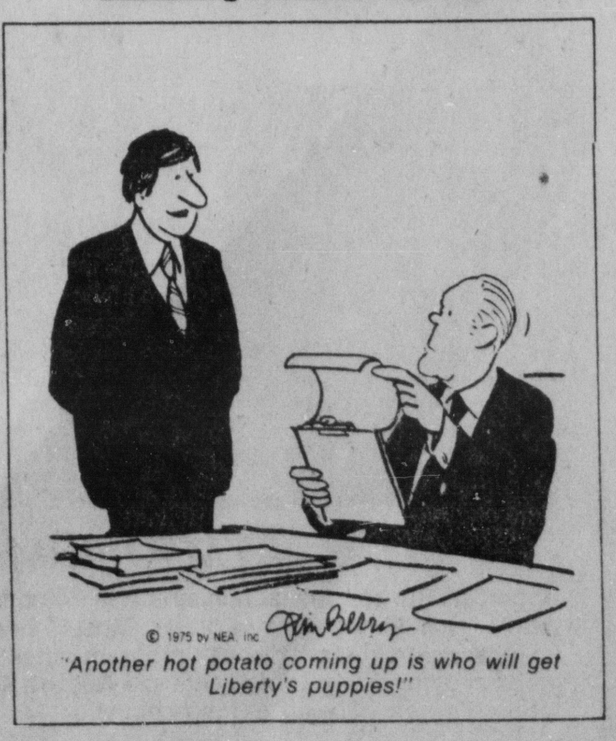

In the "Eisenhower years" — 1952 to 1960 — we were told an entire college generation was "apathetic" and had stagnated (perhaps because they didn't burn down the campus libraries). Yet, Ike ended a war in Korea that had killed tens of thousands of young Americans. For the rest of his eight years in office none were being shot at anywhere in the world.

Ike also halted — dead in its tracks — the advance of communism. And, Big Government didn't get any bigger. A citizen could go for an evening stroll in the park without getting bopped over the head. Wages went up steadily, but prices held. Steak was 85 cents a pound and a gallon of gas cost 29 cents. You could be well-dressed in a $50 suit and a pair of $9 shoes.

The workday and the workweek grew shorter and our taxes were reduced. Suddenly, more kids were going to college than ever before; more families were buying homes; never had our nation's wealth been so widely distributed; and we were so strong that no one in the world thought of challenging us.

You'll have to make up your own mind about the image versus the real man, but maybe we ought to go back and see what they did that we aren't doing today.

Wife makes desperate plea: find stolen car

I would like to appeal to the people of Pomona and surrounding area to look in their neighborhoods, in alleys and on their way to work for a 1965 maroon Chrysler stolen from the corner of Sixth Street and Hamilton Boulevard.

The car belongs to a 21-year-old mother, very ill, who has a 14-month-old son.

She has been in the hospital twice this month and is too weak to walk to the bus stop or grocery store.

She and her child are alone. When the car was stolen, they were in the process of moving. Everything they had was in the car including the baby's clothes.

The muffler had fallen, and she had to park it so that she could try to get help to fasten it up.

The car was stolen Aug. 16. It was locked at the time.

The license number is NHK-217. The car is a two-door with a damaged left rear window, broken left rear tail light, trailer hitch on the back, driver's seat torn and springs coming out. The motor missed, and the car had a gas leak. On the back window was a sticker that said, "Keep your hands off — Mafia staff car."

Our Pomona police have been very kind and have done all they can but have had no results.

The owner of the car lives in fear of needing immediate medical attention and not being able to get to the hospital.

Will anyone who has seen the car vall 629-6702? — I.M., Pomona.

You explained that you are the mother of the car owner, that you are disabled and your husband has had spinal surgery.

Hope that the car was abandoned and can be found influenced you to write to Action Line.

I have worked for the same private school for 15 years. Normally, I work the year around.

In June I signed up for unemployment for the summer as there wasn't enough work at the school to keep all the teachers busy.

I have collected pay for five weeks. About two weeks ago I called and asked if I could pick up my check that day instead of the following as I wanted to visit my daughter in San Diego.

The people at the unemployment insurance office said it would be all right. They said nothing about my losing a week's pay by doing so.

I was out of town only one day. If they had told me that collecting a day early would cause me to lose some pay, I could have waited until the weekend.

They said nothing until I went to the office today and was told I would get only one week's pay as I had been unavailable for work for more than four hours.

The woman I talked with said I could appeal this decision if I wanted to.

She didn't know the procedure and directed me to the information window. The man at the window didn't know the procedure either.

Even if you can't get my money for me, maybe you could make the appeals procedure and the law about eligibility known. — Mrs. E.K., Pomona.

Alonzo Daniels, manager of the Employment Development Department in Pomona, explained to us that the local office must make decisions of eligibility on the basis of the California Unemployment Insurance Code.

He confirmed that the penalty for not being available for work for more than four hours is loss of a week's pay. If one is ill or for some other reason not able to work, the loss is only one day's pay.

If a claimant feels that a decision is an incorrect application of the law, he or she may file an appeal to an administrative law judge within 10 days of the decision.

At a hearing before the judge, testimony is given and a decision results. In case of dissatisfaction with that decision, a further appeal can be filed to the Appeals Board within 10 days.

If the claimant is still dissatisfied after the Appeals Board makes a decision, he must go through normal court appeals processes.

Apparently the claims office people had second thoughts about your eligibility after we sent them a copy of your letter.

You wrote a note thanking us for helping you get your check.

Biting habit driving her nuts

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't think I am too crazy to bother with. I need your help. It's this terrible habit and it's driving me nuts. First I should tell you I am 18, a girl, lonely and very unhappy with myself.

About a year ago I began to bite the inside of my mouth and my lips. It's like biting fingernails — once you start you can't stop. I have bitten myself so hard that my mouth bleeds, scabs form and still I can't stop biting myself. I'm scared to death I'll get cancer if I don't get over this stupid habit.

Can you suggest a hypnotist? I need someone to take control of my mind and make me stop doing this terrible thing. Sign me — Ashamed And Scared

Dear Friend: Biting your mouth and lips is not the problem. It's the symptom of another problem. You need to find out why you have an uncontrollable urge to hurt yourself. A hypnotist will not provide the answer.

I suggest a talk with your school counselor. Confide in her or him. Verbalize your feelings of loneliness and inadequacy. If you aren't comfortable with the counselor, ask your family doctor to suggest a therapist who can help you talk about your anxieties and problems. And do hurry, please. The sooner you start the better.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son's wedding is getting to be a real pain in the neck. Every day it gets worse. Here's the problem:

His future in-laws have some ritzy ideas about how a wedding should be and it is sure running into a lot of money. They seem to think it would be nice if we offered to help out with the expenses. My husband and I don't agree. Already they have asked us to take 25 people off our list of 110. Can you imagine the nerve?

We are not rich people, Ann. What's more, we have two daughters of our own to marry off within the next few years. Believe me, we have no intention of asking anybody to help us out with the expenses. Isn't it understood that the parents of the bride put on the wedding and they do whatever they can afford? Or are we crazy? Please tell it like it is. — Refuse To Be Gouged

Dear R. G.: Hold your ground. You're absolutely right. Trim your list if you must but tell the bride's parents that any kind of wedding they can manage is perfectly all right with you. Let them know it's THEIR party.

Dear Ann Landers: Something has been bothering me for a long time. Maybe you can provide the answer and put my mind at ease. I am worrying about the comfort of baby kangaroos.

I'm aware that a kangaroo's pouch is a membrane attached to the animal's body designed to carry the young. I'd like to know if the pouch is fur-lined on the inside so the baby is kept warm and comfry. Can you tell me, please? — Kangaroo Fan

Dear Kang Fan: Pam Bianco from the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago says only female kangaroos have pouches. A pouch is not considered a membrane. It is merely an additional part of the skin —and alas, it is not fur-lined. But so far, I haven't heard of a single baby kangaroo who delined the ride, so it must be pretty comfy in there.

CONFIDENTIAL to Who Said It?: It was Will Rogers and I agree it's pretty darned funny. "On account of us being a democracy run by the people we are the only nation in the world that has to keep a government four years no matter what it does."

Disaster films are disastrous

Pravda, the Soviet Union's most influential newspaper, recently told its readers that America is being inundated by disaster movies "to distract people from the robbery and deceit to which they are subjected daily by oil companies, politicians and banks."

Such criticism of our disaster movies is unwarranted from a nation that is itself one big disaster.

"Horror movies have been put on an assembly-line basis," wrote correspondent G. Vasilyev. "They are successful in the United States because they exploit a sense of fear, do not demand great intellectual effort, and promise good profits."

With what goes on in our streets these days, it's harder and harder for disaster and horror films to have any real shock value.

It's quite true that the silver screen has become the shiver screen in the past few years, starting with "The Poseidon Adventure." Then we got "Airport," "Earthquake," "The Towering Inferno," "Airport 1975" and "Love Story."

These were followed by "The Hindenberg," "Phase IV" (marching ants), "Gloph" (tap-dancing cockroaches), "The Haephestus Plague" (earthquakes AND cockroaches), "Chosen Survivors" (nuclear fallout and vampire bats) and other petty annoyances. "The Day the World Ended" was an anti-climax.

Vasi baby, our omniscient Soviet scribe, is correct in his assumption that "a sense of fear" is good box office — every child shrieks and giggles at a loud "Boo!" at an unexpected moment. Nor can one deny that the films are moneymakers. "Jaws" is currently gobbling up receipts that may top Russia's gross national product.

Where our (probably) bearded cinema savant errs is in assuming that our disaster movies require no intellectual effort. The audience, swept up in the current crisis, relates, instinctively and mentally, to the immediate urgency of being drowned, consumed by flames, or swallowed up by an earthquake. Don't just SIT there. DO something!

A New Jersey theater showing "The Towering Inferno" caught fire, and the audience, with smoke filling the building and the arm rests going hot, assumed it was all part of Hollywood's technology, and nearly got fried in the orchestra. Some people watching "Earthquake" in Salt Lake City, emerged to find the city strewn with rubble, and thought it was all part of the show — the city had been belted by a minor quake while they were enjoying the show.

I call this living theater. When a film shows a movie house burning down and the theater actually burns down — man, that's life! It's great box office — but the box office was consumed by flames. One shot deal, you might say.

American writer Gore Vidal says the horrific stream of disaster movies reminded him of ancient Rome, where "to let off steam they had lions eating people and gladiators killing each other." Like "Rollerball."

The only solution, obviously, is to feed today's movie makers to the lions. And I don't mean MGM.

Headaches vary in type

DEAR DR. LAMB — Some time ago you mentioned in one of your columns that Sansert was excellent for the prevention of Migraine headaches.

I developed what I thought was a dental problem with pain in my lower left jaw that would work its way up into my left temple and settle in my right eye. A dental examination established that my teeth were o.k.

A neurologist diagnosed my problem as a vascular condition, and the only thing he gave me was Valium. It didn't help. Then a neurosurgeon put me on Sansert. I began to take four a day, and much to my amazement, the pain stopped.

After taking Sansert for five months I began having both back and stomach aches. An orthopedic surgeon diagnosed my problem as an old degenerated disc and treated me with various medicines and therapy to no avail.

My internal medicine doctor put me in the hospital, and he ran all kinds of tests and everything was normal. I was getting so distressed that I discontinued taking all medicine, including Sanserts. I asked my internal medicine doctor if Sanserts could have caused the problem, and he said it was possible, but the neurosurgeon said he didn't think so. Could Sanserts have caused my problems? I still have the same pain from time to time, but not every night as I did to begin with. If I catch it in time, Empirin will help, but I may have to take four to six over a period of an hour or so to get relief.

DEAR READER — I am not sure from your letter what type of headache you have or had, but it is not the typical migraine headache. Many headaches are on a vascular basis, though, even if they are not migraine headaches.

Headache pain can be caused by over dilitation of arteries that stretch nerve fibers and cause pain. A good example here is the "morning after" headache with dilated arteries to the head region. Headaches can be caused by muscle contractions and often cause those at the base of the skull and back of the neck. Or, they can be caused by pain from pressure or traction on sensitive areas within the brain. Nervous tension, migraine headaches, even bad posture, can produce their effects through one of these mechanisms.

If you want more information on the different types of headaches and methods of management, you might write to me in care of this newspaper, Radio City Station, P.O. Box 1551, New York, NY 10019. Send 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope, and ask for The Health Letter number 2-9 Headache: Man's Most Common Pain.

Sansert (methysergide) works on headaches, because it raises the person's pain threshold. In other words it takes more pain for you to notice it. It does this by neutralizing a chemical in the body that lowers the pain threshold and is sometimes involved in headaches. It will prevent migraine headaches in about two out of three cases.

It is not totally innocuous and must be used in selected patients, and not used in patients with a variety of problems, including high blood pressure and heart disease.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Jim: "How did you happen to think of the rule of the ace and the king?"

Oswald: "In the early Thirties slam bidding was a hit or miss proposition. I wanted a simple rule to tell when to invite or actually bid a slam. I came up with the idea that any time you could take a king out of your hand and still have enough for game, you should think of a slam and possibly make a mild slam invitation. If you could take out an ace, you should definitely invite a slam. And if you could take out an ace and a king, you should bid the slam."

Jim: "I assume the bidding in the box shows this rule in operation. South would surely bid four spades without the ace of diamonds. So he invites the slam by bidding four diamonds. If North signed off at four spades South would probably give up."

Oswald: "Right. But North cue bids in hearts and now South invites the slam strongly by bidding five spades. He doesn't use Blackwood because he isn't worried about aces. North has his full values and goes on to the laydown six.

Ask the Jacobys

An Alberta reader says, "Playing at three notrump the deuce of hearts was led against me. Dummy held heart Q6 and I held spade A105. Should I have played the queen from dummy?"

The answer is no. The play of the six spot insures two tricks in the suit. If you rise with dummy's queen and the king covers you may only make one heart trick.

THE CLAIM that baseball is still the foremost national sport doesn't hold up. Football now draws more paying spectators. Yet the pro football teams play only 14 regular games per season while the major league baseball teams play 162 games.

DOE NIGHT

You've heard of Stag Night at one local lounge or another, but have you ever heard of Doe Night? A bar in Stateline, Ida., has instituted such. One night a week there, various young men replace the go-go girls onstage. They bump, grind, strip, and get downright naughty, I'm told. Report is the audience of women squeals mightily, tosses coins onstage, and some put small bills in their bosoms to be extracted by the performers with their teeth. Cost of tickets to Idaho varies, depending on where you live, young lady. See your travel agent.

THE MARKET MEN report that the typical father only buys a topcoat once every eight years while his son at home buys one every four years. Is that equitable?

DID I ALREADY tell you there are only six companies left in the United States that make weather vanes? Pity.

Barbs

Have you ever noticed, the older you get the younger your contemporaries are shuffling-off?

The kangaroo rat is a harmless little burrowing animal that lives in the deserts of the Southwestern United States.

Though it is neither a kangaroo nor a rat, this small tan-and-cream rodent shares certain of their features. It can leap about on its powerful hind legs like a tiny kangaroo, and is capable of jumping six feet into the air.

A kangaroo rat may be about 7 inches long, plus an equal-length tail which ends in a furry tuft.

The kangaroo rat spends the hot daylight hours in its cool burrow, emerging only at night to feed on seeds and other plant food.

It uses its tiny front legs to stuff food into fur-lined pouches in its cheeks, to be carried to its burrow and stored against lean times.

Unconcerned by the lack of water, the creature does not need to drink. Most of the moisture it needs is produced within its body from the seeds it eats.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061

Father bitterly replaces stone at son's grave

LIBBY, Mont. (AP) — Timothy E. Nunley's U.S. Navy tombstone was lifted from a bed of flowers and laid to rest in a sea of garbage.

Robert Nunley commemorated the first anniversary of his only son's death by throwing the stone in the city dump and replacing it with another inscribed:

"We lost our beloved son through the negligence and stupidity of the United States government and its agents."

Timothy, 19, died of cancer in a Navy hospital in Jacksonville, Fla., on Sept. 20, 1974. His parents say the Navy killed him by failing to diagnose the disease and repeatedly refusing to admit him to a hospital until it was too late.

The Nunleys are asking $6.5 million in a medical malpractice suit filed against the government in federal court in Jacksonville

Present at the brief graveyard ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Nunley, their daughter and son-in-law and grandchild.

Mrs. Nunley sobbed on her daughter's shoulder as her husband took a rusty shovel and dug up the military marker. The Nunleys said they had planned since last year to take the action.

After laying the new stone in place, Nunley used a dolly to wheel the 250-pound military headstone to his nearby pickup truck.

At the dump, Nunley backed the truck to a garbage-filled pit and pushed the stone over the edge where it came to rest face up on a stinking pile of rubbish.

Carl McAfee, a Norton, Va., lawyer representing the Nunleys, said, "Had they even listened to him in the beginning, he would have had a chance to survive."

The suit claims that Timothy reported what he believed to be a tumor in his groin in September 1973 while at boot camp in Orlando, Fla.

Medical corpsmen who examined him, the suit says, looked at him with a flashlight, never touched him and sent him away with a mild pain killer.

That tumor, according to the suit, spread lymphatic cancer throughout Timothy's body in the following months. Timothy, 6-foot-3, weighed 208 pounds when he entered the Navy. His mother said he was reduced to 120 pounds at death.

No more keeping up with Joneses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Finally, there's a commercial for the man who has less and wants to keep it that way. A sort of fast unhustle.

In fact, some 150 television stations and 800 radio stations have signed up to carry a whole series of such spots. Like the one with mythical baseball players Riordan and Daley.

Riordan: "Last year, me and ol' Daley made a deal. No more keepin' up with the Joneses. We were reminiscing about the good old days.

Daley: Yeah. Back in '56 I got me this beat-up '47 Chevy. So Riordan here gets a cherry '51 Olds with glasspacks.

Riordan: The race was one, lemme tell ya.

Daley: New cars every three years, campers, snowmobiles, electric hot lather ... the latest model everything.

Riordan: Seemed like fun, but we got to thinking. We didn't need all that stuff. Worked so hard paying for it, we hardly had time to use it.

Daley: ... See, we figure, you keep on using resources like there's no tomorrow, there may be no tomorrow.

Another commercial has Gov. Richard D. Lamm strolling through a ghost town in Colorado, noting that "all of a sudden, the silver was gone, and the two closed up overnight. Our earth could have the same problem. We've got only so many natural resources."

The public service spots were formally unveiled at a press briefing Wednesday by the Center for Growth Alternatives, an environmental group. Several stations already are airing the messages.

Broadcast personality Edward P. Morgan, who narrates several of the commercials, told reporters that "I and many of you were brought up by the Chamber of Commerce — to believe that bigger is better.

"Hopefully, these spots will encourage people to question that idea."

Wide range

Spacecraft indicate that the magnetosphere, which shields man from high-energy solar particles, extends some 3,500,000 miles from the earth.

Dublin

Norwegian marauders founded Dublin — one of the first towns in Ireland — in the ninth century. The city's Christ Church Cathedral looks down on the remains of an original Norse settlement.

High Court

The Supreme Court of Canada is the final court of appeal for civil and criminal appeals from lower courts. It sits in Ottawa and is comprised of a Chief Justice and eight puisne judges, all appointed by the federal cabinet to hold office until age 75. The court can render decisions on constitutional conflicts between the federal and provincial governments in appeal cases or when asked to give an advisory opinion by either the federal or provincial governments.

Digs for Hoffa grave prove futile; info linked to mob

DETROIT (AP) — A man who said he helped bury the body of James R. Hoffa provided information that led to an unsuccessful weekend search of a nearby field for the missing ex-Teamsters boss, a Senate subcommittee investigator said.

Investigator William B. Gallianaro, who tipped local authorities that Hoffa's body might be found in the field, said his information came from an unidentified informant who was not involved in the labor leader's disappearance but who has underworld contacts.

Gallianaro said his informant believes the man who said he helped bury Hoffa is being held by "the mob" until he provides exact directions to the location of the body.

"Our informant is dealing with the mob. The mob is talking to someone who is involved in the disappearance of Jimmy Hoffa," said Keith Adkinson, another subcommittee investigator.

There is no evidence that Hoffa has been slain, but some associates have said they believe he was murdered because he was on the verge of being freed from parole restrictions which prohibited him from taking part in Teamsters activities.

Some investigators believe "the mob" may be providing information to take pressure off underworld figures being questioned in connection with Hoffa's disappearance.

A federal grand jury in Detroit has subpoenaed and taken testimony from several reputed mob figures but has produced no new information in the case, sources say.

Acting on information from Gallinaro, Michigan Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley organized a search of a 29-acre field in Waterford Township about 20 miles northwest of Detroit but found no trace of Hoffa.

Gallinaro said he is in touch with his informant and is not giving up. He said he believes Hoffa may be buried in the area that was searched Sunday morning.

"I put credence in the information because it fits what we know about the overall circumstances of the disappearance," said Vincent Piersante, head of the organized crime division of the attorney general's office.

He said he believes the informant is in contact with a person who "had a piece of the killing" and who was present for the burial.

"We don't know about the mental condition of the person who made the estimates (of directions to a burial site)," said Piersante. "If you have Hoffa's body in the back of your car, every 10 seconds seems like an hour and a half."

No word yet but gas dealers see penny hike

While official notification is lacking, it is anticipated the one cent a gallon increase in the price of gasoline, resulting from the 13-nation oil cartel price hike announced Saturday, will be reflected shortly at valley pumps.

"I haven't been notified yet," said Lewis Androus, owner of the ARCO station at 295 E. Mission Blvd., Pomona, "but it is very likely. I look for a raise between the third and sixth of the month. It will go up at least a cent."

Bob Theunisson, manager of Bob's Texaco Service at 306 W. Foothill Blvd., Claremont, said that while he had not yet been notified, he did expect "at least a one cent price increase" at the pump before too much longer.

"What we make on gas doesn't pay our light bill," said Neil Chamberlain, assistant manager of Norm & Son's Exxon Service at 350 S. Diamond Bar Blvd., Diamond Bar.

"When they increase their wholesale price we have to raise the pump price, but we've received no notification for a price increase for October."

Rudy Wroblewski, manager of Chino Chevron Service at 12110 Central Ave., Chino, said, "No, we haven't been notified as yet, but we look for it. When they tell you the wholesale price is up, you pay the new price, and if you don't raise your price at the pump, you lose money."

Chuck Payne, owner-manager of Pomona Valley Shell at 604 W. Holt Ave., Pomona, said Shell had sent through no notification of a new price increase, but he did anticipate one of at least one cent right away.

STAYING CLOSE TO HOME

The Bratz family of Wormleysburg, Pa., didn't have far to go when a flooding river drove them from their home in background at left. They moved onto their houseboat. Here, Bratz stands in a rowboat chatting with his wife, Jeanette. A neighbor, Larry Shank, drove up in his houseboat, offering it to the Bratz family for even larger living space. Floodwaters continue to recede throughout the Northeast today. See story on page 3.

Wants her in hospital; report says she didn't want to escape SLA

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As a magazine article pictured Patricia Hearst as a willing revolutionary, her attorneys said today that her mental state is deteriorating swiftly in jail and called for her transfer to a hospital.

Miss Hearst's attorneys met with reporters hours after publication of a Rolling Stone story which said the newspaper heiress rode cross-country with sports activist Jack Scott four months after she was kidnaped and that she rejected his offer to take her home.

Attorney Terence Hallinan declined comment on specific points in the article. But when asked about a taped jailhouse conversation in which Miss Hearst described herself as a revolutionary feminist, Hallinan said:

"The Patty Hearst that is in jail in Redwood City right now is not the same person who made those tapes and is not even the same person that Jack Scott says in the Rolling Stone article he met or that participated in the Hibernia Bank robbery."

Among the charges facing her is an accusation that she took part in an April 1974 holdup of a San Francisco branch of Hibernia Bank.

Hallinan said psychological testing in jail was taking a heavy toll on his client and said he would ask the court to allow her transfer to a hospital in San Francisco.

"She's been more spaced out, it's harder to get her to talk," he said. "She is easily overcome by tears, and it's harder to get her mind to go into these areas she's closed off."

Miss Hearst was quoted in the Rolling Stone story as responding to Scott's offer to drive her anywhere she wanted, including home, by saying: "I want to go where my friends are going."

Associate Editor Howard Kohn and reporter David Weir said their account was based on information from unidentified sources who "talked to Patty Hearst; they were there; they helped her."

Scott was introduced to the Harrises after word was spread that he wanted to write a book on the organization. The Harrises invited Scott to a Berkeley apartment, where he met Patty Hearst for the first time and agreed to drive her to the East Coast, the article said.

Scott, who once told reporters "I never met anyone who told me she was Patty Hearst" could not be reached immediately for comment.

Miss Hearst announced after her kidnaping she had taken the name "Tania."

Miss Hearst was confined, apparently in a closet, for four weeks immediately after she was kidnaped from her Berkeley apartment on Feb. 4, 1974, by the SLA, the Rolling Stone reporters, who were interviewed this morning on NBC's "Today Show," said.

In an affidavit filed last week in federal court here, Miss Hearst said she was held in a closet for nine weeks.

The reporters said Miss Hearst asked to be permitted to join the SLA but most members of the group were opposed. It was SLA leader Donald DeFreeze, who called himself "Cinque," who convinced others to accept her.

When she was released from confinement, the article said, Miss Hearst was allowed to move freely among SLA members and sat in on the group's "daily political study sessions."

When six members of the SLA died in a shootout with Los Angeles Police, Miss Hearst and SLA members Bill and Emily Harris were a few blocks away listening to radio accounts of the confrontation, Rolling Stone said. The article said the Harrises quickly bought a used car and left Los Angeles, with Miss Hearst hiding in the back seat under a blanket, for San Francisco.

The Harrises "found other means" of leaving Berkeley for the Scotts' New York City apartment. Scott and Miss Hearst, "posing as man and wife," drove eastward, Rolling Stone said. Miss Hearst was "very uptight" and "felt extremely vulnerable to being recognized along the way," Weir said, but their was no problem. The group met fugitive Wendy Yoshimura in New York and then went to a Pennsylvania farmhouse rented by Scott's wife, Micki, the article said.

Rolling Stone said during the summer at the Pennsylvania farmhouse, Miss Hearst had a long discussion with Scott about her conversion to the SLA, which Kohn and Weir said "was as much emotional as political. She had felt isolated emotionally and she was dis-

House, President continuing tug-o-war over secret info

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a compromise proposal from President Ford, the House intelligence committee appeared clearly headed today for a decision to take its demand for secret information to the House.

All six Democrats at a committee meeting declared their support for putting to the House a resolution saying defiance of subpoenas for the information is "a grave matter requiring appropriate enforcement."

All three Republicans at the meeting urged the committee instead to continue negotiations with the White House on a compromise for obtaining the information and thus avoid a constitutional confrontation.

As Ford's advisers began supplying the committee with non-secret documents, Chairman Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., demanded secret information including the names of intelligence agents.

Pike said demands for full access to secrets should be taken to the House. He declared that Ford's limits could be used "to withhold from this committee almost anything they (White House aides) want to."

Excluded from material that Ford's counsel proposed to provide the committee were the names of intelligence agents. Pike said the names were necessary for the committee to determine why reports from agents are sometimes ignored.

Contending Ford has compromised only to the committee's right to publicly disclose secrets, Pike said: "They are willing to be very reasonable on the subject of what we release to the public, if they don't give us very much to release."

But the committee's ranking Republican, Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, said volumes of material the White House has promised to turn over would give the committee staff more than it could handle for now.

"The President is personally willing to put his credibility on the line as far as providing this material is concerned," McClory said.

But Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., said he is not convinced that even Ford's pledge to make the final decision personally on whether information should be kept secret would prevent intelligence agencies from hiding material from the committee.

"I don't trust them, to be frank and honest," Giaimo said. "They are moving heaven and earth and are even bringing the President into it to try to deny us information."

Pike repeated to the committee his statement Sunday that he would endorse an agreement under which the committee would not publicly disclose anything Ford wanted to be kept secret without getting a court order.

But Pike contended the real issue was adequate release of documents to the committee itself for it to do its work. He said White House conditions for such release were too limited.

Bettors place record sum in fair racing

The 48th Los Angeles County Fair ended its 17-day run smoothly Sunday night, but attracted only 78,077 visitors through its gates on the final day.

Sunday's figures gave the 1975 exposition a total of 1,135,852, the lowest since the 1970 fair when 1,091,242 visited the huge Southland attraction.

The bright note for the 17 days was a record handle of $16,266,470 for the horse racing meet which ended Saturday. That figure eclipsed the previous record of $15,069,194 set in 1974.

Attendance for the meet was up 5.6 per cent over 1974 and totaled 168,337 for daily average of 12,025.

The busiest day was Saturday, Sept. 20, when 24,835 jammed into the Grandstand and clubhouse facilities for 11 races.

The fair welcomed its one millionth visitor Saturday at 2:42 p.m. when Fair Queen Beth Redinius greeted Mrs. Sandra Cook of Long Beach and presented to her a silver serving tray.

Fair officials said that financially it was a good year for concessionaires, despite the low attendance brought about, in part, by a four-day heat wave in the 100's the last week of the exposition.

Valley man dies, 3 others hurt in crash

A Montclair man was killed and three valley residents injured Saturday night when the car in which they were riding went out of control on Foothill Boulevard east of Ontario, struck a detour sign, crashed through the divider fence and fell to the bottom of a seven-foot irrigation canal.

The driver, Allen L. Worley, 22, 10856 Central Ave., was pronounced dead at 9:04 p.m. at the San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

His front-seat passenger, Diane Michell Taylor, 19, Ontario, was admitted to that hospital for treatment of internal injuries and facial lacerations. Hospital authorities this morning said she had a fair day Sunday and a good night last night.

The two back-seat passengers, Robert William Warner, 23, Pomona, and Jodie Alice Rodgers, 19, Alta Loma, also were taken to the hospital.

Warner was given emergency treatment than transferred by ambulance to San Bernardino County General Hospital. Miss Rodgers was given emergency treatment and released.

The accident occurred at 7:40 p.m. in a freeway construction area east of Rochester Avenue. San Bernardino highway patrolmen said Worley was eastbound.

Young Chinoan identified as one killed in store shooting

Miguel Angel Vargas, 18, of 4681 Gettysburg St., Chino, has been identified by the San Bernardino Coroner's office as being shot and killed by a Chino market owner late Friday night.

Vargas was pronounced dead at the Chino General Hospital Friday night after William H. Coleman, owner of the Foodland Market, 13157 Sixth St., Chino, told police that he was forced to fire at burglars found inside of his store. Coleman told officers he interrupted several burglars in his store about 11:39 p.m. He said that he told the men to freeze, but they challenged him and he was forced to fire.

One of the bullets hit Vargas in the chest and lung and another hit a second burglar, as yet unidentified by police. The second burglar wounded in the incident, remains in serious condition this morning at San Bernardino County Hospital.

Reagan sees support grow; still can't decide

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan says he sees signs that support is snowballing for his unannounced campaign for the Republican nomination for President.

But, the 64-year-old former California governor added, he is still undecided about whether to run against President Ford in Republican primaries in 1976.

Reagan made the comments in a weekend interview following a seven state speaking tour last week.

Asked whether the response to his latest tour encouraged him to run for President, Reagan's reply was a carefully qualified yes:

"I have to admit that there has been no lessening of what I have been aware of in previous trips. If anything, there seems to be a kind of snowballing.

"What I can't evaluate is, is that necessarily support for me personally, or is it for what I have been saying?" he said.

"As to the audiences, in almost every instance there was great enthusiasm and support for the views I was expressing."

Reagan says he will announce in November, after completion of his current series of nationwide speaking tours, whether he will run against Ford.

The tour last week took Reagan to Midwest and Southern states. He brought out large friendly crowds, but few Reagan-for-President banners or other public pleas for him to become a candidate.

Reagan said many conservatives who enthusiastically applaud him "may very well agree with what I say and then think that the present policies (of the Ford administration) might achieve the same things."

Asked if he agreed with those who believe Ford could accomplish the goals Reagan outlined of reducing the size and cost of the federal government, Reagan said:

"I don't think that's a question I can answer."

On a more philosophical note, Reagan said he does feel a hunger to be President, but not the kind of hunger that he says he sees in other politicians.

He described his own presidential ambitions as a hunger to accomplish certain things — chiefly to reverse the concentration of power in Washington.

"If you mean (do I hunger) in the sense of some ambitious politicians...who hunger for it — no. I don't even understand them.

"There is the other kind of hunger, of the man who...sees things that need doing if we are to survive, and has views on what should be done, and says, 'Could I, or could I not, accomplish these things.'

"That too is a hunger, a thing in which you could say, 'Oh yes, the challenge, the thought that I could maybe bring this to pass.' That is a very real hunger too. But I think it is far different than just having an ambition to live in the White House."

Seniors get benefit of bank battle

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A battle among banks in California for low-cost consumer deposits is providing cash benefits for millions of customers, with senior citizens becoming the newest beneficiaries, banking experts say.

So far the battle has resulted in the annual interest on passbook savings accounts being raised from 4½ to 5 per cent and a variety of free services for elderly depositors.

Last April, Crocker National Bank offered depositors who are 62 and older free checking accounts, free travelers checks and other free services.

Since then, other top California banks such as Security Pacific National Bank and Bank of America have followed Crocker's lead.

"I can't give you any definite figures, but we're definitely seeing an improvement in our market share," said Peter Vajta, vice president of marketing at Crocker, describing the results of its efforts to woo elderly depositors.

Steven P. White, a bank stock analyst with Sutro & Co. of San Francisco, explained that "a heating up of the competitive pressures in California banking" is the reason for the rush of free services for older depositors.

"You can anticipate the major banks matching each other move for move for some time to come," he predicted.

"Compared to certificates of deposits, bankers acceptances and other sources of bank funds, consumer deposits are a low-cost way of getting money. These banks have to make sure they don't lose even a small percentage of their market share of these deposits," White said.

State job training scheduled for women

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A $200,000 state job training program for widows and divorcees will be established in Alameda County next year under legislation signed by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

But the location for the two-year pilot program will be left up to the state secretary of health and welfare, Mario Obledo, and his assistants, Press Secretary Bill Stall said Sunday.

The legislation by Sen. Jerry Smith, D-Saratoga, was supported by about a dozen women's groups around the state, including three in Alameda County. But it does not specify that any of the Alameda County groups will get the funds.

The money could be given to one of the sponsoring groups, to some other private group, or it could be used to set up a new agency, Stall said.

The program is intended to provide job counseling and training for women over age 35 who are without support or marketable job skills.

It specifies that the program is to include women who were homemakers and had been supported by another family member and mothers who were supported by welfare grants but are no longer on welfare.

Supporters of the measure in Alameda County include the Alliance for Displaced Homemakers, Jobs for Older Women Action Project and Tish Sommers, chief of the National Organization for Women national task force for older women, all of Oakland.

Several San Francisco and Santa Clara County groups also supported the measure, which was signed into law by Brown Friday.

Tied-up kidnaping victim escapes fire dramatically

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kidnap victim Earl Miller escaped from a classic scene: tied up inside a building set afire in two places.

Police report Miller, 55, Northridge, freed himself Sunday after an abductor left him shackled inside the flaming RCA Building in Hollywood.

Miller, who suffered no injuries, told officers a man accosted him after church services Sunday and forced him at gunpoint to drive to the RCA Building. Manager of the trust fund that owns the building, Miller said he was bound and gagged on the seventh floor.

Miller telephoned authorities after getting loose. Firemen put outfires on the seventh and fourth floors. Flames inflicted $25,000 damage on the building at Sunset Boulevard and Ivar Street.

Police said Miller told them the kidnaper termed the abduction as retaliation for royalities owed the man for records.

The identity of the man and the background of his royalties complaint remained unknown. Officers were searching for the man.

Hirohito begins his visit in U.S. Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japan's Emperor Hirohito makes a tradition-breaking visit to the United States this week, fulfilling a wish he has nourished for more than half a century.

The decision of the 74-year-old monarch to undertake the trip reflects both the less reclusive nature of his reign as well as the relatively trouble-free state of Japanese-American relations.

The emperor, who will be accompanied by his wife, Empress Nagako, when he arrives Tuesday, is the 124th in an imperial line that dates back more than 13 centuries.

None of his predecessors has ever visited the United States and just four years ago Hirohito became the first Japanese emperor ever to leave the country when he went to Europe.

Technically, he set foot on American soil when he stopped briefly in Anchorage, Alaska, and met with President Richard Nixon.

President Ford met the emperor in Tokyo last November and extended the invitation for a U.S. visit. A studied effort is being made to keep the trip as non-political as possible, but officials of both countries say there is a direct link between the decision to make the visit and the steady improvement in political relations between the two countries.

The imperial couple, whose dynasty is the oldest reigning family in the world, is scheduled to visit six major American cities: Washington, New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Honolulu. A stop in Pearl Harbor was considered, but Japanese officials decided against it.

The emperor's chief personal interest has always been marine life, so he also will visit two marine biology stations, one at Woods Hole, Mass., and the other near San Diego, Calif.

Extraordinary security precautions will be in effect for the trip, particularly in light of the recent attempts on Ford's life.

The couple will arrive Tuesday in Williamsburg, Va., and will travel two days later to Washington, where an elaborate White House arrival ceremony for them is planned.

Ford will give a dinner for the visitors that evening. On the following night, the Smithsonian Institution will be the scene of a dinner offered by the imperial couple.

The emperor is a baseball fan and home run king Henry Aaron has been invited to both dinners.

Another highlight for the monarch will be a visit to the Pocantico Hills, N.Y., estate of Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller. The vast domain, 12 times the size of the emperor's Tokyo estate, includes an authentic Japanese dwelling which is filled with Rockefeller's collection of oriental art and furnishings, and is surrounded by a Japanese water garden.

The emperor's visit is only one symbol of the improved climate between Tokyo and Washington. Ford's visit to Tokyo last fall was the first ever made there by an incumbent American president.

News briefs

Just missed

NEW YORK (AP) — The bullet allegedly fired by Sara Jane Moore missed President Ford by about five feet and did not hit the pavement until after it had passed him, Time magazine said Sunday.

Time also quotes a San Francisco policeman as saying there is no doubt that ex-Marine Oliver Sipple's reflex grab at Miss Moore's arm deflected the bullet.

Time said the bullet fired at Ford outside the St. Francis Hotel last Monday "whizzed harmlessly between a TV crew and agents, striking the wall of the hotel 5½ feet above the sidewalk."

Civil war resumes

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesian government troops have fought two clashes with one of the three armed factions involved in the civil war in Portuguese Timor, an Indonesian spokesman said today.

Brig. Gen. Sumrahadi, Defense Department spokesman, said the leftist Revolutionary Front for Independence of East Timor — FRETILIN — clashed with Indonesian troops Sunday as they patroled the border area in Fatulen village on the Indonesian side of the island, where more than 34,000 refugees from Portuguese Timor now live.

Emergency action

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portugal's premier today ordered troops to take over Lisbon's leftist-controlled radio and television stations, but reliable sources said that at one station soldiers refused to obey orders and fraternized with the leftist staffers instead.

Premier Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo ordered the takeover saying the country was in a "real emergency." He said in a broadcast he acted to prevent the stations from "manipulating" information "to undermine the bases of discipline and order" and to "avoid declaration of a state of emergency."

AIP prepared

RENO, Nev. (AP) -Still confident that George Wallace will be its presidential candidate in 1976, the American Independent Party says it is in better shape than ever.

National Chairman William Shearer said Sunday the party is well prepared as it heads into its third presidential campaign and is ahead of previous efforts.

Juan Macias becomes saint

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI has elevated Juan Macias, a Spanish-born friar, to sainthood in the Roman Catholic Church and used the occasion to criticize the Spanish government's execution of five young terrorists.

The papal mass and canonization ceremonies in St. Peter's Square were boycotted by the Spanish government, which called its Vatican ambassador home for consultation.

The pontiff, who had made three separate pleas for clemency, said "Joy would have been fuller had the events everybody knows not taken place."

Mexico puts up protest

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican government is breaking all connections between Mexico and Spain in protest against the execution of five terrorists by the Franco regime, the Interior Ministry announced.

All flights between Mexico and Spain by Iberia, the Spanish airline, and Aeromexico, the Mexican airline, have been cancelled, according to Sunday night's announcement.

Three holding seven hostages

Gunman may be unstable

By JAMES R. PEIPERT
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — One of three gunmen holding seven hostages in a sweltering 10-by 12-foot basement storeroom of a restaurant appears unstable and there is a risk he might use his gun if police attack, a psychiatrist listening in on their conversations said today.

The psychiatrist, who was called in by police as the siege entered its 36th hour, listened for some time at an air duct which carries conversation from the storeroom. Police, some armed and wearing bullet-proof vests, ringed the restaurant but made no move to attack. The gunmen have a shotgun and two pistols.

The gunmen invaded the restaurant, named the Spaghetti House, in the fashionable Knightsbridge section at 1:45 a.m. Sunday as nine employes were closing up. The gunmen's target was 11,000 pounds — $23,100 — the night's proceeds for the restaurant and others affiliated with it.

One of the employes shoved a bank satchel containing the money under a table, escaped and called the police. When officers surrounded the area and the gunmen realized they could not escape, they herded the other eight employes into the storeroom. Late Sunday they released one of the hostages as a sign of good faith.

All three gunmen originally were believed to be West Indians but police said today they thought two of them were West Indians and the other was a Nigerian, presumably because of their accents. All the hostages were Italians.

Italian Ambassador Roberto Ducci and Consul-General Mario Manca went to the restaurant today when the hostages asked to speak to someone in their own language. Ducci said as he left, "the hostages are in fairly good condition."

Clean-up begins in the Northeast following floods

By The Associated Press

Floodwaters continued to recede throughout the Northeast today as thousands of families returned home to clean up in the wake of rains dumped by Tropical Storm Eloise. At least 10 persons were dead.

Pennsylvania, hardest-hit of a dozen states from Virginia to New England, reported six persons dead, 6,000 still homeless, and damages totaling more than $100 million. The state capital, Harrisburg, was for a time patrolled by National Guardsmen although it had been spared major damage. The Guardsmen were being deactivated today.

The flooding also left pollution problems that were only beginning to be felt today. Officials said water supplies may have been contaminated in some Pennsylvania communities, and Delaware officials feared damage to shellfishing in Chesapeake Bay could last for years.

An 11-mile section of the New York State Thruway was reopened Sunday after having been closed by floodwaters. In Connecticut, a 14-year-old boy was missing after being swept from a raft in the Steele Brooke in Watertown.

When the Susquehanna River began overflowing its banks in Pennsylvania's agricultural and industrial heartland late last week, President Ford declared all or parts of 21 counties eligible for federal disaster relief.

The river crested Saturday night, earlier than expected, and one local Civil Defense official, P. Franklin Hartzel of Milton, declared: "This one turned out to be not as bad as expected."

Nevertheless, the flood was rated the third worst in the state's history. It was the second major flood in three years in the Susquehanna basin. Only Tropical Storm Agnes in 1972 and other flooding in 1936 caused more damage. State officials estimated damage to roads and agriculture alone at more than $100 million.

Municipal reservoirs and sewer systems were flooded and state health officials advised residents in Lycoming, Clinton, Centre, Dauphin, York, Perry, and Cumberland counties to boil water before drinking.

Water filtration plants in 18 communities and sewage treatment plants in 10 others were knocked out, pouring raw sewage into the Susquehanna at Harrisburg and Wilkes-Barre.

In Maryland, Chesapeake Bay officials said the biggest problem for shellfishing now would be sewage overflows and bacteria. But they also said it was the second time such damage had taken place in three years, and the oyster population had only just begun to increase again. The long-range effects could last for years, they said.

Meanwhile, the National Hurricane Center in Miami reported Hurricanes Faye and Gladys moving through widely separated portions of the Atlantic today, neither posing an immediate threat to land.

Faye, which touched land briefly on Bermuda last week, was rushing eastward in open waters of the North Atlantic at 45 m.p.h, its 75 mile-an-hour winds centered at 6 a.m. near latitude 43.0 north and 36.0 west. But it was rapidly diminishing in force and forecasters said no more advisories would be issued.

Gladys, with winds also estimated at 75 m.p.h., but not diminishing as quickly, was near latitude 22.0 north and longitude 62.2 west or 350 miles northeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico. It was moving west-northwest at 12 m.p.h.

appointed in her parents and in Steven Weed, her fiance, and their response to the SLA demands."

At the end of the summer when the farmhouse lease expired, arrangements for returning Miss Hearst and the Harrises to hiding in California were made by a "new team" that included Kathleen Soliah, now herself a fugitive, and her brother Steve. Scott again drove Miss Hearst, this time westward, Rolling Stone said.

The story leaves off with Scott and Miss Hearst parting at a motel in Las Vegas last September, with plans for her to continue westward to California.

Miss Hearst, the Harrises, Miss Yoshimura and Soliah were all arrested in San Francisco last week.

All are being held — Miss Hearst without bail and the others in lieu of bail — and a hearing is scheduled in San Francisco on Tuesday for a report by court-appointed psychiatrists examining Miss Hearst.

Her mental state comes under increasing scrutiny today as results are studied of tests that her lawyer says are subjecting her to mental anguish.

Attorney Terence Hallinan said he will try again Tuesday to convince U.S. District Court Judge Oliver Carter to move Miss Hearst from her jail cell to a hospital for the rest of the psychological testing.

Hallinan said he would respond at a news conference today to "many questions which have come up and introduce the newest member of the defense team" — noted criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey.

Meanwhile, the Chicago Tribune said in today's editions that more than 30 prominent Californians have been warned by police to take security precautions because their names appeared on a list found in the Harrises apartment in San Francisco.

The Tribune said a detailed report on Charles de Brettville, chairman of the Bank of California and a director of PG&E, was also found in the Harrises' apartment. The newspaper said the report included maps of de Brettville's Woodside, Calif., home, and notes on his daily routine.

In Hartford, Conn., on Sunday, Bailey called a news conference to fire a round in what may become a duel between Browning and the defense team.

Bailey said he suspected that Browning, a former politician with roots in San Mateo County where Miss Hearst is being held, may have used his influence to get jail authorities to tape a conversation between Miss Hearst and a friend, Patricia Tobin.

Excerpts of the conversation were made public by Judge Carter. Miss Hearst was quoted as saying she did not want bail if she was going to be a prisoner in her parents' home and she described herself as a "revolutionary feminist."

Bailey said Miss Hearst "wasn't warned that any taping was going on. The fact that the U.S. attorney in the case is from the same district where the jail is located is rather suspect."

Reagan appeal strong in South

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan is nearly as popular with Southern voters as President Ford, according to a copyrighted poll.

The poll, released in the Atlanta Constitution, also indicated:

—Both Ford and Reagan would defeat Alabama Gov. George Wallace in head-to-head presidential races.

—Wallace easily leads former Govs. Jimmy Carter of Georgia and Terry Sanford of North Carolina.

—Wallace is the only Democratic contender with strong support in Dixie.

Ontario man reports beating

After being treated for head injuries Sunday, a 56-year-old Ontario man reported to police that he was beaten and robbed by three men Sunday night as he was walking in the area of Campus Avenue and Park St.

Jose Z. Rodriquez of 307 E. Park St. told officers nearly 10 hours after the incident took place that the three men in a older black car stopped and attacked him on the street, taking his wallet containing a small amount of cash. Rodriquez was unable to give officers a better description of his assailants.

Police were called to the Rodriquez home after the Ontario Fire Department rescue squad responded to a report that a man was injured. Rodriquez gave no explanation as to why he did not report the incident sooner.

Cut taxes: Reagan

CHICAGO (AP) — Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan proposed on Friday a $25 billion federal income tax cut next year and a $90 billion cut in federal spending.

Reagan said his proposal would "cut the federal personal income tax burden of every American by an average of 23 per cent."

Reagan said his plan would wipe out current deficit spending and still leave enough extra money in the federal treasury to reduce the national debt by $5 billion dollars.

He said his proposed budget cuts could be achieved by transferring authority "in whole or part" from Washington back to local government for administration of welfare, education, housing, food stamps, medical care and community development.

"An immediate tax cut, some of which might have to be balanced by tax rises in the states, would be only the beginning of the savings that could be achieved." Reagan told 1,600 business executives at a luncheon.

Latest fires contained

By The Associated Press

Fire fighters hope they have beaten back the latest thrust of California's annual fall fire season after tough blazes broke out over the weekend near Santa Maria and San Bernardino.

A forest service spokesman said fire fighters had encircled both weekend blazes that were fanned by gusty winds and blazing temperatures.

The fire near San Bernardino had threatened the mountain resort area of Rim Forest, but fire fighters were able to keep the blaze away from the area.

Four hundred acres, most old burn area from the Big Bear fire of 1970, were blackened by the blaze, the spokesman aid.

There were no injuries, nor any damage to structures reported in either of the weekend fires.

The blaze in a remoate area 28 miles east of Santa Maria blackened 1,550 acres before fire fighters were able to stop it Sunday.

Fanned by Santa Ana winds gusting to 40 miles per hour last week, brush fires in Southern California blackened an estimated 63,000 acres.

The biggest fire of the year in California, in the badlands area near Riverside, burned 20,250 acres before it was contained.

Assassinating Anderson wasn't in plans—Hunt

NEW YORK (AP) — Time magazine says Watergate figure E. Howard Hunt maintains he was never ordered to assassinate columnist Jack Anderson — only to drug him.

Time said its correspondent, David Beckwith, interviewed Hunt at the federal prison at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida about reports that the Richard M. Nixon administration had put out a murder contract on Anderson.

The Washington Post said last week Hunt had told associates he was once ordered to assassinate Anderson, but that the order was canceled at the last minute.

Anderson said at the time of the newspaper report he did not believe anyone in the Nixon administration would seriously suggest murder.

Beckwith said Hunt denied the assassination plot but said then-White House counsel Charles Colson proposed drugging the writer in order to discredit him. The White House was allegedly angered by Anderson's reporting of inside information about the administration.

The idea, said Time, was to administer a drug to Anderson before one of his live radio appearances and "cause him to ramble incoherently."

Contacted by Time, Colson denied ever hearing of such a plan.

Hunt said he and another Watergate conspirator, G. Gordon Liddy, set up a luncheon meeting with a former Central Intelligence Agency physician and discussed various way of drugging Anderson.

The plans were eventually abandoned and Time quoted Hunt as saying, "It was just another wild idea that never got beyond the proposal stage."

Throwover

The President and Vice President of the United States are the only elective federal offices not elected by direct vote of the people. They are elected by the members of the Electoral College, an institution that has survived since the founding of the nation despite repeated attempts in Congress to alter or abolish it. In three previous presidential elections, the presidential candidate receiving the greatest popular vote failed to win a majority of the electoral votes.

He may be better than Reagan, but . . .

By STEVE LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has not turned out to be the knight in shining armor that some consumer activists hoped he'd be.

But after nine months in office he gets better ratings from consumer groups than former Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"There has been an improvement over Reagan," said Roy Alper, director of California Citizen Action Group. "But it was not as much as we'd hoped for.

"We find that we are at least able to get our views presented and he keeps an open mind until the last minute. Under the previous administration most of the doors were simply closed."

Brown, a Democrat, draws praise from consumer advocates for doubling funding for the Department of Consumer Affair's Divison of Consumer Services and for supporting several consumer oriented bills.

But they fault him for giving only lukewarm support for other measures and for knocking the wind out of attempts to eliminate milk price controls.

"I just don't think that Brown articulated a leadership role as well as he should have," said Ruth Yannatta, chairwoman of Fight Inflation Together, the organization that launched the 1973 meat boycott.

"I think the administration had very narrow goals this year and it clearly wasn't interested in consumer interest bills."

David Jensen, Brown's associate press secretary, defended Brown's record on consumer matters, pointing to his support for several consumer bills and his appointments to consumer agency posts.

Those appointments included Richard Spohn, a former aide to consumer advocate Ralph Nader, as head of the Divison of Consumer Services, Jensen said.

Ray Bonner, West Coast director of the Consumers Union, said Brown didn't push hard enough for a legislation giving laymen a majority on state licensing boards.

After running into strong opposition, Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, was forced to cut the number of public members provided by his two-bill package to just short of a majority.

Both measures are awaiting action in the Senate.

And Bonner contends that stronger leadership from the governor could have avoided amendments weaking two consumer bills approved by the legislature.

One of the measures would require grocers to list prices on each item sold. The other would allow pharmacists to substitute a lower priced, chemically equivalent drug for the brand-name product listed on a prescription.

In its final form the grocery pricing bill is a one-year measure that does not apply to sale items, Bonner said.

He also says Brown could have prevented an amendment to the prescription bill allowing doctors to check a box on the prescription form if they do not want a substitution made.

"What's going to happen is that the drug company is going to prepare prescription blanks with the box already checked," Bonner said.

Brian Paddock of the Western Center on Law and Proverty criticizes Brown for vetoing a bill that would allow the courts to decide how to compensate customers who had been short-changed by a merchant.

Dowsers: they're health-minded

DANVILLE, Vt. (AP) — The practitioners of the art of finding water with a forked stick say their talents extend to healing and protecting a person's health from rays given off by the underground veins of water.

The application of dowsing to health was only one of several topics explored when dowsers from three continents met over the weekend in this northeastern Vermont town for their annual convention.

Classes also were held on building dowsing confidence, diverting water veins and dowsing to grow and heal plants.

"As you can see, dowsing has come a long way from the days of the farmer walking around his land with a Y-shaped apple stick and waiting for it to point to the ground — indicating a vein was underneath," said dowser Ted Kaufmann of New York City.

"All underground water veins give off radiation which are bad for you," Gordon MacLean told a seminar on the relationship of noxious rays to health.

"But a good dowser can fix the problem in 10 minutes," said the 86-year-old MacLean, of South Portland, Maine.

The rays can be deflected by placing a metal rod on the ground directly over the vein or putting a wire around an affected house, he said.

It's a combination of the rays and mind concentration that makes divining possible, said many of the 300 persons attending the 15th annual convention of the American Society of Dowsers, Inc.

And the dowsers said their divining rods respond only to the object of their concentration.

"If I'm looking for a pipe, I can walk over all the water veins I want and get no reaction," MacLean said. "That's what I call selectivity, and it proves that a lot of it's in your mind, even if we don't know how it works."

Divining was used by early man, says the society, citing an 8,000-year-old drawing depicting a dowser found in caves in the Atlas Mountains of the Sahara desert.

It was a well accepted practice in Europe about the time America was discovered, and the colonists quickly transferred the art to the new world, said society spokesman Kaufmann.

"Dowsers were well respected members of the community, and colonists who dug wells without their advice were thought to be fools," he said.

Jack Livingston of Newcastle, Calif., is a modern-day example of a professional dowser who's developed his talent beyond simple location of water.

"I can tell how deep it is, how large the vein is, the temperature of the water and whether it's polluted," said the cigar-puffing Livingston. "When I saw the astronauts on the moon on television, I could tell where water was," he claimed. "Time and distance don't mean a thing."

Small bottles

Few women like to carry fullsize bottles of shampoo and hair conditioner with them for short trips or overnight stays. Solving this packing problem are mini-size bottles of a hair care line that includes lemon, balsam, herb and wild strawberry shampoos, rainwater rinse, hair conditioner and body conditioner. Take along what you need.

TRANSPORTATION — Ever since humans invented the wheel they've shown a remarkable preference for rolling rather than plodding. That usually makes it easier to get around. But Carrie Mason, 7, and her sister Lisa, 10, who travel tandem-style on a skateboard near their home in Eugene, Ore., may change that trend. The way they do it makes even crawling on hands and knees look like an easier bet.

Oryx no longer rare in the Phoenix zoo

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The white oryx, hunted nearly to extinction in its native Saudi Arabia, is reproducing at the Phoenix zoo at a rate that makes local jackrabbits take notice.

"We started in 1963 with nine animals," said Wayne Homan, curator of animals. "We're up to 43 here and we sent six to San Diego which have bred four or five more, and Los Angeles has about 17. They started with three from here in 1965."

If left to multiply at that rate, calculator clickers say some 2 million oryx would overrun the Southwest in 50 years.

"But the whole idea of the herd in Phoenix is to get these animals back into Saudi Arabia," said Homan. "It may be five or 10 years before they can offer the protection they need, though."

The oryx, about the size of a cow with two rapier-like black horns, was believed to have inspired ancient legends of unicorns.

"Their flight-distance is quite large," Homan said. "So early man never got too close, and he would have seen the oryx as having one horn, from the side."

Homan plans to ship two more females to the San Diego Wild Animal Park soon, and is considering proposals from other Southwestern zoos to divide up the herd as insurance against disease wiping out the species.

The animals were flown to Phoenix in Air National Guard planes in 1963 when it became evident that Arab hunters, using four-wheel-drive vehicles and high-powered rifles, could kill the last of them.

The last survivors in the wild Rub Al Khali Desert across south central Saudi Arabia may have been killed now, Homan said, but five are kept on a preserve in the capital city of Ryadh for breeding.

In Phoenix, one of the oryx's major problems is that he tends to be too healthy.

"They're so efficient, they can get fat practically on the air they breathe," said Homan. "We have to watch their calories, or they will not develop a strong bone and nervous structure."

A special "oryx mix" of nutrients is scattered in pellets on the ground in their pen, along with a ration of bermuda grass, Homan said.

Attendants don't go into the pen unless they have an escape route, Homan added, because breeding males and nursing cows can become aggressive. And that pair of 28-inch horns poses a real-life threat far more formidable than the single horn of folklore.

Besides holding a place in mythology, the oryx may become involved in world politics.

The animals came from Saudi Arabia and will be returned there as soon as a strong world herd is established and the Saudis are able to preserve them, a zoo official explained. Meanwhile, Israel has asked for several oryx for a new game preserve.

"It's an international conservation effort," Homan noted, declining to comment further.

This monkey goes hog wild

SPRINGTOWN, Tex. (AP) — Farmer Odell Chadwell's hired hand is making a pig of himself.

It's a case of life-style, not greed, since the hired hand works for peanuts. Perhaps he merely grew tired of monkeying around.

"That thing believes it owns these hogs," Chadwell chuckled as he eyed the 40-pound monkey resting cowboy-style atop the fence rail surrounding his hog pen.

"We tried to keep it at the house at first," explained Chadwell's son Ken. "But the monkey didn't like it. It came down here to live with these hogs and it's been here ever since."

But nobody's complaining.

The monkey, named "Candy," has turned out to be an amazing pig keeper, the Chadwells say.

The small, red-faced monkey wanders around the hog pen, performing chores and supervising the activities of about 50 crossbred hogs on the Chadwell farm northwest of Fort Worth.

Acquired last year when Ken Chadwell took it in trade for a butane gas purchase, Candy gives special attention to sows and their litters.

WHAT A WONDERFUL WAY TO LOSE FAT!
HELPS YOU LOSE THAT EXTRA WEIGHT
■ NO CALORIE COUNTING! ■ NO EXERCISES!
■ NO SPECIAL DIETS!

Thanks to a group of New York doctors, you can now lose pounds of ugly fat without going on any special diet, without cutting out any special foods.
HELPS REDUCE HUNGRY MOMENTS
These New York doctors discovered a food adjuvant called "MODEL-ETTS."
"Model-etts" does remarkable things. It helps you cut down your caloric intake by a natural automatic curbing of the appetite and of the desire for foods, resulting automatically in a reduced intake of food.
Before "Model-etts" was offered to you, it was tested clinically by the doctors on a large group of non-glandular overweight men and women.
The doctors carefully checked results, and here is what they found:
1. Weight losses of 6 to 20 pounds without any ill effects whatsoever.
2. 96% of the men and women who used "Model-etts" lost weight.
"Model-etts" is absolutely safe. It is a food adjuvant - not a drug.
So, start today to shed those unwanted pounds and inches. If your condition is glandular or organic, see your doctor. "Model-etts" may help you stay on the diet your doctor recommends. Ask him about it.
You can get a full month's supply of "Model-etts" for $3.00 on money back guarantee. In clinical tests, "Model-etts" was 96% successful. "Model-etts" may not be 100% successful in all cases, but you take no risk in trying "Model-etts" on our Money Back Guarantee.
Come to General Nutrition to get "MODEL-ETTS." The sooner you start, the sooner you may have the loss of weight you yearn for.

Sounds too good to be true, but it is true!

How Model-etts Curbs Your Appetite
In the opinion of the supervising physician, based on the average of weight losses in the clinical tests, his calculations showed that 1 Model-etts Wafer has the hunger satisfying capacity of 1 pound boiled potatoes or 4 eggs or 5 slices of white bread, yet it contains only 6 calories.

Nutritional science knows that you need Vitamin C every day. It affects every single cell in your body. Yet your body can't store it. So you can see how important it is to be sure of getting enough Vitamin C.
That's where Nutrition Square Natural Vitamin C with Acerola comes in. These new chewable Vitamin C tablets have such a wonderfully tangy true fruit taste, people love to chew them like candy. 'New England travel movie scheduled at Citrus College

"Robert Frost's New England" will open the "Tour America" film series of the Citrus College Community Service in the Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 23.

Narrated by Dewitt Jones, the film uses the poetry of Frost as a basis for exploring New England and meeting its people. Drawing on Frost's own experiences in New England, including his life as a farmer in New Hampshire, Jones illustrates in color film sequences the poet's strong belief in "education by presence."

"Robert Frost's New England" is the second film in a trilogy on North America. The first, the highly acclaimed "John Muir's High Sierra," was nominated for two Academy Awards, and won the Cine Golden Eagle Award as the best environmental film of the year.

A skilled film-maker before he was 30, Jones has produced films under the auspices of the National Geographic Society, for David Wolper Productions and for a number of national advertisers. His brilliant still photography has been seen in the National Geographic Magazine and other publications.

Jones is a graduate cum laude of Dartmouth College, and holds a master's degree from UCLA.

MERRY MAESTRO — Comedian Danny Kaye lets out a two-fingered whistle blast to catch the attention of members of the London Symphony Orchestra during a practice session in the Henry Wood Rehearsal Hall in London. He conducted the orchestra in "An Evening with Danny Kaye" Saturday.

Jazz concert

The Preservation Hall Jazz Band will present a concert in Gymnasium 3 at Mt. San Antonio College at 8 p.m. Saturday. Tickets at $4 general, $2 for students, are on sale at the MSAC Community Services Office and all ticket agencies.

The world-famous band, on tour from its home in New Orleans, is made up of the people who actually created the music — the men who were there when marches, quadrilles, blues, spirituals and ragtime all were merged into "jass," as it was called.

Members of the band who will be playing at the two-hour concert include Sing Miller, piano; Percy G. Humphrey, trumpet; Big Jim Robinson, trombone; Cie Frazier, drums; Allan Jaffe, tuba, and Willie J. Humphrey, clarinet.

The "youngster" in the Preservation Hall Jazz Band was born in 1910. All of the members of the band are over 60.

Jim Croce's records enjoying new revival

By Stephen Ford

NEW YORK (NEA) — A few years back, Jim Garner and Dick Van Dyke made a movie about an artist in Paris whose paintings never sell until he's believed dead. Then his work transforms into masterpieces and everyone scrambles for them.

With all due respect, one begins to wonder if the 1973 death of Jim Croce has set a herd of leprechauns to work repackaging his most ancient material wtih hopes of spinning gold from vinyl.

It seems more of Croce's work has appeared after his death than before and there's still another LP by him coming; this one a two-record set. Entitled "The Faces I've Been", it is an anthology culled from his pre-1971 material and is largely remakes of hits from the '50s. Croce's ability as an artist were growing with each album. He was tragically silenced just as he was polishing off his rougher spots. Sometimes, people expose a lot of new ones by rummaging out embryonic tapes the singer had never meant to be released or was glad had been forgotten.

Angels hitless in grand finale

OAKLAND (AP) — "Nothing was going to change our plans," explained Oakland A's Manager Alvin Dark, who wasn't planning on a no-hitter.

The A's made a little bit of baseball history Sunday as Vida Blue, Glenn Abbott, Paul Lindblad and Rollie Fingers combined to no-hit the California Angels in a 5-0 victory on the final day of the regular season.

The four-man effort sends the A's, seeking their fourth consecutive world championship, into the American League playoffs against Boston with a 98-64 record.

The A's relief star, Fingers, nailed down the major league's first four-man no-hitter with two innings of work which sent his earned run average under 3.00. Blue worked the first five innings to gain his 22nd victory and Abbott and Lindblad worked one inning each.

Blue was scheduled to go just five innings, in his final tuneup for a start in the second playoff game, and the no-hit bid wasn't going to change Dark's mind.

The left-handed starter said later, "I just wanted to come into the clubhouse and watch the football games."

The hot finish by the pitching staff and Reggie Jackson's 35th and 36th homers, tying him with Milwaukee's George Scott for the AL title, brightened up the clubhouse after the game, but there was concern over an injury Joe Rudi suffered in the third inning.

"The doctors tell me it's not as bad as last time," said Dark, "so I'm not going to say anything else until we find out exactly what's wrong."

First baseman Rudi left the game after hurting his left thumb swinging the bat. He tore ligaments in the same thumb in August and missed five weeks of play.

Jackson said early last week, after clubbing his 33rd and 34th homers in the pennant-clinching game against Chicago, that he'd like to tie rather than beat his old friend Scott in the home run race.

"To be realistic, I didn't have a very good chance to catch 'The Boomer,' but I was swinging for the fence every time. I'm happy that's the way it turned out," Jackson said.

The regular season turned out very well for A's owner Charles O. Finley, too, as a Fan Appreciation Day crowd of 22,000 made total attendance 1,077,000, by far an Oakland record and an increase of 240,000 over last season.

But neither Finley nor his players are satisfied.

There's that "Keep It Alive in '75" cry to live up to.

GRAND PRIX Formula 5000 cars race through downtown Long Beach Sunday. It was the first time in 23 years a major auto race had been held on city streets. Over 65,000 saw Brian Redman win.

65,000 watch L.B. Grand Prix

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The sounds of big league auto racing have echoed through city streets in the United States for the first time in 23 years, creating a happening that seemingly overshadowed the race.

There were people clinging to steep high-rise rooftops by their fingertips Sunday watching Brian Redman, of England win the inaugural Long Beach Grand Prix, a $100,000 race for powerful Formula 5000 cars.

Others packed apartment balconies, sat on the front porches of old folks' retirement hotels and watched from the ledges of fire escapes and threater marquees.

"I couldn't believe the crowd and the enthusiasm," said Redman, who won his second consecutive Formula 5000 series championship with the victory.

"If the crowds would like this in other street races, we'll I'd like to see all the other races street races."

Redman inherited the lead on the 35th lap of the 50-lap dash on the 2-mile course when Mario Andretti and aggressive Tony Brise, a newcomer from England, brokedown after leading the race and a spectacular duel.

Redman, a 16-year racing veteran, admitted he was driving conservatively after mechanical troubles in practice and eased his way home by a half-minute to win the $30,000 first prize. Vern Schuppan of Australia was second and won $16,000.

The crowd was estimated at 65,000 for the first major street race in this country since the Watkins Glen Grand Prix in New York in 1952.

Promoter Chris Pook said, "We've got a lot of edges to polish but I really expected more problems than we had."

One problem was a delay, caused partly by the crowd moving around, that forced the end of the race into dusk and put the setting sun into drivers' eyes on the swifest part of the course.

Another problem, Pook conceded, was attendance. He said a paid crowd of 52,000 was needed to break even for the event but the paid gate was announced at 46,500.

If attendance was less than expected, the total effect was more than hoped for. Pook said of the race that organizers hoped would brighten the conservatives image of this city of 380,000.

The organizers offered free weekend trips out of town to any of the many older retired people living along parts of the race course, but officials said only 100 or so individuals accepted and many heads were seen peering out of windows of the retirement homes.

The cars hit speeds of around 150 miles an hour past movie theaters and pizza parlors on the main street and 170 or more along the shoreline where ailboats cruised in the afternoon sun and the Queen Mary sat across an inlet.

"The course is a bit too tight," Redman said of the difficult, narrow track lined by four-ton concrete barriers and special crash cushions. Tight turns on the 12-turn course and wrenching hairpins kept Redman's winning average speed to 86.325 m.p.h. Pook said, "Quite frankly we wanted to keep the speed down on city streets for safety."

The race was safe — no injuries during the race itself after one crackup during practice that officials blamed on excessive speed on an access road.

Rams still own 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers' 10th straight loss to the Los Angeles Rams hurt just a little bit more than the first nine.

"I thought our defense played better than theirs did," said linebacker Frank Nunley after Sunday's 23-14 defeat on the second weekend of the National Football League season.

"We penalized ourselves right out of the game," said Coach Dick Nolan, painfully looking back at the holding call which took a 30-yard gain away from fullback Larry Schreiber, who had caught a Norm Snead pass, midway in the third period.

The 49ers led 14-6 at that point and had thoroughly dominated the game, yielding only 118 yards to Los Angeles' struggling offense. The officials carried the ball from the Rams' 35-yard line to the 49ers' 25, and three plays later Los Angeles scored on a blocked punt.

"The blocked punt gave us the momentum," said Coach Chuck Knox. "The special teams played a tremendous game."

Bill Simpson blocked Tom Wittum's punt attempt and Monte Jackson scooped up the loose ball and went six yards for the touchdown which cut San Francisco's lead to 14-13.

Tom Dempsey kicked his third field goal, a 51-yarder which tied the Rams' distance record, to give Los Angeles the lead early in the final quarter and James Harris clinched the victory with his first touchdown pass of the season, 22 yards to Lawrence McCutcheon with 2:47 left.

The victory moved the Rams into first place in the National Conference West with a 1-1 record, with San Francisco, Atlanta and New Orleans all 0-2.

"We were down and had to come back after last week," said Harris, who completed just one of 10 passes in the opening game loss to Dallas but finished with 15 completions for 193 yards Sunday.

Snead completed 13 of 22 attempts for 135 yards, with one pass traveling 30 yards to Gene Washington for a second period touchdown. He has not allowed an interception through two games.

"But we keep making crucial mistakes and getting crucial penalties. We have to be more consistent on offense," he said.

Wilbur Jackson, the 49ers' leading rusher last season, fumbled away the ball on the first play of the game to set up Dempsey's first field goal. Del Williams and Schreiber did most of the running after that, with Williams speeding 38-yard for a second quarter touchdown.

The 49ers lost their opener to Minnesota, conquerors of the Rams in last year's NFC title game, in another game settled in the final period. The schedule looks a lot easier from here on, starting with winless Kansas City next week.

"We should have beaten the Rams. Breakdowns hurt us again. However, we know we're capable of playing with anybody," said Gene Washington.

THAR SHE GOES!

Tom Dempsey (10), Rams field goal kicker, raises his arms in victory gesture after 51-yard field goal against 49ers in San Francisco Sunday. Quarterback Ron Jaworski (16) and a host of unbelieving 49ers watch. Rams won, 23-14.

Cincy, A's favorites

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Harrah's Reno and Tahoe Racebook named the Oakland Athletics and the Cincinnati Reds favorites on Sunday to win their respective playoff contests for major league baseball pennants.

Oakland was made a 7-5 favorite to defeat the Boston Red Sox for the American League crown, and Cincinnati was picked as a 3-2 favorite over the Pittsburgh Pirates for the National League title, the club announced.

O.J. tops 200 again

By Associated Press

O.J. Simpson tied one of Jim Brown's myriad National Football League records—and the Buffalo Bills tied the Pittsburgh Steelers up in knots.

Simpson, who made a habit two years ago of piling up 200-plus-yard games en route to his 2,003-yard monster that shattered Jim Brown's single-season record of 1,863 yards, got his act together Sunday for the second straight week.

He turned the Steel Curtain defense into scrap iron, rambling for a mind-boggling 227 yards—88 of them on a touchdown jaunt—for his fourth 200-yard game, matching a mark set by the phenomenal Brown.

And it gave him an even 400 yards in two games, a performance which—even this early in the 14-game season—has people buzzing about his possibly shattering the 2,000-yard mark again.

Simpson's stampeding through the Steelers' supposedly invincible line and Joe Ferguson's touchdown passes of seven yards to Reuben Gant and 28 yards to Bob Chandler led the Bills to a 30-21 victory over the defending Super Bowl champions.

In the rest of the NFL it was Dallas 37, St. Louis 31 in overtime; Los Angeles 23, San Francisco 14; Oakland 31, Baltimore 20; New York Jets 30, Kansas City 24; Washington 49, New York Giants 13; Miami 22, New England 14; Minnesota 42, Cleveland 10; Houston 33, San Diego 17; Cincinnati 21, New Orleans 0; Chicago 15, Philadelphia 13, and Detroit 17, Atlanta 14. Green Bay is at Denver tonight.

Whenever O.J. does his thing, he always makes sure to spread the praise to his offensive line. Tackle Joe Greene, the anchor of the Pittsburgh defensive line, doesn't buy it.

"Forget that," he said. "The truth is there ain't nobody else got O.J.

"If you want me to tell you they got a good offensive line, I'm not going to say that," observed Greene, the mainstay of the Pittsburgh defense. "Juice is the one, though he'll never say that."

Simpson's big third-quarter run broke open the game, giving the Bills a 23-0 lead. They were bogged down on their own 12-yard line when he took a handoff on a third-and-one, swung to the outside and flitted down the right sideline. "When I turned the corner and saw daylight, I thought about running the 100-yard dash down in the Superstars," he said, referring to the celebrity competition he dominated last winter in Florida.

"A few times last year it looked like I didn't go all the way when I could have and some of the guys here were kidding me about not having any speed. But I shut them up when I ran a 9.6 in tennis shoes at the Superstars and I showed them today, too."

Franco Harris bulled in twice from one yard out for two of the Steelers belated touchdowns.

Players claim action is illegal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Football League Players Association accused the club owners today of acting illegally in their efforts to seek acceptance of a new collective bargaining agreement.

"We believe that the owners have engaged in illegal conduct throughout the past year but most particularly in the past week in their efforts to go around the union in order to force acceptance of a contract offer," Ed Garvey, union executive director, told a House labor subcommittee.

Citing events of the two past weeks in the contract negotiations that have dragged on for the past 20 months, Garvey said management refused to bargain on a contract offer made last Monday, so each team voted on the proposal.

"In many of the meetings the owner of the team or the general manager came to the meeting to argue for acceptance," he said. "In at least one case the players were told that if they vote to reject the offer, they are voting to strike.

"In other instances the players were told that if they did not accept this offer that the next offer will contain less and in practically every case they were told that the pension plan, which includes the widow's benefit as well as disability benefits, would be terminated unless this agreement is accepted."

Garvey said the players rejected the offer by a nearly 8 to 1 vote, despite the pressure from management.

The union executive director said the association could file illegal conduct charges with the National Labor Relations Board but by the time the complaints were issued, a hearing held and a final determination, 60 to 80 per cent of the players would be out of football.

Dodgers' loss typifies season

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — The Dodgers' final game of 1975 typified a frustrating season.

In losing a 4-2 decision to the Houston Astros Sunday at Dodger Stadium, the Angelenos saw an early lead go down the drain; outhit the opposition, 8-6, but produced fewer runs because they left 10 runners on base.

Lack of the big punch stranded three runners in the third when the Dodgers scored one run. It also left two men on base in both the eighth and ninth innings after the Astros had scored four times in the top of the eighth.

The starting pitching was good, but Charlie Hough had an off day.

Hough (3-7) tried to field an easy tap by pinch-hitter Greg Gross with his chest to open the eighth. Wilbur Howard sacrificed and Gross scored on Art Gardner's hit.

Hough hit Jose Cruz and Cliff Johnson followed with his 20th home run and that was the game.

Prior to Hough's appearance, Rick Rhoden had pitched seven innings of shutout ball before tiring.

The Dodgers' puny attack against Jim York (4-3) netted a fourth-inning run on a walk, Tommy Helms' error, a hit batter and a sacrifice fly. They scored in the ninth on three singles.

A turnout of 36,507 brought the season attendance to 2,539,349. That's a decrease of 93,125 from last year. But it's a tribute to Dodger fans who continued to come out in large numbers even though the team actually was never in the pennant race after late May.

The defending National League champions finished second with an 88-74 record (as compared to 102-60 last year), 20 games behind Cincinnati.

However, a late season spurt (12 wins in 19 games AFTER the Reds clinched the pennant) has persuaded the Dodger brass that no serious problems exist.

The collapse this year (42 wins and 44 losses in June, July and August when there was a pennant to be won) is being charged to injuries and a batting slump that engulfed the whole team.

"Our pitching is pretty good," summarized manager Walter Alston. "Our defense is better. We lacked in run production. If everybody comes back healthy, it might take a little care of that problem . . . I'd like to see a healthy (Bill) Buckner, (Bill) Russell and (Joe) Ferguson. But I think I'd like a little more power to go with it."

As a team, Alston's crew made 157 fewer hits and scored 150 fewer runs than last year. There were 21 fewer home runs and 14 fewer doubles.

The Angelenos also wound up dead last in executing doubleplays for the second year in a row. But Alston doesn't think that's any problem.

"I think that speaks well of our pitching staff," he theorized. If the pitching staff doesn't let runners get on, you're not going to make as many doubleplays."

It sounds good. But if it's true, why the talk of shifting Dave Lopes to short and Russell back to center (or trading him)?

DODGER DATA — Steve Garvey had one hit and finished with 210 (same as Pete Rose) three less than Philadelphia's Dave Cash. Garvey hit .310.

Lee Lacy went 1-for-5 and finished with a .314 mark. Lopes did not play and wound up with 77 steals, a .262 average and 108 runs scored

Stanford impressed

By The Associated Press

The Stanford Cardinals might take heart that when San Jose State last beat them in 1971, they went on to defeat Michigan in the Rose Bowl.

However, that fact did not seem to impress anyone in the Cardinal's dressing room following the 18-ranked Pacific-8 team's unexpected 36-34 loss to the Spartans Saturday.

"I definitely feel San Jose State should be in the rankings someplace," said Stanford coach Jack Christainsen, whose team fell to a 0-2-1 record.

"I don't think the final score was indicative of the game," he added. "San Jose dominated it most of the time."

Undefeated in three outings, the Spartans held a 30-7 halftime lead and held on for the win despite Stanford's late rally.

"We tried not to be too conservative," said Spartan coach Darryl Rogers, adding that the final score was a little too close for comfort.

White not suffering a loss, third-ranked Southern California also experienced a little more trouble than expected Saturday in fending off Purdue in Los Angeles.

The Big 10's Boilermakers dominated the scoreless first half before Southern California's Danny Reece scored on punt returns of 47 and 68 yards sparking the Trojans' regroup for a 19-6 win.

Trojan quarterback Vince Evans marshalled a 72-yard drive in the third quarter and capped it with a one yard run. Then came Reece's two long punt returns which put the game out of the reach of the Boilermakers, who took their third straight loss before a crowd of 56,170.

More surprising perhaps was UCLA's 20-20 tie with Air Force at the Falcon's Colorado base. Air Force rallied for 17 points in the third quarter for the draw with the 10th ranked Bruins.

"I can't remember when we had a more emotional output against such a super team," said obviously happy Air Force Coach Ben Martin.

"We thought our only chance in the game was to open up the offense, and we did that with good protection and with the receivers really looking out for the ball. We used mostly sprintouts going away from the pressure."

UCLA Coach Dick Vermeil said he felt the key to the game "was our four turnovers, and them eating our defense alive throwing the ball."

In Pullman, Wash., California overcame a third quarter deficit and defeated Washington State 33-21 in a Pac-8 Conference game.

"We always entertain the fans," said Bears Coach Mike White of games between the two colleges. "Today's game was just like always."

Down 21-20, California put together a 95-yard scoring drive that ended early in the fourth quarter with a touchdown by quarterback Joe Roth. But the two-point conversion try failed.

Freshman Paul Jones completed a 60-yard drive late in the quarter for the final touchdown. Jones also scored the game's first points on a two-yard first-quarter dash.

Oregon State visited Lawrence, Kan. only to be trounced 20-0 by Kansas. Kansas never permitted the Beavers to wander beyond their hosts' 26. The loss gives the Beavers an 0-3 mark.

The Oregon Ducks, meanwhile, stretched their losing skein to 11 games as Minnesota's Brian Kocourek kicked a 37-yard field goal with 32 seconds to play, inching the Gophers to a 10-7 win in Minneapolis.

Oregon scored its first touchdown in over 10 quarters of play when little Greg Bauer dashed unnoticed into the corner of the end zone to take a 15-yard scoring pass from Jack Henderson late in the final quarter.

In Los Angeles, wide receiver Ed August caught two long-scoring bombs from teammate Dave August as San Francisco State triumphed 21-14 over Cal State Los Angeles in a non-conference game. San Francisco is 1-1-1 with the victory, while the Diablos are 0-2.

UC-Davis quarterback Adam Williams intercepted a Northridge State pass and dashed 84 yards as the Davis team dumped its visitors 20-3.

Northridge's only score came on a 40-yard field goal by Dan Peverini in the second period.

Cal Poly-Pomona downed Northern Arizona 3-0 in a defensive battle in Pomona. Al Crumlish kicked a 27-yard field goal with only a second remaining in the first half for the game's only score.

Tailback Gary Davis of Pomona's Garey High, bettered 100 yards for the fifth consecutive game in leading Cal Poly San Luis Obispo to a 23-10 victory over Fullerton State in San Luis Obispo. Davis averaged 4.7 yards a carry and totalled 150 of Poly's 222 rushingyards.

Poor night for Czonka

By The Associated Press

It wasn't one of Larry Csonka's better performances.

The former Miami Dolphin star, who abandoned the National Football League in favor of a lucrative contract with the World Football League, was supposed to tear up WFL defenses this season.

Sunday night, however, Csonka was less than overpowering, gaining only six yards on seven carries as his Memphis team met San Antonio. Ex-Dolphin teammates Jim Kiick, 37 yards on eight carries, and Paul Warfield, three catches for 58 yards, didn't help much either as the Grizzlies were beaten 25-17 by the Wings.

San Antonio, the Western Divison leader, built a 25-3 halftime lead and hung on for its seventh victory in 10 outings. Memphis, leader in the East, dropped to 6-2.

Shreveport beat the Hawaiians 32-25 in Sunday's other WFL game. Saturday Southern California got by Charlotte 24-17 and Jacksonville dumped Birmingham 26-18.

Defensive back Larry Crowe set up a first-period touchdown for San Antonio with a 35-yard punt return and then ran back a kickoff 57 yards to set up a second-period TD. Billie Sadler got both scores with short runs.

Johnnie Walton's 15-yard pass to Dave Yaege accounted for the other Wings' TD. Memphis made it close in the second half when running back John Harvey threw a 49-yard touchdown pass to Ed Marshall and then ran eight yards for another score.

The announced attendance at San Antonio was 16,283.

Edd Hargett was the big gun for Shreveport, 4-5, throwing for touchdowns of 69 yards to Ricky Scales, 16 yards to Jim Nance and 11 yards to John Odom. Nance also rushed for 113 yards and one touchdown.

The Steamer built an 18-0 lead before the Hawaiians, 3-5, rallied behind reserve quarterback Rick Cassata who completed a 21-yard TD pass to Steve Haggerty to pull within seven points with 6½ minutes left. But a last-ditch Hawaiians' threat ended when Darryl Johnson intercepted a pass on the goal line in the final minute of play.

Attendance was listed at 21,349.

Anthony Davis ran for 101 yards on 22 carries and caught seven passes for another 109 yards for Southern California, 5-4. The Sun defense limited Charlotte, 4-4, to 63 yards on the ground and picked off five Hornet passes.

George Mira completed 14 of 25 passes for 223 yards and a pair of touchdowns for Jacksonville, 5-3. Mira put the Express ahead for good with a 40-yard scoring aerial to Steve Barrios in the fourth quarter. Birmingham is now 6-3.

Hill is the non-loser

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Dave Hill, the gritty beneficiary of a lot of other people's mistakes, was attempting to explain his victory in the Sahara Invitational Golf Tournament.

"I've said it before and I'll say it again. More golf tournaments are lost than won. And this one definitely was lost," he said.

"After this, I'm going back to believing in miracles."

The sometimes-stormy Hill, whose 17-year career has been marked by countless fines, suspensions, controversies, legal actions and now 12 victories, claimed the title and the $27,000 first prize Sunday when Rik Massengale's bold gamble for the green ended in the water on the first sudden death playoff hole and skinny ol' Davy won it with a safe, cautious, routine par.

"I was just fortunate to get in the playoff," said Hill, who had made double-bogey six after leaving it in a fairway bunker on the ninth hole at the 6,800-yard Sahara-Nevada Country Club course.

"I figured the game was over," Hill said. "The way I played the first nine holes my handicap should be about eight. From then on I was just trying to find a golf swing."

But his game suddenly came right. He played the back nine in 32 while the other contenders—six different players either led or shared the lead at one time on the hot, sunny day—fired and fell back.

Bruce Crampton hit it out of bounds on the 15th hole. George Cadle lost his share of the lead when he found the water on the same hole. Bob Wynn drifted back. Bobby Mitchell never really got it going.

"After I birdied the 15th," Hill said, "my caddy told me I was tied for the lead. The only thing I could think was: 'four or five of them other guys must have suddenly withdrew.'"

They hadn't. They'd just fallen back in the brilliant sunshine that sent the desert temperatures soaring to the 100-degree mark.

Hill also birdied the 17th from short range just about the time Massengale, playing in front of him, birdied the 18th. It gave each of them a last round 69 and a 270 total for 72 holes, 14 under par on the beautifully conditioned little layout that provided some of the lowest scoring and one of the tightest races of the year.

The playoff was over when Massengale tried to reach the green on the par-five first hole in two.

"I felt a lot better about things when I saw him reach in the bag and pull out a wood," Hill said.

Massengale put it in the water.

It was all over. Massengale, so upset his hands were visably shaking, played out to a bogey and Hill had it.

Joe Inman had a shot at the playoff but, on the final hole, missed a three-foot putt. He finished with a 67 and a tie at 271, one shot back, with Mitchell. Mitchell had a closing 70.

Cadle and Crampton, playing on his 40th birthday, each had the lead alone at one time, but finished in a tie at 272 with Charles Coody and Don January. January had a five-under-par 66. Coody shot 68 and Cadle and Crampton matched 70.

Vesco tops 300; record not official

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (AP)—The governing board of the Federation Internationale Motocycliste is to consider at a meeting next month in Belgium whether to regard as official a speed record set here over the weekend by motorcycle speedster Don Vesco of El Cajon, Calif.

Vesco, after trying for more than a month to top the 300 m.p.h. mark on the salt flats, flashed to a 302.9 m.p.h. average on two runs. FIM rules say a record must be the average of two runs over the measured mile, and within one hour.

The 36-year-old Californian's mark was made in his streamlined Silver Bird-1 Yamaha, which was powered by two 750 cc engines.

The run topped the record 299.5 m.p.h he did on Saturday.

The runs were clocked by American Motorcycle Association timers, and a publicist for Vesco said they were fast enough for recognition by the AMA and the FIM, the international sanctioning body.

Vesco also set a new AMA mark of 303.8 m.p.h. on two runs nearly two hours apart. That's the U.S. association's time limit between runs.

Vesco was stymied by wind and what he called poor salt conditions during the annual Bonneville Salt Flats Speed Week in August. He made 12 major runs during his four days at the flats this month.

Vesco said the salt flats, which motorcyclists and auto speed drivers have said are deteriorating, were "bumpy as a motocross course" on the south end.

Before this record-setting week, Vesco was the American speed record holder at 281.7 m.p.h., but didn't hold the international mark. He made equipment changes between legs of his earlier record run, which is not allowed by international regulations.

Managers biting dust

By Associated Press

Major league baseball managers may have more job security than South American politicians, but not much more.

The ax fell on two necks Sunday with the promise of more to come as the 1975 regular season came to a close. Del Crandall was fired by the Milwaukee Brewers and Frank Quilici was dismissed by the Minnesota Twins. That brought the number of managers fired during the season to eight.

Two of them—Billy Martin, who went from Texas to the New York Yankees, and Bill Virdon, from the Yanks to Houston—found immediate employment. The others—Crandall, Quilici, Jack McKeon of Kansas City, Yogi Berra of the Mets, Preston Gomez of Houston and Clyde King of Atlanta— are still looking.

The firings of Crandall and Quilj did not come as great surprises. Both presided over losing teams—the Brewers finished 68-94, the Twins 76-83— whose managements had better things in mind.

Crandall, who spent 3½ years as Brewer manager, was dismissed before his club's final game. He saw it coming.

"I think the way the situation was, I had a little time to prepare myself for the inevitable," the former Milwaukee

Cowboys win in sudden death

Cowboys 37, Cardinals 31

"It was the most exciting game I've ever been in," said Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach, whose three-yard scoring pass to Billy Joe Dupree with 7:53 gone in sudden-death overtime beat the Cards.

"I thought we had it put away but the Cardinals just kept coming back," Staubach said. "But Lee Roy Jordan (middle linebacker) gave us the game with that interception. He saved it for us." Jordan intercepted St. Louis quarterback Jim Hart and returned it 38 yards to the Cardinal 37-yard line to set up the winning touchdown.

Hart pitched four touchdown passes for St. Louis, the last a 37-yarder to Mel Gray with 46 seconds to go to send the game into a fifth period.

Raiders 31, Colts 20

Cornerback Neal Colzie returned four Baltimore punts for 104 yards, three of them setting up scores, and ran 38 yards with a fourth-quarter interception that helped Oakland overhaul and stave off the upstart Colts.

Jets 30, Chiefs 24

John Riggins ran for 145 yards and two touchdowns and Carl Garrett tacked on 135 yards and a score in the Jets' victory over Kansas City.

Redskins 49, Giants 13

A defensive line that sacked New York quarterbacks eight times and two touchdown strikes apiece by Billy Kilmer and Randy Johnson highlighted Washington's walloping of the Giants.

Dolphins 22, Patriots 14

Don Nottingham, promoted to the starting lineup after Larry Csonka defected to the World Football League, broke loose for 120 yards—all but 15 of them in the second half, to wake up the Dolphins, who spotted New England a 14-0 lead on a pair of Neil Graff touchdown passes.

Vikings 42, Browns 10

Fran Tarkenton passed for two touchdowns—29 yards to John Gilliam and 13 yards to Chuck Foreman—and ran two yards for another score in Minnesota's mauling of the Browns.

Oilers 33, Chargers 17

Defensive lineman Curley Culp scored his first pro touchdown in eight years, running 38 yards with a Jesse Freitas fumble on the opening play of the fourth quarter to lock up the Oilers' victory over San Diego. Running backs Ronnie Coleman and Don Hardeman each rushed for more than 100 yards and scored a touchdown for Houston.

Bengals 21, Saints 0

Ken Anderson passed for three touchdowns—52 and five yards to Isaac Curtis and 14 yards to Charley Joiner—in the Bengals' silencing of Cincinnati. Anderson played three quarters and completed 17 of 22 passes for 203 yards.

Bears 15, Eagles 13

Rookie running back Walter Payton seemed to have killed a Chicago threat when he was nailed with a clipping penalty and then a personal foul against the Eagles. But he shrugged it off, caught three passes for 27 yards and rushed for 23 to set up Bob Thomas' game-winning 26-yard field goal with eight seconds left.

"I didn't feel any pressure because they were calling penalties against me," said Payton. "I just felt pressure because the clock was running out and we were trying to get in field goal position."

Lions 17, Falcons 14

Detroit converted fourth-down gambles on two touchdown drives and tripped the Falcons on Altie Taylor's one-yard plunge with barely a minute to play.

"I just had that feeling," Lions' Coach Rick Forzano said of his fourth-down gambling. "I'm just built that way—to take chances.

Broncos host Packers on TV

DENVER (AP) — Their reaction wasn't recorded, but Denver's Otis Armstrong and Green Bay's John Brockington must have at least sighed when they learned of O.J. Simpson's rushing feat Sunday.

The Juice galloped for 227 yards, giving him an even 400 for the season in just two games and a whopping lead over his competition...if there is any.

Armstrong and Brockington had been considered prime contenders for the National Football League rushing title, which was won by Armstrong last year with 1,407 yards. But both have a long way to go now. Armstrong ran for 82 yards in the season opener last week, and Brockington got 55.

They'll be looking for improvement tonight when the Denver Broncos and the Green Bay Packers meet in a nationally televised game.

Armstrong admits that going against a runner of Brockington's stature gives him an added incentive. He may have even

Ali continues as 2-1 choice

MANILA (AP) — Gamblers' odds still favor Muhammad Ali, but local sentiment has taken a sharp shift to challenger Joe Frazier two days before their battle for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world.

This was evident both at Saturday's official weigh-in and at brief workouts Sunday where unofficial noise meters showed the usual "Ali, Ali, Ali" chants drowned out by "Go, Go, Smokin' Joe."

Unquestionably, Ali's marital problems last week cut heavily into his popularity in this highly religious, family-oriented little country as well as perhaps, in other parts of the world.

Ali continues a 2-1 choice with Los Vegas bookmakers but promoter Don King reported he has been informed these odds were almost certain to tighten before the 10:45 a.m. starting bell Wednesday (7:45 p.m., PDT, Tuesday).

Promoters expect the indoor coliseum to be a 25,567 sellout, with a gross of $1.8 million. Headquarters reports are of quickening interest in the 68 countries where closed circuit TV is being sold."

"Tragedy money is hard to take delight in," said King, admitting that Ali's problems with his wife, Belinda, conceivably could bolster the television gate, estimated at a likely $22 million.

HEALTH NEWS . . .

By DR. W.P. HELZER, D.C.

An important "good health-keeping" point was illustrated recently with the question: "What is the cause of pins and needles in the hands and arms up to the elbows?"

The point: The diagnosis of a problem and the patient's understanding of it is often as important as the Doctor's treatment.

Dr. Wes Helzer, D.C.

"This particular person, a man in his fifties, complained of the 'pins and needles' problem. He said he had the condition for about two months."

While there was a fairly definite idea of the cause of the tingling sensation, he was told that exact diagnosis of his problem was necessary.

You realize we can't be just "popping off" when a patient asks a question. We must be able to look him square in the eye and give a firm answer.

In this case, he was thoroughly examined and found to have a nerve and cirulatory problem, with pressure on a nerve the cause. The pressure wasn't where the sensation occurred, but was in the neck. Of course, you realize that the nerve trunks extend out and down the spinal column in the neck.

Furthermore, in this individual's case, arthritic changes in the bones were exerting the pressure. Needless to say, the man is being treated for the problem right now, and in his words, "successfully."

And now to the second point: "patient understanding." When a person has, as in this case, the tingling sensation in the arm, it helps if he understands some of the contributing factors to his problem. Pressure of this nature often develops if he remains in a certain position for a long time. Of course, this would mean the manner in which he lies down to sleep. In other words, diet, habit, activity, so many things, can help or hinder a patient's progress or affect the acuteness of a disease. You, therefore, must have a Doctor's accurate diagnosis and the patient's full understanding of the problem.

ROP offering 50 programs in its third year

The Baldy View Regional Occupational Program which serves five local school districts started its third year of operation this fall by offering 50 training programs for high school students at numerous community locations.

Career center specialists who recruit students at each of the high schools to participate in the program were recently guided through the Del Mar Campus of Baldy View ROP in Montclair.

During the summer, this campus underwent modernization and was provided with new modern equipment to assist in the specialized training offered.

Programs in operation at Del Mar campus are auto body and fender repair, brake and transmission servicing, autotronics, motorcycle repair and greenhouse-nursery operations.

The equipment added this summer includes a spray paint booth capable of completely spraying a vehicle under dust-proof conditions, a distributing machine used to detect engine trouble and an Engine Analysis Scope capable of being used on motorcycles.

The ROP center already has a state-approved smog license and is applying for a state brake and headlight adjusting license.

Created in 1972 to serve the job training needs of high school students, Baldy View RPO is sponsored by Bonita, Chaffey, Chino, Claremont and Pomona school districts.

Its governing commission consists of a member of the board of education from each of the cooperating school districts.

ROP is financed entirely from local and state funds. More than 60 ROP programs encompass 95 per cent of California's school districts.

The program operates in cooperation with high schools, community colleges, adult schools, hospitals and private businesses to develop vocational training opportunities. The students take their basic classes on the home campus and the special courses at various training centers.

Youths are selected for the program by the high school career center specialists, based on requests, aptitudes and other academic criteria.

Among the 50 different occupational programs offered are training in airline occupations, pilot training, automotive skills, construction, cosmetology, retail sales, nursing and hospital occupations, restaurant occupations, modeling, welding and electronics.

While some occupational classes meet on high school campuses, most are held in stores, hospitals or airports.

High school students wishing additional information should contact the career center specialist on their campus or call 626-3538.

Community Center opening Sunday

A grand opening for the long-awaited Neighborhood Community Center at Fifth and D streets in Chino tentatively is set for Sunday, Oct. 5.

Recreation officials and local youths are putting the final touches on the center, which will be located in the old GI Cafe in the Chino barrio.

James Stager has been appointed full-time director of the center, which is being supported by funds from the city, school district, and Recreation Commission. About $26,000 has been set aside for the program.

The project was proposed by the Chino Community Action Council, a Mexican-American parents group which has been trying to halt gang violence in the barrio.

Instead of resorting to gangs as their only activity, it is hoped that youths will make use of the recreation center.

Various activities, including arts and crafts, movies and sports will be available at the center. Mothers, children and senior citizens will use it mornings, and in the evenings, youths will utilize it after school.

Although closed on Friday nights, the center will be open from 1 to 7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Stager has said that two part-time employes will be hired to help staff the building, and volunteers will be used.

An 11-year-old boy on a bicycle escaped with minor injuries when he ran into a slowly moving car driven by an 81-year-old man on Wagon Horse Road east of Summit Road, La Verne area, Saturday morning.

Ralph G. Morris, of 2578 Sierra Way, La Verne, the driver, told patrolmen the boy came down a driveway and did not see the oncoming car because of a parked van that blocked his view. The bicyclist, Steven A. Mineer, 11, of 314 W. Rough Rider Road, La Verne, was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

AT SYMPOSIUM

Community hospital medical staff donates $100,000

The medical staff of Pomona Valley Community Hospital has donated $100,000 to the hospital for educational programs and equipment in the medical library, 10 classrooms and the new Russell K. Pitzer Auditorium, announced Dr. Fritz H. Moser, president of the medical staff.

The presentation was announced at a recent two-day medical Symposium to dedicate the auditorium. Two hundred physicians from Southern California participated in seminars which focused on diagnosis and treatment of trauma in the emergency room, the management of acute and chronic pulmonary problems and an update of cancer management.

Physicians were greeted at the symposium by Robert W. Burwell, administrator of the hospital. His opening remarks were carried over the public address system which had been installed just the day before.

The auditorium, library and classrooms are located in the new wing of the hospital at 1798 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, which was dedicated in July, although not all equipment was installed at that time.

Chairmen for the three major seminars were Dr. Robert Dukes, emergency room; Dr. Shirley Martin, pulmonary; and Dr. Morton Kolber, cancer management.

The medical symposium held this weekend is the first in a series of medical programs scheduled for both professionals in medical fields and the general public within the next few months.

Programs already scheduled in the auditorium will center on such subjects as cancer education, child abuse, nutritional and public health information.

Claremont will scan city through special census

Census takers will begin visiting Claremont homes Oct. 22 to gain information for a special census.

The city's last official census, 23,464, was taken in 1970, but the state, using data sent by city officials, has estimated that as of Jan. 1, 1975, Claremont had 24,950 residents.

The special census will allow city officials "to get a better handle on the community's demographic situation, including average income, labor market, number and type of housing units," reported Bill Wojtkowski, city planning associate.

Wojtkowski said that the census might provide economic benefits in the form of more gasoline taxes and Department of Motor Vehicles fees, which the state collects and pays to cities on the basis on per capita population.

The enumerator who calls at residences will wear an identification badge signed by a city official.

"We expect the first visits to cover the entire city in about a week," Wojtkowski explained. "Callbacks for persons not contacted on the first visit will be completed in the first week in November."

Wojtkowski said that the enumerator will ask such questions as "How far do you drive to work?" "How many children do you have?"

Wojtkowski explained that the latter two questions will be of aid to the Claremont school district.

If no will, there's no way

It has proven easier to banish smallpox from the earth than what has been called "mankind's last scourge" — illiteracy.

There are more than 800 million illiterate people in the world and their number is increasing, says UNESCO, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. And one major reason why years of effort and expenditure have not had greater impact on the problem is lack of will.

This conclusion is based on an analysis of literacy projects in UNESCO's Experimental World Literacy Program. Thirteen countries in three continents took part in the program — Algeria, Ethiopia, Guinea, Madagascar, Mali, Sudan, Tanzania, India, Iran, Syria and Ecuador. The degree of success of the projects varied as widely as the countries themselves.

At the beginning of the experiment, says the program's report, "most countries knew how to approach (and in some cases achieve) much more massive literacy as a part of broader socio-economic change, if they wanted to."

But most apparently did not want to. Only Tanzania was stimulated to launch a mass campaign. An eventual worldwide campaign for the eradication of illiteracy, hoped for when the program was launched, is not yet in sight.

"Neither literacy nor development can be willed into existence by international agencies," says UNESCO. "At best they can perhaps prick the conscience of national governments."

Ethnic mix fails to make friends

You can lead kids of different racial or ethnic backgrounds to the same school but you can't make them drink of the cup of fellowship.

That of course, is not the purpose of presently strenuous — and controversial — busing efforts. But if anyone hopes that a greater respect of students for each other, if not friendship, will result from integration, recent research does not support that hope.

According to Dr. Robert J. Wuthnow, assistant professor of sociology at the University of Arizona, a study of 4,500 high school students in three eastern communities suggests that prejudiced attitudes are actually more prevalent in schools with a greater ethnic mix than in those with virtually no minority group members.

The results of the study have been published in a new book, "Adolescent Prejudice," co-authored by Wuthnow and three other researchers.

"Instead of backing up the current belief that prejudice is lessened if there are minorities present in a school to get to know, we found that just the opposite was the case," says Wuthnow.

Because it was funded by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, the study focused primarily on anti-Semitism, but its findings would seem to be universally applicable.

The proportion of Jewish students was 50 per cent in one school, 25 per cent in the second and none in the third, while about 15 per cent of each school's enrollment were black children.

Gentile students in the school with the highest Jewish enrollment were most inclined to demonstrate jealousy about Jews' academic successfulness and to hold stereotyped ideas about Jews.

Evidence was found that throughout the high school years, both majority and minority parents put increasing pressure on their children to date within their own groups. Similarly, the students' listings of their closest friends showed few cross-cultural associations.

In each of the schools, however, it was the better students — "those more intellectually advanced" — who expressed a better understanding of the roots of prejudice.

"If we are to overcome prejudice," says Wuthnow, "our pitch to the schools should be more than physical integration, because the kids just don't seem to get along very well."

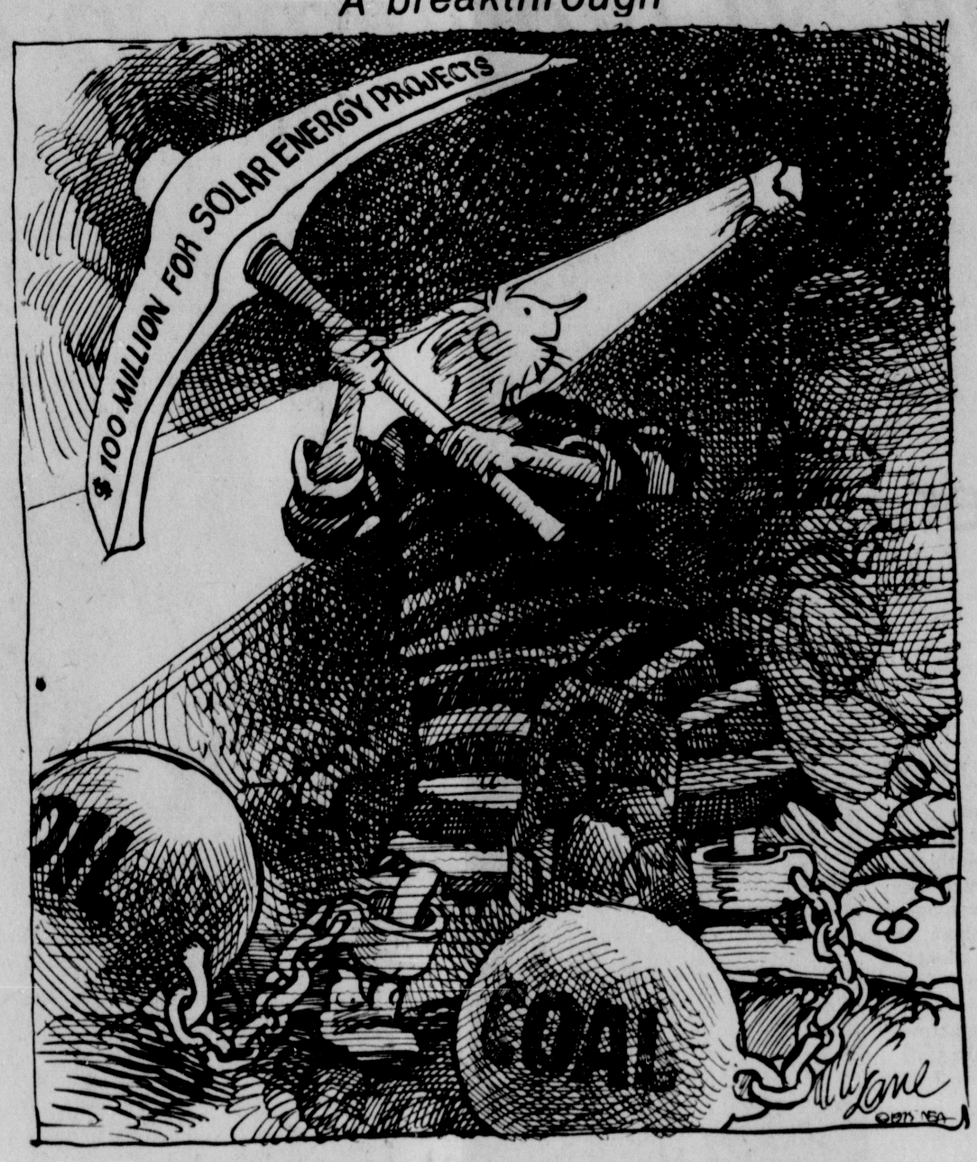

The key, he says, seems to be in explaining why there are cultural differences. We can't deny that there are differences, so schools should teach the social and historical reasons for the differences.

Thoughts

"Every religious sect, from the worshippers of Apollo to the followers of Zoroaster, has its belief or theory. It is beyond the comprehension of this court how the legislature . . . expected that all such theories could be included in any textbook of reasonable size."
— U.S. District Judge Frank Gray, Jr., in a decision striking down a Tennessee law requiring biology textbooks to provide equal space to Biblical and scientific theories.

Opinion is not a ruling

Dear Editor:

In Chino, Citizens for Improved Education realize with one member of the board as editor of the local newspaper, we do not always get impartial coverage. But it is with great shock to have the Progress Bulletin, which is normally impartial, bias our cause.

In the September 24th issue of the Progress Bulletin, the headlines read, "County Counsel Rules Chino Waiting Lists Legal". The person preparing the title was either biased or uninformed. The public should know the facts.

A county counsel is merely an attorney representing the district. He merely gives an opinion, which does not weigh any more legally than the opinion given by the private attorney to CIE. A county counsel cannot rule on a law, he merely gives an opinion. The interpretation of the law when two attorney's opinions differ can be taken to the courts to be ruled on as to legality.

Currently, therefore, as to the matter of the waiting lists, the legality has still not been ruled on.

Who okayed assassinations?

WASHINGTON — The Senate report on CIA assassination attempts has been held up while the senators make a final, probably futile effort to find out who authorized the plots against foreign rulers.

Still unresolved is whether past Presidents were aware of the murder plots. Did men like Dwight Eisenhower, John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon sometimes behave in a manner more befitting a Mafia godfather than President of the United States?

There are two possibilities, both profoundly disturbing. Either the killings had presidential approval, or the CIA arranged them without authorization.

The evidence before the Senate Intelligence Committee is inconclusive. CIA officials, testifying in secret, denied getting any assassination orders from the White House. They admitted under cross examination, however, that they would lie to protect the President.

The same witnesses also denied that the CIA had plotted to kill anyone without authorization. Yet they could never seem to identify who had granted the authorization.

This point is equally vague in the documents that the CIA delivered to the committee. Invariably, the secret memos dealing with assassination plots are unsigned. Some have a name typed at the bottom; others bear no name at all.

There is some evidence that Presidents may have authorized the CIA's participation in an occasional coup or kidnaping. For example, President Kennedy apparently approved an August 23, 1963 cable directing the U.S. embassy in Saigon to arrange the overthrow of South Vietnam's President Ngo Dinh Diem.

There was also secret testimony that President Nixon personally gave CIA chief Richard Helms the green light to go ahead with the 1970 kidnaping of Chile's Gen. Rene Schneider. Nixon allegedly told Helms that Henry Kissinger would be his White House contact on the scheme.

But it was emphatically denied that the Diem and Schneider killings were ever part of the original plans. The Diem coup got out of control, and Schneider put up unexpected resistance, it was explained.

Hints were dropped that the White House wasn't kept entirely in the dark about the assassination plots. As one witness put it, the late CIA chief Allen Dulles informed Presidents of the dirty work by "circumlocution."

Most committee members reportedly believe that past Presidents approved, or at least condoned, the assassination plots but that no record was kept. This gave the Presidents what a draft report calls "plausible deniability."

The draft report runs about 200 pages and is bound in a looseleaf folder. But pages are still being taken out to be rewritten. Key witnesses have also been called back for additional questioning. The assassination report may not be ready, therefore, until the end of the month.

However, here are the committee's preliminary findings:

—In 1960, the CIA plotted to do away with the troublesome Congolese leader, Patrice Lumumba. One method that was explored was poisoning. An official announcement claimed he was slain on Feb. 12, 1961 by Congolese tribesmen after his escape from prison. But according to one bizarre, unconfirmed account, he was given only whiskey to drink and died of alcoholic poisoning. In any event, CIA witnesses denied that the agency had anything to do with his final demise.

—In late 1960, the CIA recruited two Mafia mobsters to knock off Cuba's Premier Fidel Castro. The attempts on Castro's life continued until the spring of 1963. Castro not only was aware of the attempts to kill him, the draft report notes, but also threatened to retaliate against U.S. leaders. The report offers no evidence, however, that Castro had anything to do with the subsequent assassination of President Kennedy a few weeks later.

The chicken roost

The Massachusetts State Legislature is our nation's oldest.

Recently the chambers of that historic lawmaking body were invaded by Americans.

Half-a-hundred ruffians intruded on the house chamber while it was in session, scuffled with guards until several persons were injured, some arrested.

The rude intruders were demanding more welfare!

The liberals who were so convinced that all we had to do was feed and shelter everybody and we'd have a happy, orderly society have to be having some second thoughts about that. They are.

Through the New Deal, the Fair Deal, the New Frontier and the Great Society — so-called "liberal" Americans remained convinced that we could purchase peace, abroad and at home.

That all we had to do was to feed everybody and everybody would be content. So they continued blithely to tax and spend, and suddenly today there are 71.6 million Americans working in our nation's private sector — outside government.

But there are 80.6 million Americans being supported by tax dollars. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz complains that he is running "a welfare agency." He says two-thirds of his entire USDA budget goes for welfare food programs.

We're even giving food stamps to students and workers on strike. Secretary Butz says, "Our country was not made great by people sitting on their fannies and expecting to get paid for it." And similar sentiments are beginning to be echoed by traditional liberals.

Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.) says, "Over the past few years many of us have come to see that one of the greatest dangers to our government is its own bureaucracy."

Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.) says, "Liberals must re-evaluate their posture. Each program looks good, but you put a hundred of them together and the results are more negative than positive."

Sen. Ed Muskie (D-Me.) says, "I don't think you can successfully defend the discredited side of what we tried to do in some programs."

And traditionally liberal states have elected governors — Massachusetts, New York and California — who are cutting back, paring down, reducing government budgets to the extent the citizenry will allow. It was a welfare cutback which triggered the rude invasion of the Massachusetts Legislature.

Excesses ultimately are their own undoing. The entire combined welfare program is being re-evaluated.

Liberal freshman Sen. Gary Hart (D-Colo.) says, "We must start saying to voters, 'Don't look to government for a solution to all your problems.' "

That is hardly traditional liberal rhetoric — but it indicates an encouraging new awareness.

Just in jest

Boy were we poor when I was a kid! Oh sure, we had a roof over our heads and three square meals a day. But can you imagine having to face the vicissitudes of life without a garbage disposal, a trash compactor, or a self-cleaning oven?

Just to show you how poor we really were, we didn't even have an automatic dishwasher, central air conditioning, forced air heating, or wall to wall shag carpeting. Our home sweet home had no wet bar, walk-through wardrobe, swimming pool with a Jacuzzi, or two bathrooms and a sauna — not even a garage with an automatic door opener.

There was no microwave oven, no built-in washer and dryer, no refrigerator with automatic ice maker, and furthermore it didn't have ceramic tile counter tops or a smoke detector. Most frustrating of all, it didn't overlook a golf course, had no burglar alarm system, no private security guard, and the nearest recreation clubhouse was Tivoli Pete's corner saloon. Sometimes I get to wondering how underprivileged families like ours ever managed to survive. In fact, the more I think about it the more convinced I become that I should find me a lawyer willing to take my case on a contingency basis and sue the government for retroactive poverty level supplemental income, plus food stamps, which I would surely have collected if I hadn't, through no fault of my own, been born 76 years too soon.

Looking back on history

Public figures acquire "images" which may accurately reflect what they say and do or may instead reflect the reaction to them by the news media. As tastes and issues change, some images may change, but others may stubbornly stay the same, even though they should change.

Take the images of two U.S. presidents, for example: Calvin Coolidge and Dwight Eisenhower. Coolidge, the dry, unexciting New Englander, is more often than not remembered as a lackluster, almost laughable figure who just happened to occupy the White House for awhile.

Eisenhower, though remembered with affection and respect for his great military accomplishments, has the image, as president, of a genial golf player who didn't stir things up much and who — in the main — presided over a country that rode at anchor for eight years. The late John Kennedy, who followed him, actually campaigned on the slogan, "Get the country moving again."

Are these images true or false? Consider this: H. L. Mencken said Cal Coolidge has been "weaned on a pickle." Was Coolidge a do-nothing president in one of those lulls in our nation's history? If so, we should have such lulls today.

There was better-than-full employment. Jobs were competing for workers. The cost of living went DOWN 2.3 per cent.

The federal budget was actually reduced and some of the national debt accumulated in World War I was paid off.

During "Silent Cal's" presidency the number of automobiles owned by Americans tripled and a great new industry — radio — went from $60 million in annual sales to $842 million. They laughed when Calvin Coolidge said, "The business of America is business," but we had true peace and prosperity — those things we are promised so often, but given so seldom.

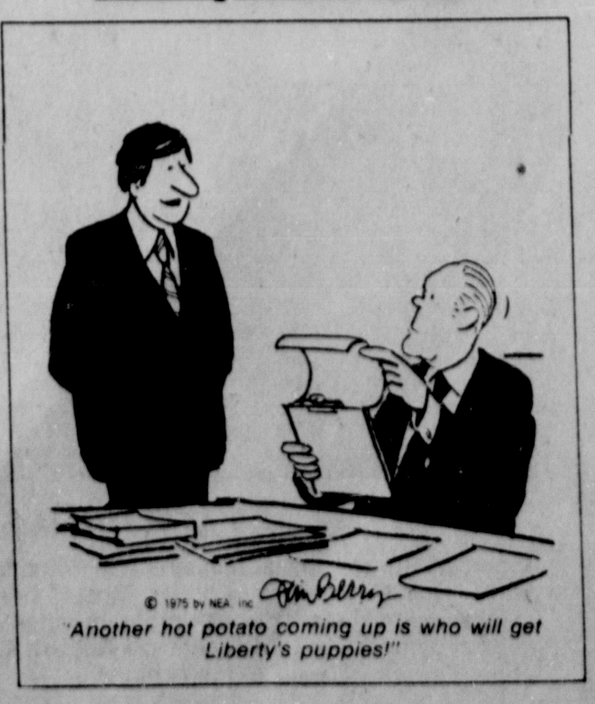

In the "Eisenhower years" — 1952 to 1960 — we were told an entire college generation was "apathetic" and had stagnated (perhaps because they didn't burn down the campus libraries). Yet, Ike ended a war in Korea that had killed tens of thousands of young Americans. For the rest of his eight years in office none were being shot at anywhere in the world.

Ike also halted — dead in its tracks — the advance of communism. And, Big Government didn't get any bigger. A citizen could go for an evening stroll in the park without getting bopped over the head. Wages went up steadily, but prices held. Steak was 85 cents a pound and a gallon of gas cost 29 cents. You could be well-dressed in a $50 suit and a pair of $9 shoes.

The workday and the workweek grew shorter and our taxes were reduced. Suddenly, more kids were going to college than ever before; more families were buying homes; never had our nation's wealth been so widely distributed; and we were so strong that no one in the world thought of challenging us.

You'll have to make up your own mind about the image versus the real man, but maybe we ought to go back and see what they did that we aren't doing today.

Wife makes desperate plea: find stolen car

I would like to appeal to the people of Pomona and surrounding area to look in their neighborhoods, in alleys and on their way to work for a 1965 maroon Chrysler stolen from the corner of Sixth Street and Hamilton Boulevard.

The car belongs to a 21-year-old mother, very ill, who has a 14-month-old son.

She has been in the hospital twice this month and is too weak to walk to the bus stop or grocery store.

She and her child are alone. When the car was stolen, they were in the process of moving. Everything they had was in the car including the baby's clothes.

The muffler had fallen, and she had to park it so that she could try to get help to fasten it up.

The car was stolen Aug. 16. It was locked at the time.

The license number is NHK-217. The car is a two-door with a damaged left rear window, broken left rear tail light, trailer hitch on the back, driver's seat torn and springs coming out. The motor missed, and the car had a gas leak. On the back window was a sticker that said, "Keep your hands off — Mafia staff car."

Our Pomona police have been very kind and have done all they can but have had no results.

The owner of the car lives in fear of needing immediate medical attention and not being able to get to the hospital.

Will anyone who has seen the car vall 629-6702? — I.M., Pomona.

You explained that you are the mother of the car owner, that you are disabled and your husband has had spinal surgery.

Hope that the car was abandoned and can be found influenced you to write to Action Line.

I have worked for the same private school for 15 years. Normally, I work the year around.

In June I signed up for unemployment for the summer as there wasn't enough work at the school to keep all the teachers busy.

I have collected pay for five weeks. About two weeks ago I called and asked if I could pick up my check that day instead of the following as I wanted to visit my daughter in San Diego.

The people at the unemployment insurance office said it would be all right. They said nothing about my losing a week's pay by doing so.

I was out of town only one day. If they had told me that collecting a day early would cause me to lose some pay, I could have waited until the weekend.

They said nothing until I went to the office today and was told I would get only one week's pay as I had been unavailable for work for more than four hours.

The woman I talked with said I could appeal this decision if I wanted to.

She didn't know the procedure and directed me to the information window. The man at the window didn't know the procedure either.

Even if you can't get my money for me, maybe you could make the appeals procedure and the law about eligibility known. — Mrs. E.K., Pomona.

Alonzo Daniels, manager of the Employment Development Department in Pomona, explained to us that the local office must make decisions of eligibility on the basis of the California Unemployment Insurance Code.

He confirmed that the penalty for not being available for work for more than four hours is loss of a week's pay. If one is ill or for some other reason not able to work, the loss is only one day's pay.

If a claimant feels that a decision is an incorrect application of the law, he or she may file an appeal to an administrative law judge within 10 days of the decision.

At a hearing before the judge, testimony is given and a decision results. In case of dissatisfaction with that decision, a further appeal can be filed to the Appeals Board within 10 days.

If the claimant is still dissatisfied after the Appeals Board makes a decision, he must go through normal court appeals processes.

Apparently the claims office people had second thoughts about your eligibility after we sent them a copy of your letter.

You wrote a note thanking us for helping you get your check.

Biting habit driving her nuts

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't think I am too crazy to bother with. I need your help. It's this terrible habit and it's driving me nuts. First I should tell you I am 18, a girl, lonely and very unhappy with myself.

About a year ago I began to bite the inside of my mouth and my lips. It's like biting fingernails — once you start you can't stop. I have bitten myself so hard that my mouth bleeds, scabs form and still I can't stop biting myself. I'm scared to death I'll get cancer if I don't get over this stupid habit.

Can you suggest a hypnotist? I need someone to take control of my mind and make me stop doing this terrible thing. Sign me — Ashamed And Scared

Dear Friend: Biting your mouth and lips is not the problem. It's the symptom of another problem. You need to find out why you have an uncontrollable urge to hurt yourself. A hypnotist will not provide the answer.

I suggest a talk with your school counselor. Confide in her or him. Verbalize your feelings of loneliness and inadequacy. If you aren't comfortable with the counselor, ask your family doctor to suggest a therapist who can help you talk about your anxieties and problems. And do hurry, please. The sooner you start the better.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son's wedding is getting to be a real pain in the neck. Every day it gets worse. Here's the problem:

His future in-laws have some ritzy ideas about how a wedding should be and it is sure running into a lot of money. They seem to think it would be nice if we offered to help out with the expenses. My husband and I don't agree. Already they have asked us to take 25 people off our list of 110. Can you imagine the nerve?

We are not rich people, Ann. What's more, we have two daughters of our own to marry off within the next few years. Believe me, we have no intention of asking anybody to help us out with the expenses. Isn't it understood that the parents of the bride put on the wedding and they do whatever they can afford? Or are we crazy? Please tell it like it is. — Refuse To Be Gouged

Dear R. G.: Hold your ground. You're absolutely right. Trim your list if you must but tell the bride's parents that any kind of wedding they can manage is perfectly all right with you. Let them know it's THEIR party.

Dear Ann Landers: Something has been bothering me for a long time. Maybe you can provide the answer and put my mind at ease. I am worrying about the comfort of baby kangaroos.

I'm aware that a kangaroo's pouch is a membrane attached to the animal's body designed to carry the young. I'd like to know if the pouch is fur-lined on the inside so the baby is kept warm and comfry. Can you tell me, please? — Kangaroo Fan

Dear Kang Fan: Pam Bianco from the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago says only female kangaroos have pouches. A pouch is not considered a membrane. It is merely an additional part of the skin —and alas, it is not fur-lined. But so far, I haven't heard of a single baby kangaroo who delined the ride, so it must be pretty comfy in there.

CONFIDENTIAL to Who Said It?: It was Will Rogers and I agree it's pretty darned funny. "On account of us being a democracy run by the people we are the only nation in the world that has to keep a government four years no matter what it does."

Disaster films are disastrous

Pravda, the Soviet Union's most influential newspaper, recently told its readers that America is being inundated by disaster movies "to distract people from the robbery and deceit to which they are subjected daily by oil companies, politicians and banks."

Such criticism of our disaster movies is unwarranted from a nation that is itself one big disaster.

"Horror movies have been put on an assembly-line basis," wrote correspondent G. Vasilyev. "They are successful in the United States because they exploit a sense of fear, do not demand great intellectual effort, and promise good profits."

With what goes on in our streets these days, it's harder and harder for disaster and horror films to have any real shock value.

It's quite true that the silver screen has become the shiver screen in the past few years, starting with "The Poseidon Adventure." Then we got "Airport," "Earthquake," "The Towering Inferno," "Airport 1975" and "Love Story."

These were followed by "The Hindenberg," "Phase IV" (marching ants), "Gloph" (tap-dancing cockroaches), "The Haephestus Plague" (earthquakes AND cockroaches), "Chosen Survivors" (nuclear fallout and vampire bats) and other petty annoyances. "The Day the World Ended" was an anti-climax.

Vasi baby, our omniscient Soviet scribe, is correct in his assumption that "a sense of fear" is good box office — every child shrieks and giggles at a loud "Boo!" at an unexpected moment. Nor can one deny that the films are moneymakers. "Jaws" is currently gobbling up receipts that may top Russia's gross national product.

Where our (probably) bearded cinema savant errs is in assuming that our disaster movies require no intellectual effort. The audience, swept up in the current crisis, relates, instinctively and mentally, to the immediate urgency of being drowned, consumed by flames, or swallowed up by an earthquake. Don't just SIT there. DO something!

A New Jersey theater showing "The Towering Inferno" caught fire, and the audience, with smoke filling the building and the arm rests going hot, assumed it was all part of Hollywood's technology, and nearly got fried in the orchestra. Some people watching "Earthquake" in Salt Lake City, emerged to find the city strewn with rubble, and thought it was all part of the show — the city had been belted by a minor quake while they were enjoying the show.

I call this living theater. When a film shows a movie house burning down and the theater actually burns down — man, that's life! It's great box office — but the box office was consumed by flames. One shot deal, you might say.

American writer Gore Vidal says the horrific stream of disaster movies reminded him of ancient Rome, where "to let off steam they had lions eating people and gladiators killing each other." Like "Rollerball."

The only solution, obviously, is to feed today's movie makers to the lions. And I don't mean MGM.

Dr. Lamb

Headaches vary in type

DEAR DR. LAMB — Some time ago you mentioned in one of your columns that Sansert was excellent for the prevention of Migraine headaches.

I developed what I thought was a dental problem with pain in my lower left jaw that would work its way up into my left temple and settle in my right eye. A dental examination established that my teeth were o.k.

A neurologist diagnosed my problem as a vascular condition, and the only thing he gave me was Valium. It didn't help. Then a neurosurgeon put me on Sansert. I began to take four a day, and much to my amazement, the pain stopped.

After taking Sansert for five months I began having both back and stomach aches. An orthopedic surgeon diagnosed my problem as an old degenerated disc and treated me with various medicines and therapy to no avail.

My internal medicine doctor put me in the hospital, and he ran all kinds of tests and everything was normal. I was getting so distressed that I discontinued taking all medicine, including Sanserts. I asked my internal medicine doctor if Sanserts could have caused the problem, and he said it was possible, but the neurosurgeon said he didn't think so. Could Sanserts have caused my problems? I still have the same pain from time to time, but not every night as I did to begin with. If I catch it in time, Empirin will help, but I may have to take four to six over a period of an hour or so to get relief.

DEAR READER — I am not sure from your letter what type of headache you have or had, but it is not the typical migraine headache. Many headaches are on a vascular basis, though, even if they are not migraine headaches.

Headache pain can be caused by over dilitation of arteries that stretch nerve fibers and cause pain. A good example here is the "morning after" headache with dilated arteries to the head region. Headaches can be caused by muscle contractions and often cause those at the base of the skull and back of the neck. Or, they can be caused by pain from pressure or traction on sensitive areas within the brain. Nervous tension, migraine headaches, even bad posture, can produce their effects through one of these mechanisms.

If you want more information on the different types of headaches and methods of management, you might write to me in care of this newspaper, Radio City Station, P.O. Box 1551, New York, NY 10019. Send 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope, and ask for The Health Letter number 2-9 Headache: Man's Most Common Pain.

Sansert (methysergide) works on headaches, because it raises the person's pain threshold. In other words it takes more pain for you to notice it. It does this by neutralizing a chemical in the body that lowers the pain threshold and is sometimes involved in headaches. It will prevent migraine headaches in about two out of three cases.

It is not totally innocuous and must be used in selected patients, and not used in patients with a variety of problems, including high blood pressure and heart disease.

Jim: "How did you happen to think of the rule of the ace and the king?"

Oswald: "In the early Thirties slam bidding was a hit or miss proposition. I wanted a simple rule to tell when to invite or actually bid a slam. I came up with the idea that any time you could take a king out of your hand and still have enough for game, you should think of a slam and possibly make a mild slam invitation. If you could take out an ace, you should definitely invite a slam. And if you could take out an ace and a king, you should bid the slam."

Jim: "I assume the bidding in the box shows this rule in operation. South would surely bid four spades without the ace of diamonds. So he invites the slam by bidding four diamonds. If North signed off at four spades South would probably give up."

Oswald: "Right. But North cue bids in hearts and now South invites the slam strongly by bidding five spades. He doesn't use Blackwood because he isn't worried about aces. North has his full values and goes on to the laydown six.

Ask the Jacobys

An Alberta reader says, "Playing at three notrump the deuce of hearts was led against me. Dummy held heart Q6 and I held spade A105. Should I have played the queen from dummy?"

The answer is no. The play of the six spot insures two tricks in the suit. If you rise with dummy's queen and the king covers you may only make one heart trick.

The kangaroo rat is a harmless little burrowing animal that lives in the deserts of the Southwestern United States.

Though it is neither a kangaroo nor a rat, this small tan-and-cream rodent shares certain of their features. It can leap about on its powerful hind legs like a tiny kangaroo, and is capable of jumping six feet into the air.

A kangaroo rat may be about 7 inches long, plus an equal-length tail which ends in a furry tuft.

The kangaroo rat spends the hot daylight hours in its cool burrow, emerging only at night to feed on seeds and other plant food.

It uses its tiny front legs to stuff food into fur-lined pouches in its cheeks, to be carried to its burrow and stored against lean times.

Unconcerned by the lack of water, the creature does not need to drink. Most of the moisture it needs is produced within its body from the seeds it eats.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061

LIBBY, Mont. (AP) — Timothy E. Nunley's U.S. Navy tombstone was lifted from a bed of flowers and laid to rest in a sea of garbage.

Robert Nunley commemorated the first anniversary of his only son's death by throwing the stone in the city dump and replacing it with another inscribed:

"We lost our beloved son through the negligence and stupidity of the United States government and its agents."

Timothy, 19, died of cancer in a Navy hospital in Jacksonville, Fla., on Sept. 20, 1974. His parents say the Navy killed him by failing to diagnose the disease and repeatedly refusing to admit him to a hospital until it was too late.

The Nunleys are asking $6.5 million in a medical malpractice suit filed against the government in federal court in Jacksonville

Present at the brief graveyard ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Nunley, their daughter and son-in-law and grandchild.

Mrs. Nunley sobbed on her daughter's shoulder as her husband took a rusty shovel and dug up the military marker. The Nunleys said they had planned since last year to take the action.

After laying the new stone in place, Nunley used a dolly to wheel the 250-pound military headstone to his nearby pickup truck.

At the dump, Nunley backed the truck to a garbage-filled pit and pushed the stone over the edge where it came to rest face up on a stinking pile of rubbish.

Carl McAfee, a Norton, Va., lawyer representing the Nunleys, said, "Had they even listened to him in the beginning, he would have had a chance to survive."

The suit claims that Timothy reported what he believed to be a tumor in his groin in September 1973 while at boot camp in Orlando, Fla.

Medical corpsmen who examined him, the suit says, looked at him with a flashlight, never touched him and sent him away with a mild pain killer.

That tumor, according to the suit, spread lymphatic cancer throughout Timothy's body in the following months. Timothy, 6-foot-3, weighed 208 pounds when he entered the Navy. His mother said he was reduced to 120 pounds at death.

No more keeping up with Joneses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Finally, there's a commercial for the man who has less and wants to keep it that way. A sort of fast unhustle.

In fact, some 150 television stations and 800 radio stations have signed up to carry a whole series of such spots. Like the one with mythical baseball players Riordan and Daley.

Riordan: "Last year, me and ol' Daley made a deal. No more keepin' up with the Joneses. We were reminiscing about the good old days.

Daley: Yeah. Back in '56 I got me this beat-up '47 Chevy. So Riordan here gets a cherry '51 Olds with glasspacks.

Riordan: The race was one, lemme tell ya.

Daley: New cars every three years, campers, snowmobiles, electric hot lather ... the latest model everything.

Riordan: Seemed like fun, but we got to thinking. We didn't need all that stuff. Worked so hard paying for it, we hardly had time to use it.

Daley: ... See, we figure, you keep on using resources like there's no tomorrow, there may be no tomorrow.

Another commercial has Gov. Richard D. Lamm strolling through a ghost town in Colorado, noting that "all of a sudden, the silver was gone, and the two closed up overnight. Our earth could have the same problem. We've got only so many natural resources."

The public service spots were formally unveiled at a press briefing Wednesday by the Center for Growth Alternatives, an environmental group. Several stations already are airing the messages.

Broadcast personality Edward P. Morgan, who narrates several of the commercials, told reporters that "I and many of you were brought up by the Chamber of Commerce — to believe that bigger is better.

"Hopefully, these spots will encourage people to question that idea."

Norwegian marauders founded Dublin — one of the first towns in Ireland — in the ninth century. The city's Christ Church Cathedral looks down on the remains of an original Norse settlement.

High Court

The Supreme Court of Canada is the final court of appeal for civil and criminal appeals from lower courts. It sits in Ottawa and is comprised of a Chief Justice and eight puisne judges, all appointed by the federal cabinet to hold office until age 75. The court can render decisions on constitutional conflicts between the federal and provincial governments in appeal cases or when asked to give an advisory opinion by either the federal or provincial governments.
